Module Researching Irregularized Migration and Access to Rights: Eastern Europe in Global Perspective
06SM480o501 / Module

Description:

General description:
In this course, students will engage with anthropological and sociological approaches to migration studies, focusing on Southeastern and Eastern European contexts as both sites of emigration and key transit regions for migration to Western and Northern Europe. They will explore issues related to citizenship, social policies and access to rights in practice through the lived experiences of irregularized migrants who were interviewed for the Horizon Europe project Protecting Irregular Migrants in Europe (PRIME).

PRIME is funded by the European Commission and carried out by six partnering research institutions, among them the University of Zurich (previously University of St. Gallen), where both lecturers are responsible for the project. Together with the lecturers, students will critically examine and reflect on the planning and implementation of large European joint projects, as well as the data such projects generate to engage with the question of what it means to conduct research on migration critically and reflexively.

In so doing, students will look into potentials and challenges related to conducting applied research on migration with a specific focus on migration to Europe. The course draws particular attention to the roles played by countries such as Poland, Hungary, Romania, Serbia, North Macedonia, and Bosnia-Herzegovina - as sending, receiving, and transit states - in shaping the European migration landscape. Students will explore national contexts within and beyond the EU, reflecting on how to study them without falling into the pitfalls of methodological nationalism.

This course critically examines irregular migration by challenging dominant frameworks that often naturalize the nation-state and criminalize mobility. Drawing on Wimmer and Glick Schiller's critique of methodological nationalism, we explore how social science has been complicit in framing migration through the lens of nation-state borders. Janine Dahinden's call for the de-migranticization of migration studies pushes us further to question how academic categories reproduce exclusion. We engage with De Genova's analysis of how "illegality" is legally and socially produced, not inherent to migrants themselves, and we examine how research practices often reproduce administrative and legal regimes that construct the boundaries of legality, as shown by Fuchs et al. Finally, we interrogate the carceral economies surrounding migration control (Martin 2021), revealing the political and economic interests that sustain and benefit from the management of "irregular" migrants. Together, these texts offer a foundation for a critical, deconstructive approach to migration studies - one that foregrounds power, legal production, and the contested nature of borders and belonging.

ECTS: 6

Learning Outcome:
Students will be able to analyze current discussions and controversies surrounding debates about irregular migration through engaging with central concepts e.g. processes of irregularisation, deportability, citizenship, and statehood (reflection competence).

Students can debate and comment on source texts related to asylum, migration and labor governance e.g. the Return Directive (2008), Employer Sanctions Directive (2009), EU Regulation on Returns (2025 proposal) and the Pact on Migration and Asylum (2024/2026) (reflection and action competence).

Students will develop the analytical skills to interpret EU policy frameworks on irregular migration and contextualize them through firsthand accounts from migrants and primary source materials (reflection and action competence).

Module Gender Studies in the Disciplines (Lecture Series)
06SM245o626 / Module

Description:

General description:
Die interdisziplinäre Ringvorlesung ist fachbezogenen Zugängen zur Erforschung von Geschlechterverhältnissen gewidmet. Sie thematisiert das Wechselverhältnis von disziplinärer Forschung und Gendertheorien: Welche für die Geschlechterforschung relevanten Konzepte entstehen aus den Disziplinen heraus und welchen Beitrag leisten umgekehrt Gendertheorien mit ihren kritischen Interventionen in disziplinäre Wissensbestände, Arbeitsweisen und Methoden?
Die Ringvorlesung richtet sich an interessierte Studierende aus allen Fakultäten sowie an die interessierte Öffentlichkeit.

ECTS: 3

Learning Outcome:
Studierende lernen, dass «Geschlecht» als Forschungsgegenstand je nach Fachperspektive mit unterschiedlichen Fragegestellungen, Methoden und Konzepten erforscht wird.

Module Early New High German: von newen zeyttungen und wahrhafftigen wunderzeichen
06SM360o004 / Module

Description:

General description:
Das Modul «Frühneuhochdeutsch: von newen zeyttungen und wahrhafftigen wunderzeichen» bietet einen umfassenden Überblick über diese Epoche des Deutschen, die von 1350 bis 1650 angesetzt wird. Texte aus dieser Periode sind im Verhältnis zu älteren Texten zwar relativ gut zu verstehen, zeigen aber deutliche Abweichungen im Erscheinungsbild, in Wortformen und im Satzbau. Dieses Spannungsfeld zwischen Verständlichkeit und Abweichungen werden wir im Seminar erforschen. Der Fokus des Moduls liegt auf einem selbständigen, empirischen und übenden Zugang. Um diese Ziele zu erfüllen, werden wir nach einer allgemeinen Einführung, einen Besuch in der Handschriftenabteilung der Zentralbibliothek Zürich absolvieren. Jede Studentin/ jeder Student wird ein Flugblatt aus der Sammlung «Wickiana» (https://www.zb.uzh.ch/de/news/wickiana) auswählen, an welchem sie/er während des Semesters die verschiedenen sprachlichen Ebenen untersuchen wird. Die Ergebnisse der Analyse werden in einer Arbeit zusammengefasst. Im Vordergrund steht somit die Vermittlung von Methoden und grundlegenden Kenntnissen im Auswerten und Beurteilen von historischen Texten.

ECTS: 6

Notes:
Der Leistungsnachweis stellt die schriftliche Analyse eines Flugblattes dar. Das Modul richtet sich an BA- und MA-Studierende aller Fachbereiche (DSL, VGS).

Learning Outcome:
Die Studierenden erwerben nicht nur fundierte Kenntnisse über sprachliche Veränderungen und historische Kontexte des Frühneuhochdeutschen, sondern auch wie historische Quellen zu analysieren und einzuordnen sind. Die Studierenden eignen sich vertiefte Kenntnisse in der analytischen Herangehensweise der diachronen Sprachwissenschaft an.

Module Role plays. The Sociology of Drama
06SM360o009 / Module

Description:

General description:
Dramen formen Gesellschaft. Gattungspoetisch ist der Bezug auf gesellschaftliche Strukturen fest verankert. Man denke nur an Gattungen wie die Typenkomödie oder das Bürgerliche Trauerspiel. Dabei bilden dramatische Texte gesellschaftliche Strukturen nicht nur ab, sondern kritisieren sie und formen sie sogar aktiv mit. Ende des neunzehnten Jahrhunderts - zeitgleich mit der Herausbildung der Soziologie als moderner Wissenschaft - gewinnt das Drama dann aber noch eine weitere, analytische Dimension: Es wird selbst soziologisch.

Dramentheoretische Kategorien wie Raum, Sprache, Figur und Handlung erhalten dabei in dramatischen Texten zunehmend ein spezifisches soziologisches Profil: beispielsweise sind die Räume zum Milieu ausgestaltet, die Sprache wird als Schauplatz sozialer Distinktion entdeckt, Figurenkonstellationen generieren Erkenntnis über das Zusammenspiel von Klasse, Geschlecht und anderer sozialer Kategorien, die Figurencharakterisierungen lassen ein Interesse an gesellschaftlichen Stereotypen erkennen, die Handlungsstruktur wiederum an Mechanismen von Inklusion und Exklusion. Basierend auf der Beobachtung dieser Wendung zum Soziologischen geht das Seminar dem besonderen Potenzial von Dramentexten nach, moderne gesellschaftliche Strukturen zu erkennen, reflektieren und in sie zu intervenieren.
Letztendlich steht damit auch die Frage nach der gesellschaftlichen Funktion von Literatur zur Disposition.

In diesem Seminar wollen wir einer Soziologie des Dramas auf den Grund gehen. Dafür vertiefen wir einerseits dramentheoretische Grundlagen, andererseits bringen wir sie mit soziologischen Kategorien und Theorien in Dialog. Gelesen werden ausgewählte Dramen und Theatertexte des neunzehnten und zwanzigsten Jahrhunderts, unter anderem von Gerhart Hauptmann, Marieluise Fleißer, Heiner Müller und Elfriede Jelinek.

ECTS: 6

Learning Outcome:
Die Studierenden verfügen über vertiefte Kenntnisse in einem spezifischen Teilgebiet der Neueren deutschen Literaturwissenschaft.
Basierend auf dem aktuellen Stand der Forschung können sie eigene literaturgeschichtliche und -wissenschaftliche Fragestellungen bearbeiten und/oder in einem praxisbezogenen Zusammenhang darstellen.

Module Practical Rhetorics: Skills Training
06SM360o010 / Module

Description:

General description:
Vortrags- und Gesprächskompetenz sind die wichtigsten Soft Skills, die man in unserem Studium erlernt. Sie sind unentbehrlich für verschiedene Leistungsnachweise (Referat, mündliche Prüfung) und zugleich Schlüsselqualifikationen der meisten späteren Berufe. Die verschiedenen thematischen Seminare bieten dazu Hilfestellungen an.
Dennoch setzen sie kommunikative Kompetenzen mehr voraus, als sie zu schulen. In unserem Seminar wollen wir uns darauf konzentrieren. Das heisst: Wir werden miteinander sprechen, über das Sprechen sprechen und dessen Besonderheiten diskutieren.
Dabei werden wir feststellen, dass ein guter Vortrag mehr mit einer gelungenen Theateraufführung verbindet als mit einem Aufsatz. Denn Sprechen ist ein plurimediales Geschehen. Es präsentiert sich als Zusammenspiel unterschiedlicher Zeichen: von Sprache und Begleitmedien, Mimik und Gestik, Stimme und Körperhaltung. Die unterschiedlichen Dimensionen der Rede werden wir Schritt für Schritt beleuchten und nachvollziehen, wie sie auf den Gesprächskontext abgestimmt werden. Besondere Beachtung schenken wir der Dramaturgie der Rede: Wie wecke ich zu Beginn Interesse, wie erreiche ich meine Redeziele, wie setze ich einen effektvollen Schlusspunkt? Das theoriegeleitete Sprechen über das Sprechen wollen wir Woche für Woche zum Anlass nehmen, die kennengelernten rhetorischen Strategien auch praktisch auszuprobieren.

ECTS: 3

Learning Outcome:
Nach dem Seminar
... kennen Sie wichtige Grundbegriffe der antiken wie der modernen Rhetorik.
... können Sie die plurimedialen Zeichen der Rede analysieren und interpretieren.
... sind Sie in der Lage, kennengelernte rhetorische Strategien gezielt in eigenen Redebeiträgen einzusetzen.

Module Creative Writing
06SM360o012 / Module

Description:

General description:
Kreatives Schreiben erkundet sich bestenfalls im Machen - und so ist der Ansatz dieses Seminars, sich verschiedene Ansätze der Textgewinnung aufmerksam anzuschauen, um diese dann intensiv zu erproben. Dabei werden zunächst, nach einer Einführung und einer Kennenlernrunde, in der bereits über die Schreiberfahrungen und -ansprüche der Teilnehmenden gesprochen werden soll, einige Klassiker des Kreativen Schreibens hergeleitet, um diese dann einzuüben und anschließend zu reflektieren.
Dozent Hendrik Otremba kombiniert dabei etablierte Schreibansätze mit Erfahrungen, Methoden und Schreibspielen, die aus der eigenen Schreibpraxis als Romanautor und Musiker und seiner jahrelangen Lehre an verschiedenen Institutionen entstanden sind.

Nach dieser Annäherung steht im Zentrum des Seminars die umfangreiche und komplexe Schreibübung Mosaik X, die von Otremba entwickelt wurde und den Studierenden ermöglichen soll, verschiedene Impulse kurzzuschließen, um sich in Bereiche des Schriftstellerischen vorzuwagen, die sonst nur mit einiger Erfahrung zu erreichen sind. So folgt das Seminar etwa der Frage, wie jener Zustand zu begünstigen ist, in dem das Eigenleben der Sprache maßgeblich am Entstehen des Texts mitwirkt, Bedeutungen und Bilder entstehen, die nicht intendiert waren und das Erzählen zum Sprechen bringen. Es entsteht ein wucherndes Konglomerat, das sich immer wieder selbst unterwandert, anreichert, dekonstruiert und verdichtet.

Im gemeinsamen Sprechen über die Texte wird zudem erprobt, wie im Sinne eines Lektorats (auch kollektiv) an noch im Entstehen begriffenen Texten mitgedacht werden kann: Wie nähert man sich einem Text an, von dem die verfassende Person selbst noch nicht allzu viel weiß? Wie spricht man über Texte, die noch beweglich sind - und somit auch verletzlich und fragil?

ECTS: 3

Learning Outcome:
Am Ende des Seminars liegt Textmaterial vor, das neue Erfahrungen dokumentiert
- und gleichzeitig Rückschlüsse auf das eigene Schreiben und die literarische Praxis an sich erlaubt. Der Text selbst kann dabei letztlich alles Mögliche bedeuten: Er kann das bloße Ergebnis einer angeleiteten kreativen Schreibübung sein, kann Auftakt oder Element eines Romans werden, ein Langgedicht entwerfen, eine Kurzgeschichte umfassen. Er kann aber auch Vehikel sein, sich durch das Kreative Schreiben neue Perspektiven und Horizonte zu erschließen, um das Denken und Schreiben in neue Bahnen zu lenken, Routinen zu hinterfragen, Blockaden zu überwinden (oder gleich zu verhindern) und den eigenen Stil zu erweitern. So kann die Schreibpraxis in diesem Kurs zudem Impulse liefern für das Wissenschaftliche Arbeiten, für essayistische oder journalistische Texte, für musikalische Kontexte oder ein dramaturgisches, szenisches Schreiben (etwa im Bereich Theater). Ein Mehrwert des Seminars also besteht in der Möglichkeit des Transfers der erschlossenen Ansätze, der gemachten Erfahrungen und ausgebildeten Verfahren.

Module Ethics of War
06SM160o008 / Module

Description:

General description:
Dieser Kurs bietet eine Einführung in die Ethik des Krieges, insbesondere in die umfangreiche revisionistische Literatur, die in den letzten zwanzig Jahren entstanden ist. Idealerweise wählt man diesen Kurs erst, wenn man bereits mit den Grundzügen der praktischen Philosophie im Allgemeinen und der Ethik im Besonderen vertraut ist. Der Kurs folgt keinem Lehrbuch im engeren Sinne, sondern stützt sich stark auf aktuelle akademische Fachaufsätze, die von der Dozentin zur Verfügung gestellt werden. Von den Studierenden wird erwartet, dass sie pro Woche in etwa einen wissenschaftlichen Aufsatz lesen. Die Pflichtlektüre wird durch weiterführende empfohlene Literatur ergänzt, die bei Interesse vertiefend konsultiert werden kann. Ein Lehrbuch, das viele Inhalte des Kurses auf zugängliche Weise behandelt, ist Helen Frowes The Ethics of War and Peace (Routledge, 2016). Der Kurs wird auf Deutsch unterrichtet.

ECTS: 6

Notes:
Studierende der Philosophie, die eine Seminararbeit verfassen wollen, buchen nach Absprache mit der Dozentin oder dem Dozenten ein entsprechendes Wahlpflichtmodul ohne Veranstaltung, in dessen Rahmen die Arbeit verfasst wird (vergl. programmspezifische Wegleitung): «Angewandte Ethik» oder «Politische Philosophie».

Learning Outcome:
1. Der Kurs bietet eine relativ anspruchsvolle Einführung in die zeitgenössische Diskussion zur Lehre des gerechten Krieges. Am Ende des Kurs sollten Sie mit Walzers «klassischen» Position vertraut sein,die sich auch im internationalen Recht wiederspiegelt. Sie sollten sich aber auch mit der «revisionistischen» Kritik an der klassischenPosition auskennen und diese Kritik kompetent diskutieren können. Auch zu Themen wie dem Terrorismus oder dem Pazifismus sollten Sie nach erfolgreichem Abschliessen dieses Seminars differenziert(er) Stellung nehmen können.

2. Für die Präsentation, die ein Pflichtteil des Portfolios ist, sollen Sie den zu lesenden Text nicht zusammenfassen, sondern etwas damit «anfangen», also beispielsweise einen Aspekt imDetail besprechen, der Ihnen als besonders kontrovers, spannend oder aufschlussreich aufgefallen ist. Die Auswahl und Aufbereitung dessen, was Sie mit ihren Mitstudierenden besprechen möchten (und Überlegungen dazu, wie Sie Ihre Präsentation für andere Studierende ansprechend gestalten können) helfen Ihnen, ihre kritischen Denkfähigkeiten und Ihre Kommunikationsfähigkeiten zu entwickeln.

3. Um in den anderen Pflichtteilen des Portfolios erfolgreich abzuschneiden, müssen Sie sich mit der Pflichtliteratur auseinandersetzen und diese sowohl verstehen als auch kritisch reflektieren können. Diesem Verständnis müssen Sie in schriftlicher Form Ausdruck geben können. Wenn Sie sich eingehend mit diesen Teilen des Portfolios auseinandersetzen, werden Sie Ihr Leseverständnis fördern und Ihr kritisches Denken schulen. Es wird Ihnen leichter fallen, Argumente aus einem Text zu extrahieren und diese auf ihre Stärken und Schwächen zu prüfen.

4. Eine aktive Teilnahme an den Seminardiskussionen schult Ihre Fähigkeiten als Zuhörende und Sprechende in einem philosophischen Kontext.

Module Søren Kierkegaard
06SM160o501 / Module

Description:

General description:
In scheinbar paradoxer Weise gilt Søren Kierkegaard (1813-1855) sowohl als wichtiger christlicher Philosoph als auch als Hauptfigur oder gar Gründer des Existentialismus - einer philosophischen Tradition, die heute teilweise als Reaktion auf den "Tod Gottes" (Nietzsche) wahrgenommen wird. Diesen existentialistischen Kierkegaard werden wir uns im Seminar vornehmen, indem wir philosophisch zentrale Aspekte seines Denkens anhand der Lektüre von Auszügen aus so einflussreichen Werken wie Entweder - Oder (1843), Furcht und Zittern (1843), der Unwissenschaftlichen Nachschrift (1846) und Die Krankheit zum Tode (1849) analysieren und diskutieren.

General description:
Autorinnen der Vormoderne wurden lange Zeit von der Literaturgeschichte ignoriert. In den vergangenen Jahren mehren sich aber die Versuche, diesen blinden Fleck zu erschliessen: sei es mit neuen Werkausgaben, intensiven Diskussionen um den schulischen oder literaturwissenschaftlichen Kanon oder mit einem breiteren Begriff von Autorschaft, der auch Kollaborationen und Netzwerke abbildet. Das Seminar untersucht drei bekanntere Autorinnen der deutschsprachigen Vormoderne exemplarisch wie systematisch, um davon ausgehend Kanonisierungsprozesse für die Literatur des Barocks und der Aufklärung zu hinterfragen. Im theoretischen Fokus des Seminars stehen verschiedene Figurationen der Stimmführung. Auftakt der Analysen bilden Briefe der Autorinnen, die diese Stimmführung exponieren und dabei über ihre autobiographische Dimension weit hinausreichen. Vor diesem Hintergrund analysieren wir Texte von Sibylla Schwarz als Autorin des Barocks, von Luise Gottsched als Autorin der Frühaufklärung und von Anna Karsch als Autorin der Spätaufklärung.

ECTS: 3

Learning Outcome:
Die Studierenden verfügen über vertiefte Kenntnisse in einem spezifischen Teilgebiet der Neueren deutschen Literaturwissenschaft.
Basierend auf dem aktuellen Stand der Forschung können sie eigene literaturgeschichtliche und -wissenschaftliche Fragestellungen bearbeiten und/oder in einem praxisbezogenen Zusammenhang darstellen.

Module Women* in Late and Post-socialist Literary Fields: Podcast Workshop for “Novinki”
06SM480o001 / Module

Description:

General description:
Das Seminar widmet sich der Frage, wie schreibende Frauen in der Transformationsphase zwischen 1985 und 1995 auf die politischen, sozialen und kulturellen Umbrüche in Jugoslawien und der Sowjetunion reagierten. Im Mittelpunkt steht die Analyse weiblicher Stimmen, die unter den Bedingungen von Glasnost Perestroika und gesellschaftlicher Liberalisierung in der Sowjetunion oder unter den beginnenden jugoslawischen Zerfallskriegen (Veränderung vs. Zerstörung) neue Ausdrucksformen fanden oder als Autor:innen erstmals sichtbar wurden. Aufbauend auf der Kritik an bestehenden slavischen Literaturgeschichten, die weiterhin deutliche Lücken in Bezug auf Gender und marginalisierte Sprachen aufweisen, zielt das Seminar darauf ab, diese Leerstellen durch die gemeinsame Lektüre und Diskussion zentraler Texte von Autorinnen aus dieser Zeit zu schliessen. Die belarusische Autorin Svetlana Aleksievič konnte ihre Bücher erstmals 1985 zum Machtantritt Gorbatschews veröffentlichen und in Russland gewannen Schriftstellerinnen-Kollektive wie die "Neuen Amazonen" an Leserschaft, wohingegen viele kritisch eingestellte Frauen aus dem ehemaligen Jugoslawien politischer Repressionen ausgesetzt waren und in der Emigration schrieben: Slavenka Drakulić, Svetlana Slapšak, Dubravka Ugrešić.
Die politisch divergierenden Entwicklungen - von neuer Medienfreiheit und gleichzeitiger Verarmung in der Sowjetunion bis zu den kriegerischen Konflikten im zerfallenden Jugoslawien - werden als Rahmenbedingungen literarischen Schaffens reflektiert, wobei auch Prozesse «neuer Lektüren», etwa von Autorinnen, die bis 1985 nicht in der Sowjetunion gelesen werden konnten, untersucht werden.
Die Studierenden entwickeln im Verlauf des Seminars eigene Podcastbeiträge, die literaturhistorische Perspektiven mit Fragen der Genderforschung und der Dekolonisierung der Slavistik verbinden. Die Podcast-Werkstatt versteht sich dabei als Raum der kritischen Kanonrevision, der multiperspektivischen Analyse und der kreativen Wissensvermittlung. Die Podcastfolgen werden auf dem Literatur- und Kulturportal novinki.de veröffentlicht (siehe hier: novinki.de/angehoert/) und über Radio Lora ausgestrahlt.

ECTS: 6

Notes:
Das Modul findet in Kooperation mit dem Slavischen Seminar der Universität Basel statt.

Learning Outcome:
Die Studierenden erarbeiten sich einen Überblick über spezifische Literaturgeschichten der Slavischen Literaturen und Theorien der (Literatur-)Geschichtschreibung. Ausserdem erhalten die Studierenden Einblick in Literaturvermittlung und medienspezifische Zugänge.

Module English phonetics and phonology for teachers of English
06SM440o001 / Module

Description:

General description:
Phonemes are known as the smallest units in language that differentiate meaning, and this course provides a hands-on introduction to English phonetics and phonology. The first part will be dedicated to the articulatory and acoustic properties of (human speech) sounds, with a particular focus on English. We look at the speech producing apparatus and articulation as well as inherent features of speech sounds (place and manner of production). We will then discuss general phonology, from Jakobson's (structuralist) ideas of a formal development of distinctive feature theory to more cognitive approaches, problems of decomposition, the interplay of phonology and morphology, and phonological rules in general. There will also be a short introduction to phonetic transcription and analysis (the International Phonetic Alphabet (IPA), PRAAT, etc.), complete with some practical work. In the second part of the lecture, we look at selected sub-fields: sound change in the history English, accent classification and distribution from a typological perspective, sociolinguistic aspects of variation (including style- shifting and indexicality), and contrastive phonetics (English-German).

ECTS: 3

Learning Outcome:
Students acquire an overview of a subdiscipline in English linguistics and get a better structure of the sound structure of English.

Languages of Instruction:
Englisch

Merkmale:	Target Group: Suitable for English Speakers Target Group: Open to School Students

Module Words and Dictionaries through Time
06SM440o002 / Module

Description:

General description:
Dictionaries are indispensable research tools for any student of historical linguistics. On the most basic level, they help us understand the languages used in earlier periods. Yet, dictionaries can be used for much more than that: They reveal where words come from and how they evolve across time, they show which words are used in different geographical areas or specific communicative domains, and they illustrate how certain areas of the lexicon are structured.
Furthermore, dictionaries are themselves part of the primary evidence of a language and are thus not only a tool for, but also an object of, linguistic research. Despite the fact that dictionaries are probably the most widely used linguistic resource, even advanced students are often not aware of the wealth of dictionary resources available and of the specific uses different dictionaries can be put to.

This lecture introduces students to English lexicography and its history; it presents important dictionaries and related resources and teaches students how to use them for their own research. In the course of the semester, we will analyse the structure and components of dictionaries, learn how to work with different dictionaries, discuss how words get into dictionaries and find out whether Samuel Johnson really wrote the first English dictionary.

Module Literature and Culture of the Long Eighteenth Century
06SM440o005 / Module

Description:

General description:
This semester-long lecture series offers an introduction to the literature and culture of the long eighteenth century (c.
1660-1800), a period marked by dramatic social, political, and intellectual change. Spanning the Restoration to the dawn of Romanticism, the series will explore how literature both reflected and shaped the values, tensions, and transformations of its time.

Students will encounter a range of key genres and texts-from Restoration drama to the rise of the novel, from satire to sentimental poetry-and engage with critical debates surrounding gender, class, empire, and modernity. It is organised around key topics and developments of the period: The Sexual Politics of Restoration Drama, Writing the Nation, The Country House, Print Culture and the Public Sphere, Imitation and Imagination, Reason and Emotion, Writing the City, Trade and Travel, Colonialism and Slavery, and Domesticity and Female Sexuality.

Through these thematic sessions, the series will trace the emergence of modern notions of identity, authorship, and political engagement, situating literary developments within broader cultural and historical contexts. It provides an essential foundation for students interested in eighteenth-century studies, offering both close textual readings and interdisciplinary perspectives on one of the most dynamic periods in English literary history.

ECTS: 3

Learning Outcome:
Students will be able to: (a) outline the key concepts and findings presented in the lecture; (b) provide examples for each of these concepts and findings; (c) comment on an advanced academic level on the major problems and controversies surrounding the topic in question.

Module (Un)Freedom in U.S. Literature and Culture
06SM440o004 / Module

Description:

General description:
Freedom is a core idea in US-American founding myths and national identity. The promise of freedom for some Americans, however, has always been conditioned on the unfreedom of others. The US is built on settler-colonialism and enslavement, and rights, liberties, and freedoms continue to be unequally distributed within today's society and culture. As a contested term, 'freedom' has been put into the service of various emancipatory agendas, but it has also been used to justify existing hierarchies, exploitation, and subjugation - a phenomenon that Elisabeth Anker has aptly called "ugly freedom."

This lecture will trace discourses of un/freedom throughout US history: It will examine the concept of freedom in the founding documents of the US and its entanglements with enslavement and explore the notion of 'free land' at the heart of settler-colonialism and (westward) expansion. It will address the continuing unfreedom of African Americans, indigenous peoples, and other minoritized and oppressed groups as well as the social movements and organizations that have fought for equal rights and individual liberties for women, people of color, and the LGBTQIA + community. It will also exemplarily cover how historical figures are turned into freedom fighters in the cultural imaginary of the US and how specific freedoms and rights (gun rights, free speech, etc.) are negotiated in politics and culture.

ECTS: 3

Learning Outcome:
Students will be able to: (a) outline the key concepts and findings presented in the lecture; (b) provide examples for each of these concepts and findings; (c) comment on an advanced academic level on the major problems and controversies surrounding the topic in question.

Module Digital Technologies across the Lifespan
06SM440o003 / Module

Description:

General description:
Humans have developed an intimate relationship with digital technologies. They pervade everyday life from cradle to grave, accompanying us from birth (and before) through childhood, youth, adulthood, old age and death (and after). This lecture series will examine the impact of this radical development (since say the 1990s) and the impact it has had on human behaviour, thought and self-understanding.

ECTS: 3

Notes:
The lecture will be recorded and made available asynchronously.

Learning Outcome:
Students will have an in-depth knowledge of how digital technologies have impacted human life throughout the lifespan.

They will be able to critically analyse and reflect on the relationship between humans and digital technologies and the broader issues involved.

They will have an in-depth understanding of the competences required to engage with digital technologies in a meaningful and critical manner.

Module Digital Literacies
06SM440o008 / Module

Description:

General description:
Digital literacies have become central to the skill set that 21st-century information technology requires. Learners of all ages need to be digitally literate to use digital media meaningfully, critically and responsibly. The aim of this module is firstly to introduce learners to the broad concept of digital literacies, focusing on approaches and insights from educational research, science and technology studies, and psychology. Subsequently, the module analyses individual key digital competences based on concrete case studies. The module also aims to illustrate the challenges and problems of implementing digital literacies in a range of contexts.

ECTS: 3

Learning Outcome:
After having completed this module, students will be have an in-depth knowledge of digital literacies, including different approaches and issues within the discipline.
After having completed this module, students will be able to:

- Critically evaluate and analyse the key components of digital literacies
- Reflect on and assess their own digital literacy skills
- Evaluate teaching materials in terms of their potential for implementing digital literacies in the classroom
- Act as mediators of basic digital literacy skills

Module Anglophone Media Studies: Diva, Disaster, and Deception: San Francisco in Full Drag
06SM440o007 / Module

Description:

General description:
Dramatic, flamboyant, and brimming with excess, San Francisco-a city famous for its disguising fog, vertiginous hills, lacy Victorian facades, and eccentric personalities-has long served as a stage for some of cinema's most iconic and camp-infused stories. From the over-the-top disaster drama San Francisco to the shadowy noir Dark Passage, the exuberant Flower Drum Song, the screwball antics of What's Up, Doc?, the gender-bending comedy of Mrs. Doubtfire, and the off-beat So I Married an Axe Murder, these films showcase the city's unique ability to blend glamor, whimsy, and theatricality. This course explores the cinematic portrayals of this camp mecca, focusing on films that celebrate and subvert identity through camp, drag, and gender performance. From Hitchcock's psychological thriller Vertigo to Wiseau's bizarrely brilliant The Room, we will examine how the city has been used as both a literal and metaphorical backdrop to amplify themes of excess, transformation, and fluidity, while challenging conventional notions of gender and self-expression.

ECTS: 3

Learning Outcome:
After having completed this module, students will

- be able to demonstrate extended knowledge and critical understanding on issues pertaining to the Anglophone country
- be able to present a nuanced reading of a media text
- be able to situate their analysis within the larger field
- be able to structure a research paper, effectively implementing key skills of academic writing
- be able to provide constructive feedback on the writing of their peers

Module Age and Aging: Linguistic, Literary, and Cultural Studies Perspectives
06SM440o006 / Module

Description:

General description:
This lecture series explores the multifaceted themes of age and aging through the lenses of linguistics, literary studies, and cultural studies. Each week features a lecture from a scholar at the English Department whose work engages with questions of how age is constructed, represented, and experienced across time, languages, and societies. In this lecture, we will examine topics relating to, for example, representations of age and aging in literature and media, discourses around aging in contemporary or historical texts and contexts, cognitive, social and linguistic constructions of age(ing), coming-of-age narratives, sociolinguistic and pragmatic perspectives on age-related language use, language change in past and present, additional language learning in classroom and naturalistic settings in relation to chronological age and age of onset of acquisition.

This course offers students an opportunity to consider aging as a dynamic site of meaning-making, and to reflect on how age intersects with identity categories such as gender, race, and class. Through active participation and critical reflection, students will gain deeper insight into the role of language, literature, and culture in shaping societal understandings of aging and the life course.

ECTS: 3

Learning Outcome:
Upon successful completion of the course students will be able to ...

explore key theories from linguistics, literary studies, and cultural studies that are relevant to understanding age and aging across the human lifespan.

interpret and evaluate how concepts of age and aging are framed in linguistic, literary, and cultural discourses.

demonstrate an awareness of the intersectionality of age with other identity categories such as gender, race, class, and disability.

demonstrate an understanding of how age and aging are constructed and represented in different textual and cultural contexts.

demonstrate an understanding of language variation and change in first and second language across the lifespan and in relation to age-related factors.

Module Poverty and Precarity around 1600
06SM440o504 / Module

Description:

General description:
This MA seminar examines how poverty and precarity were debated, represented and contested in early modern England. Against the backdrop of environmental crises such as droughts and harvest failures, increasing urbanization, and profound changes to traditional social structures, the period witnessed intensified anxieties about vagrancy, crime, charity, and the moral obligations of the state and its subjects. We will explore a wide range of literary and non-literary texts that reflect and shape these concerns: alongside prose satires, utopian fictions, and political pamphlets that address the material and ideological dimensions of poverty, early modern drama-particularly history plays and city comedies-emerges as a powerful form of social criticism, interrogating the boundaries between need and deviance, relief and repression.

Readings will include (extracts from) William Shakespeare's 2 Henry VI, 2 Henry IV, King Lear, and Measure for Measure, Richard Brome's A Jovial Crew, as well as Thomas Nashe's Pierce Pennilesse, Thomas More's Utopia, and radical writings by Gerrard Winstanley and the Levellers, such as A Declaration from the Poor Oppressed People of England and The Laws of Freedom.

The course incorporates conceptual frameworks from new social history, disability studies, and gender studies. We will engage with recent critical interventions, including Jasbir Puar's The Right to Maim (2017), to examine how discourses of debility, capacity, and productivity shaped early modern ideas of economic and bodily worth.

This seminar is aimed at students interested in early modern literature, the history of social thought, and the intersections of culture, politics, and inequality. Together, we will consider how literature helped imagine-and sometimes resist-the emerging disciplinary logics of poverty and precarity.

Module Reading James Joyce's Ulysses
06SM440o502 / Module

Description:

General description:
Reviled and revered in equal measure, Ulysses remains controversial to this day: scandalous, funny, and perplexing; wildly innovative yet deeply moving. The novel was first serialized in Margaret Anderson and Jane Heap's The Little Review, but publication had to be halted after a U.S. court ruled the so-called "Nausicaa" chapter obscene. Thanks to Sylvia Beach - an American who ran an English-language bookshop in Paris - Joyce's modernist masterpiece managed to evade the censors, and the book version of Ulysses eventually appeared on February
1922, its author's
40th birthday.

For this colloquium, we will meet at the Zurich James Joyce Foundation (top floor of the building at Augustinergasse 9,
8001 Zurich) to read and discuss all eighteen chapters of Ulysses, focusing on such issues as the novel's correspondences with Homer's Odyssey, the historical context of early 20th-century Dublin, as well as the text's increasingly radical experiments in literary form. At the end of the semester, students will be able not only to detail why Ulysses is commonly considered the quintessentially modernist novel, but also to position themselves within some of the key critical debates surrounding Joyce's novel.

ECTS: 3

Notes:
This course takes place at the Zurich James Joyce Foundation (top floor of the historic Strauhof building at Augustinergasse

Learning Outcome:
Students will be able to: (a) define a set of theoretical concepts and/or research methods related to the topic of the colloquium on an advanced level; (b) discuss the usefulness and problems that arise from applying these concepts to particular literary and/or cultural texts (or groups of texts).

Module Language Acquisition across the Lifespan
06SM440o508 / Module

Description:

General description:
This course offers a strongly developmentally oriented perspective on the acquisition and use of more than a single language by individuals at different stages of life (notably early childhood, adolescence, young adulthood, mature adulthood and third age). We will examine universal, individual, and social sources of influence on the learning of additional languages across time as well as the development of early and late bi/multilingualism. These influences include (biological/starting) age; crosslinguistic influence; the linguistic environment; the non-linear development of learner language; individual learner differences such as language learning aptitude and motivation; and social dimensions of additional language learning. We will also discuss which best-evidence instructional principles and designs support the learning of a foreign language across the lifespan: in preschool, primary school, secondary school, university, and in adult language schools and third age colleges. The course thus builds on the interconnections between early and late bi/multilingualism and emphasizes the central role that cognition, society, and education play in shaping multiple-language learning.

ECTS: 9

Learning Outcome:
- Introduction to what is known about how different age groups successfully learn additional languages, with a focus on physiological, psychological, social-cultural and linguistic factors that affect second language acquisition, and on skills and strategies that promote language learning across the lifespan;
- differentiating between a developmental view of second language acquisition and a cohort-based approach, both methodologically and theoretically;
- gaining a better understanding of how the relative contribution of the different linguistic, cognitive and social-psychological processes described above change throughout life;
- being able to formulate research questions and apply appropriate research methods to investigate the complex and dynamic nature of L2 learning.

Module Middle English lexicon
06SM440o509 / Module

Description:

General description:
This MA seminar discusses historical lexicology (study of words), historical semantics (study of meanings) and historical lexicography (study of dictionaries) of the Middle English language, following three interrelated tracks of enquiry:

1. Middle English lexis in dictionaries (historical lexicography, dictionaries and databases of Middle English);
2. Semantic fields (histories of specific lexical items and semantic fields, myths and truths about specialized vocabulary, semantic change and lexical death);
3. Lexical sociolinguistics (lexical focusing, permeation and selection of lexical items, competition between native and borrowed vocabulary).

Theoretical and practical discussions will be accompanied by select readings and alalysis of Middle English texts.

ECTS: 9

Learning Outcome:
Students are able to develop their own research design on the basis of relevant theoretical and methodological literature, present this in class and develop their ideas and analyses into a research paper. They are able to critically reflect on their choice of method and theory and apply this in their data analysis.

Module Eve and Her Daughters in the 17th Century
06SM440o506 / Module

Description:

General description:
The story of the creation of Adam and Eve and their expulsion from the Garden of Eden because of the guile of a talking snake, is one of the most powerful origin myths in the long history of storytelling. It encourages us to ask fundamental questions about the created world and its creator, and the nature of men and women and their responsibility for the loss of Eden. Early commentators were quick to blame Eve for the Fall. Making use of misogynistic stereotypes, they cast her as morally defective from the start. Adam, they argued, was made in the image of God while Eve was made in Adam's image and was therefore inferior. He came first; she came second. She was made out of Adam's left rib and was therefore somehow innately crooked or sinister. She brought Original Sin into the world.

In seventeenth-century England, a period of intense political debate that would culminate in the Civil Wars and the beheading of a king, pamphleteers and poets revisited the story of the Fall to interrogate social hierarchies. Significantly, women now contributed to the debate in print. In this seminar we will explore Rachel Speght's and Ester Sowernam's prose defences of Eve, written in response to Joseph Swetnam's attack of 1615. This will serve as a context for the treatment of the Fall in the poetry of Speght, Aemilia Lanyer, and John Milton among others.
How did Eve's daughters and sons defend the mother of mankind?

Module Romantic Genius and Gender
06SM440o507 / Module

Description:

General description:
The figure of the genius poet - the exceptional individual who autonomously creates original works of art - is crucial to a discussion of Romanticism. This new model of solitary authorship has often been associated with masculinist positions. Male poets of the period often construct themselves as subjects and authors by objectifying femininity, imagining and sometimes even demonizing it as the radical Other. In some cases, their writing can also be seen to appropriate, usurp and absorb feminine features. These gendered structures have to be thought together with the shift from the so-called one-sex model to the two-sex model around 1800 and a consolidation of binary gender norms that remain influential today.

In order to trace these gender constructions, the seminar will examine a number of male poets and the ways in which they establish their cultural authority. Our primary focus, however, will be on the literary production of Romantic women authors such as Mary Wollstonecraft, Mary Wollstonecraft Shelley, Mary Robinson, Charlotte Smith, Dorothy Wordsworth, Anna Letitia Barbauld, Felicia Hemans, and Letitia Landon. How do these female writers constitute themselves as authors in the Romantic period? How do they gain a voice and visibility by reworking or rejecting the genius myth?

Discussing the "Corinne craze", we will explore how female authors rewrite the story of the visionary female genius Corinne, the heroine in Germaine de Staël's novel "Corinne, or Italy" (1807), and how in so doing, they reflect on their own authorship as women writers. Revisiting Mary Wollstonecraft Shelley's oeuvre, we will examine the ways in which she critiques certain notions of the male genius, whilst constructing herself as a different kind of author. Contemporary films such as "Bright Star" (2009) by Jane Campion and "Mary Shelley" (2017) by Haifaa al-Mansour will allow us to analyse how Romanticism and its women are reimagined today.

ECTS: 9

Learning Outcome:
Students are able to: (a) draw on an in-depth knowledge of a specific research topic or area in the field of literary and/or cultural studies; (b) show familiarity with both the current state of research and contemporary debates and issues in the respective area; (c) articulate complex viewpoints concering the respective seminar topic in an appropriate academic register.

Module Word classes and word formation
06SM440o510 / Module

Description:

General description:
Derivation via affix is not the only way of changing word classes in English. Nouns easily convert to verbs and vice versa.

Cringe starts off as a verb, as in I cringed at the sight of my dad dancing, and it coverts easily to a noun, as in It was a total cringe. The same form also is used as an adjective more recently, as in It would be so cringe! How does the word class shift happen?
The suffix
-ist derives abstract from more concrete nouns, as in artist, scientist, linguist, morphologist, journalist. Many
-ist nouns then also have adjectival use, for instance, I do not take an unduly alarmist view of the situation; It is very elitist and narrow, and comes from a sloppy concensus that I abhor; The Statement is rather minimalist and deliberately short on details. For systematic N>A shifts, can we consider
-ist also an adjective-forming suffix?

In this seminar, we are looking at word formation processes and word classes. Students are welcome to work on any word class and/or word formation process for their own project.

ECTS: 9

Learning Outcome:
Students are able to develop their own research design on the basis of relevant theoretical and methodological literature, present this in class and develop their ideas and analyses into a research paper. They are able to critically reflect on their choice of method and theory and apply this in their data analysis.

Module CHE 728 Optical and Vibrational Spectroscopy
07SMCHE728 / Lecture with Practical Exercises

Description:

General description:
This course introduces the fundamental principles and applications of vibrational and optical spectroscopies. Building from the basics of light–matter interaction, students will learn both theoretical foundations and experimental methods, covering Raman, infrared, photoluminescence (PL), time-resolved PL, transient absorption, terahertz (THz) spectroscopy, and cathodoluminescence (CL) spectroscopy. The course combines lectures with demonstration sessions and practical examples, showing how these techniques are applied to solve challenges in materials science, health and life sciences, energy, and the environment.

ECTS: 2

Learning Outcome:
- Explain the theoretical foundations of Raman, IR, PL, time-resolved PL, transient absorption, THz spectroscopy, and CL.
- Understand instrumentation and measurement principles of vibrational and optical spectroscopies.
- Interpret experimental spectra and connect features with structural, electronic, and dynamical properties of materials.
- Select appropriate spectroscopic methods for different research questions in materials, health, energy, and environmental science.
- Critically analyze published data and discuss the advantages and limitations of different techniques.

Module Short Internship: The Art Collection of the Zurich James Joyce Foundation
06SM440o513 / Module

Description:

General description:
The Zurich James Joyce Foundation hosts one of the world's most important collections on the Irish modernist James Joyce. In addition to books and other types of texts, the Foundation also has a unique collection of posters, photographs, and artworks.
At the start of their internship, students will be given a short introduction into the history and activities of the Foundation. They will also be given material that will help them gain a basic overview of the life and works of James Joyce. However, the main aim of this short internship project is for the students to assist the Foundation team in creating an illustrated inventory of the artworks in the Foundation's collection.

Tasks will include:
taking high-quality pictures of the artworks; researching information on the creators and the artworks in question; identifying gaps in the information available; defining a set of keywords that will make it easier to locate individual works;presenting one piece of art on the Foundation's website.

In addition, students may be asked to assist members of the team during public events, readings, etc..

ECTS: 3

Notes:
How to Apply (Deadline January 21st): The application dossier (in one single PDF) should contain:
a letter of motivation (1 to 2 pages)
a short CV Bachelor diploma
Last semester transcript

Please send the application dossier to to englishstudies@es.uzh.ch and martin.muehlheim@joycefoundation.ch.

Students must also apply to the module via the booking system.

Learning Outcome:
After the internship, students will be able to:
outline James Joyce's life and works, including their broader significancewithin the modernist canon; list the main aims and activities of the Zurich James Joyce Foundation; provide an overview of the Foundation's art collection; contextualize some of these works of art; create a website entry on a piece of art inspired by Joyce.

Module Advanced Studies in Anglophone Cultural Studies: Graphic Violence: Portraying the Northern Ireland Conflict in
06SM440o516 / Module

Description:

General description:
Between the late 1960s and the mid 1990s, Northern Ireland was the site of a bloody conflict that sometimes spilled beyond its borders, extending to the rest of the island, neighbouring Britain and even mainland Europe. Euphemistically called the 'Troubles', this violence between those loyal to the British crown and those who aspired to a United Ireland resulted in the deaths of almost 3,500 people, at the hands of paramilitaries, local police, and the British army, the last of which had originally been deployed in the area to restore order.

Despite the tragic human toll, the Northern Ireland conflict proved to be "a thriller writer's dream" (Pelaschiar 1998: 19), spawning its own literary and film genre, the Troubles thriller. This genre also made its way into comic books, with superheroes such as Spider-Man, Daredevil, Green Arrow and the Punisher all becoming embroiled in the conflict over the years. More recently, comics narratives on the Troubles have expanded beyond the thriller genre, however, with graphic novels based on real-life figures such as Bobby Sands also being published.

Although a good deal has been written on the literary and cinematic portrayals of the Troubles, there have been comparatively few studies on the conflict in comics. Thus, this module will examine the representation of this tumultuous period in Northern Ireland's history in comic books and graphic novels.

It will begin by looking briefly at the background to the Troubles, before offering an overview of how the conflict has been represented in other media. Then, using close reading, it will identify common tropes in the comic book depictions of the Troubles, particularly focusing on how the various factions in the conflict are shown, whether the comics take sides with particular groups, and how the portrayals vary over time or depending on the country in which they were published.

ECTS: 3

Learning Outcome:
"After having completed this module, students will be able to:

-explain the causes and consequences of the conflict in Northern Ireland
-employ multi-modal analysis to conduct close readings of comic books

-conduct diachronic and synchronic analysis of comics depending on year and place of publication
-discern whether comics are biased in their portrayal of a particular side in the conflict

Module Advanced Studies in Anglophone Cultural Studies: Cultural Studies with Stuart Hall: What is common sense?
06SM440o515 / Module

Description:

General description:
Stuart Hall (1932-2014) is a one of the most prominent and influential figures in the field of Anglophone cultural theory. A founder of the Birmingham Centre for Contemporary Cultural Studies, Hall authored some of the most penetrating and farsighted analyses of the conservative turn in British politics and culture under Thatcher. This early work retains its force today, providing theoretical resources for understanding contemporary debates about race, migration, policing, and "woke-ism." One such resource--a keystone of Hall's version of Cultural Studies--is a particular conception of common sense.

In this MA course we will explore Hall's account of common sense. The first half of the course will be devoted to Hall's theory and the role the term plays in Hall's writing on popular culture, media, and politics. The second half of the course will turn to the present: students will draw on Hall's example to analyse invocations of common sense in contemporary Anglophone culture.

ECTS: 3

Notes:
This LSC seminar puts a strong emphasis on writing. A considerable portion of class time will be devoted to low-stakes, writing-to-learn exercises that encourage critical thinking about the course materials and develop skills central to argumentative and analytical writing.
The writing skills we will be honing in class are directly transferable to long research paper that students are required to produce in the module Writing Skills for Research, which makes this seminar an excellent precursor to that course.

Learning Outcome:
After having completed this module, students will have acquired (broken down according to Anne Beaufort's taxonomy):

- Subject matter knowledge: They will possess a nuanced understanding of the role common sense plays in Stuart Hall's analysis of social formations, having connected Hall's development of the notion to their own experience and having used it to analyze various contemporary cultural forms.

- Genre knowledge: They will know how to embed their writing within specific academic genres (open & exploratory as well as closed& thesis-governed), how to address it to particular audiences (specialists, fellow students, lay readers), and how to adapt it to serve different rhetorical purposes (to inform, to analyze, to persuade, to reflect).

- Writing process knowledge: They will know how to breakdown long writing projects into stages, sections, and drafts. They will have refined the writing skills needed for each of these components, including revision and metacognitive reflection.

- Rhetorical knowledge: They will have tightened their command of the rhetorical forms of academic writing. They will be able to develop, test, and refine thesis statements know how to forecast the structure of complex written arguments, and execute key moves of argumentative and analytical prose (the "for example move," the "division into parallel parts move", the "comparison/contrast move," etc.).

- Discourse community knowledge: They will be able to situate Hall's theorization of common sense within the history of Anglophone Cultural Studies, to weigh the criticisms to which Hall's use of the term has been subjected, and to assess its continued relevance for the discipline.

Languages of Instruction:
Englisch

Merkmale:	Target Group: Suitable for English Speakers
Responsible instructor:	Philip Gerard

Requirements:

Prerequisites:	Students are required to have English language skills of at least C1 level and to have experience using English as a medium of academic discourse.
Assessment:	A learning portfolio consisting of "open" (exploratory) and "closed" (argument-driven) writing. All writing will be done in class. The texts that the students produce will not be graded, but they will provide a basis for discussion of the course materials and writing skills. To receive a passing grade for the module, students must complete a minimum number of writing tasks by the end of the semester. For example, if there are 10 written tasks over the course of the semester, then a student's learning portfolio must include at least 7 written responses by the end of the semester to earn a pass. ---

Description:

General description:
The linguists collaborating in the VARIAGE project (with Prof. Simone Pfenninger as the principal investigator) aim to study educational and occupational transitions across the lifespan, with an emphasis on retirement as a socially determined and linguistically constructed concept that is shaped by changing cultural meanings and individuals' lived experiences. In order to identify dis/continuity patterns in cognitive functioning and L1/L2 use and learning pre- and post-retirement, we bring together a range of perspectives regarding (1) original research agendas and (2) innovative methodological approaches, notably from the fields of second language acquisition, psycho-, socio- and neurolinguistics. We also focus on producing workable and replicable research designs in uncharted territories and identifying ways of how alternatives to conventional research methodologies can be operationalized.

VARIAGE is designed as an observational micro-development study including approx.
40 older L1 German learners of English as a foreign language (EFL) in Zurich, each of them observed in 30 consecutive waves before and after retirement over a period of 24 months (2023-2025). We are currently looking for interns who support us during the data analysis phase.

ECTS: 6

Notes:
Applying for the internship:

- Book the module in the module-booking system.
- Include a letter of motivation detailing your interest in the VARIAGE project, which should be uploaded directly when booking the module.

Learning Outcome:
After having completed this module, you will...

- be familiar with the work carried out in the VARIAGE project;
- have gained insight into the organisational structure, tasks, the lines of communication, the workload, the organisational culture and the atmosphere within our research team;
- have learned the value of the theoretical foundation you gained during your studies and how to apply it;
- have gained experience with performing research in SLA and psycholinguistics;
- have gained insights into working empirically with linguistic data,
e.g. coding data from L1 and L2 tasks;
- have an understanding of how quantitative and qualitative methods of analysis can be applied to intensive longitudinal data.

Languages of Instruction:
Englisch

Merkmale:

Responsible instructor: Simone Pfenninger

Requirements:

Prerequisites: - Successful completion of the module 'Methods and Theories'.

- Enrolled in the MA degree.
- For BA students: (1) successful completion of the module 'Methods and Theories', (2) 120 ECTS under your belt, (3) must not have exceeded 30 ECTS of the MA degree.
- Please also indicate your language proficiency in English and German, as well as any other additional languages.

Assessment:	Documented practical work; tasks include - assisting with the data collection (e.g. psycholinguistic experiments administered to, and sociolinguistic interviews conducted with, older adults); - assisting with the organization of the L2 intervention (EFL instruction for older adults); - communicating with informants; - contributing to the preparation and processing of data; - assisting with administrative duties. After having completed this module, you will... - be familiar with the work carried out in the VARIAGE project; - have gained insight into the organisational structure, tasks, the lines of communication, the workload, the organisational culture and the atmosphere within our research team; - have learned the value of the theoretical foundation you gained during your studies and how to apply it; - have gained experience with performing research in SLA and psycholinguistics; - have gained insights into working empirically with linguistic data, e.g. coding data from L1 and L2 tasks; - have an understanding of how quantitative and qualitative methods of analysis can be applied to intensive longitudinal data. ---

Module Witches. popular imaginations and narratives
06SM506o004 / Module

Description:

General description:
Was ist eine Hexe? Antworten reichen von der Märchenhexe, die als hässliche Frau mit einer schwarzen Katze erscheint, über die als Hexen verunglimpften Personen - nicht nur weiblichen Geschlechts -, die sich in den frühneuzeitlichen Hexenprozessen beschuldigt sahen, über romantisch angehauchte Bilder der Hexen als Angehörige eines vorchristlichen Kultes hin zur Hexe als positives Rollenmodell für Frauen. Ikonographisch reicht der Bezug an frühneuzeitlichen Bildern im Stile Hans Baldung Griens über viktimisierende Hexenverfolgungsdarstellung des 19. Jahrhunderts bis hin zu auf Glamour gestylten Hexen auf WitchTok.
Die Veranstaltung will diesen unterschiedlichen Hexenbildern und ihrer jeweiligen Genese anhand wissenschaftlicher Texte, fiktionalen Bearbeitungen, Filmen, Serien und Social Media nachgehen.

Notes:
In den thematischen Seminaren dieser Modulgruppe beschäftigen sich Studierende und Dozierende gemeinsam mit spezifischen Themen im Bereich der Populären Literaturen und Medien. Im ersten Semester finden wöchentliche Sitzungen mit Referaten, Inputs und Diskussionen statt. Im zweiten Semester verfassen die Studierenden selbständig eine schriftliche Arbeit. In Ausnahmefällen (z.B. Mobilität, Abschluss des Studiums) kann das Modul nach Rücksprache mit den Dozierenden bereits nach einem Semester abgeschlossen werden.

Learning Outcome:
Die Studierenden haben einen Überblick über ein spezifisches Themenfeld der Populären Literaturen und Medien, entwickeln eine eigene Fragestellung auf Basis von Fachliteratur und können diese diskutieren und präsentieren. Sie können eine wissenschaftliche Arbeit zu ihrem Thema verfassen.

06SM506o001 / Module

Description:

General description:
Ein Überfluss an Zeichen und Kommunikation zeichnet unseren Alltag aus. Wir gehen im Semi-nar auf eine Reise durch Raum und Zeit. Wir analysieren Schnittstellen und Interdependenzen: Von Urban Art, über Graffiti, Memes zu postdigitalen Trends. Wir (unter-)suchen Aneignungs-prozesse in digitalen und alltäglichen Räumen: Wie beeinflussen digitale Repräsentationen von Ordnung und Unordnung unser Bild von Urbanität? Welche Innovationen gehen von jugendkul-turellen Codierungsmustern zum Beispiel bei Hip Hop-Videos oder Memes aus? Wie lassen sich aktuelle Bedürfnisse nach Digital Detox und Privatheit konzeptionell fassen? Wie verändern KI und digitale Introspektion zu Mental Health unsere Identitäten? Wie formen Techfirmen und künstliche Intelligenz die Arbeitswelten? Im Seminar erarbeiten wir Konzepte, Begriffe und me-thodische Grundlagen sowohl für literatur- als auch für forschungsbasierte Seminararbeiten. Be-standteil des Leistungsnachweises ist eine kurze Videoarbeit, die die Studierenden selbstständig oder in Kleingruppen durchführen.

Module Common ground: Cultural analytical approaches to landscapes
06SM506o003 / Module

Description:

General description:
Was für eine Aussicht! Irgendwo zwischen Hochspannungsleitungen, Autobahnraststätten und Betonblöcken gerieren sich touristische Erlebniswelten, Naherholungsgebiete und Parkanlagen als Residuen einer «unberührten Natur». Dieses durch den beschleunigten Raumwandel derletzten Jahrzehnte forcierte Neben- und Durcheinander ist aus kulturwissenschaftlicher Sicht äusserst aufschlussriech, da es laufend neue Un/Ordnungen, Ungleichzeitigkeiten und Uneindeutigkeiten hervorbringt, in denen sich gesellschaftliche (Umwelt-)Verhältnisse exemplarisch verdichten. Um sie festmachen zu können, offeriert das Seminar ein relationales, breites Verständnis von «Landschaft», dasscheinbare Polaritäten wie Stadt und Land, Natur und Kultur, Stofflichkeit und Repräsentation aufbricht. Davon ausgehend fragt es danach, wie wir Landschaften kulturtheoretisch fassen, ihre konkreten soziomateriellen Dispositionen ethnografisch beschreiben und die sie durchdringenden Diskurse analysieren und historisieren können.

Module Summer School Ethnographic Film WATERWATER
06SM506o403 / Module

Description:

General description:
Der Einsatz des ethnografischen Films als Forschungsmethode hat Tradition am ISEK - Populäre Kulturen. Die Summer School bietet eine konzentrierte zweiwöchige Einführung, vermittelt Grundlagen technischer und künstlerischer Art und erlaubt es den Studierenden, einen Film von 5-10 Minuten herzustellen und diesen an einer abschliessenden Filmpremiere Interessierten vorzustellen. Gearbeitet wird in Gruppen von drei bis vier Studierenden. Gemeinsames Thema der entstehenden Filme ist Wasser.

Wasser ist nicht nur überlebenswichtiges Element, wirtschaftlich genutzte Ressource und Lebensraum für viele Tiere und Pflanzen, sondern auch ein symbolisch und poetisch aufgeladener gesellschaftlicher (Be-)Deutungsgegenstand, Begegnungs- und Aushandlungsraum sowie Austragungsort politischer, ethischer und gestalterischer Debatten. Entlang von Wasser und Gewässern lassen sich viele Geschichten über Kultur und Gesellschaft erzählen.

ECTS: 6

Notes:
In der Summer School Ethnografischer Film realisieren die Studierenden unter Anleitung eigene Kurzfilme. Diese werden anschliessend öffentlich präsentiert.

Anmeldung: Alle interessierten Studierenden reichen bis zum 20. März eine individuelle Ideenskizze ein, per Mail an rahel.grunder@uzh.ch. Die ausgewählten Ideenskizzen werden bis zum 8. Mai durch die Gruppen in Projektskizzen ausgearbeitet. Das Merkblatt zur Ideen- und Projektskizze findet sich unter dem Link: https://www.isek.uzh.ch/dam/jcr:a4de9f1a-4285-4adb-9ebe-95bf097a7979/Summerschool_Merkblatt_Skizzen_2026.pdf

Die Ideen- und Projektskizzen sind Voraussetzung für die Teilnahme an den vorbereitenden Veranstaltungen am 24. März und 12. Mai sowie an der Summer School.

Wir raten dazu, ein filmisches Porträt über eine Person zu machen. Beispiele von Filmen, die während der Summer School entstanden sind, finden sich unter: www.isek.uzh.ch/de/populärekulturen/forschung/stud/summerschool.html (https://www.isek.uzh.ch/de/popul%C3%A4rekulturen/forschung/stud/summerschool.html)

Unterrichtsmaterialien:
Kamerasets und Schnittplätze werden zur Verfügung gestellt. Gedreht wird in HD, geschnitten auf Final Cut X.

Learning Outcome:
Die Studierenden verfügen über praktische Kenntnisse in der Realisierung eines ethnografischen Films.

Module Urban Studies: Approaches from Ethnography and Cultural Analysis
06SM506o401 / Module

Description:

General description:
Städte machen kulturellen und sozialen Wandel nicht nur sichtbar, sie treiben ihn auch voran. Sie sind geprägt von den Menschen, die in ihnen leben - und umgekehrt. Sozial- und Kulturwissenschaftler:innen haben das Urbane deshalb immer wieder als Labor verstanden, in dem sich solche Zusammenhänge untersuchen lassen.
Die Vorlesung führt in die ethnographische und kulturanalytische Forschungspraxis und ihre Methoden und Geschichte ein. Themen u.a.: Stadt- und Urbanitätsbegriffe; 'innere' Urbanisierung; urbane Diversität und Ungleichheit; Städte als Mosaiken kleinräumlicher Welten/Milieus; als Bühnen und Begegnungsorte; als analog-digital zusammengesetzte Räume; als Schauplätze von stadt-ethischen Initiativen und politischen Konflikten; als Palimpseste von widerstreitenden Erinnerungen; als «kulturelle Individuen».

ECTS: 3

Notes:
Thematische Vorlesungen dieser Modulgruppe dienen der konzentrierten Wissensvermittlung zu einem spezifischen Gegenstand der Alltagskulturen.

Learning Outcome:
Die Studierenden haben Kenntnisse zu einem spezifischen Teilbereich der Alltagskulturen, zu Forschungsgeschichte, aktuellen Debatten und zentralen Thesen.

Module The Monster and Us: Monstrous Figures and Visions of the Future in Film
06SM506o005 / Module

Description:

General description:
Ausserirdische Gestalten, blutrünstige Zombies oder liebenswürdige Hybridwesen. Manchmal sind sie die Rettung, meist eine Gefahr für die Menschheit. Aus einer kulturwissenschaftlichen Perspektive beschäftigen wir uns mit monströsen Figuren und Zukunftsvorstellungen im populären Kino - von Alien (1979) über Avatar (2009) bis hin zu Poor Things (2023).
Wir lesen unterschiedlichste Texte über populärkulturelle Zukunftsvorstellungen und kulturwissenschaftliche Zukunftsforschungen. Die Filme verstehen wir demnach nicht nur als Projektionsflächen und Ausdruck aktueller ausserfilmischer Ängste und Auseinandersetzungen. Wir betrachten sie auch als populärkulturellen Versuch, die erfahrene Gegenwart sowie mögliche Zukünfte zu verstehen, verhandeln und verändern. Wir fragen zudem, wie die Figur des Monsters als das 'Andere' und als Angriff auf die 'Normalität' sowohl normativeWirkungen als auch kritisch-progressives Potential entfalten kann.

ECTS: 6

Notes:
In den thematischen Seminaren dieser Modulgruppe beschäftigen sich Studierende und Dozierende gemeinsam mit spezifischen Themen im Bereich der Populären Literaturen und Medien. Im ersten Semester finden wöchentliche Sitzungen mit Referaten, Inputs und Diskussionen statt. Im zweiten Semester verfassen die Studierenden selbständig eine schriftliche Arbeit. In Ausnahmefällen (z.B. Mobilität, Abschluss des Studiums) kann das Modul nach Rücksprache mit den Dozierenden bereits nach einem Semester abgeschlossen werden.

Learning Outcome:
Die Studierenden haben einen Überblick über ein spezifisches Themenfeld der Populären Literaturen und Medien, entwickeln eine eigene Fragestellung auf Basis von Fachliteratur und können diese diskutieren und präsentieren. Sie können eine wissenschaftliche Arbeit zu ihrem Thema verfassen.

Module Student Colloquium: Love Representations & Dating in the Age of Technological Reproducibility, Intimacy b
06SM506o404 / Module

Description:

General description:
This colloquium explores how romantic relationships and desire are shaped within digital spaces, focusing on how the structure of these platforms influences everyday practices of intimacy. We will look at how identity markers and performances are embedded in the use of dating apps, and how these platforms facilitate new forms of self-presentation and emotional interaction. Core topics include the gamification of desire, the aesthetics and politics of self-portrayal, and the economic dynamics driving digital romance. The course also investigates the influence of pop culture formats such as dating shows and platforms like Instagram, as well as regulatory phenomena like digital sisterhoods. The course questions how intimacy is potentially shifted reshaped through and within digital environments.

ECTS: 3

Notes:
Studentische Kolloquien werden von Masterstudierenden für Bachelorstudierende konzipiert und durchgeführt. Gemeinsam werden Texte zu einem bestimmten Thema intensiv gelesen und diskutiert.

Module Making. Urban. Waters: Reimagining Urban Ecologies with More-than-Human Actors at Platzspitz
06SM506o402 / Module

Description:

General description:
Anhand einer theoretisch-konzeptuellen Diskussion von Forschungsliteratur zu Mensch-Umwelt-Beziehungen und Stadtanthropologie (Tag 1) sowie einer immersiv-künstlerischen Auseinandersetzung mit der Baustelle am Platzspitz (Tag 1-3) beschäftigen wir uns in diesem Workshop mit der Frage, wie Stadt(-natur), wie Nachhaltigkeit, wie Sicherheit, wie Vielfalt, wie Zukunft heute in Zürich entlang des Flusses Limmat von menschlichen und mehr-als-menschlichen Agierenden (z.B. Fische, Algen, Kapitalströme, Technologien, Sound, Infrastrukturen, Gesetze, Klima, uvm.) gemeinsam “gemacht” wird. Im Rahmen eines kommentierten Rundgangs entlang eigens durch die Teilnehmenden geschaffener Installationen und einer performativen Sitzung im Sinne eines “Parlaments der Dinge/ Spezies” diskutieren und imaginieren wir zum Abschluss (Tag 3) auf pluriperspektivische und spekulative Weise, wer und was alles wie an diesem gemeinsamen Hervorbringungsprozess beteiligt ist und wie wir das “Machen” von Stadt(-natur) verstehen und vielleicht sogar beeinflussen können.

Module Foucault and Cultural Studies
06SM506o501 / Module

Description:

General description:
Welche neuen Machttechniken und Regierungsweisen entstehen (und warum), wie prägen sie den Alltag, und welche Widerstände erzeugen sie? Foucaults Analysen dieser und anderer Fragen haben längst Klassiker-Status in den Geistes- und Sozialwissenschaften; der französische Theoretiker zeigte, wie sich die Lebens- und Wissensformen der Gegenwart als kontingente Produkte einer von Macht geprägten Geschichte begreifen lassen. In den letzten Jahren haben neue «Post-Truth»-Diskurse von rechts (die in Teilen an Foucaults Hinterfragung von Wahrheitskonzepten anzuschliessen scheinen) und die verbreitete Rückkehr zu vermeintlichen Gewissheiten aber auch neue Kritik an diesem Autor hervorgerufen.
Vor diesem Hintergrund sollen im Seminar sowohl Foucault-Texte als auch empirisch-kulturwissenschaftlichen Studien gelesen und diskutiert werden, die an seine Begriffe, Denkfiguren, Fragestellungen anschliessen, u.a. mit Blick auf Macht und Widerstand; Gouvernementalität und Neoliberalismus; Ethiken und Techniken des Selbst; Subjektivierungsweisen; Biopolitik, Rassismus und Migration.

ECTS: 6

Notes:
Der «Lektürekurs Kulturtheorien» greift wissenschaftliche Debatten auf, zu denen einschlägige Texte gelesen, diskutiert und reflektiert werden.

Module Subcultures in the Archive – Critically researching digital sources
06SM506o002 / Module

Description:

General description:
Das Seminar setzt sich theoretisch wie methodisch-praktisch mit Archivforschung am Beispiel von Quellen aus subkulturellen Feldern auseinander. Auf Basis von Konzepten der Archiv- und Subkulturtheorien führen die Teilnehmenden eigenständige Recherchen und quellenkritische Analysen von (digitalen) Dokumenten aus einem selbst gewählten Fallbeispiel durch.

Wir gehen dabei von einem weiten Archivbegriff aus, der sowohl institutionelle Archive als auch weitere digitale Sammel- und Speicherpraktiken umfassen kann. "Subkultur" - teils im Kontext von jugendlichen Gegen-, oder Alternativkulturen oder einfach als Szene verstanden - ist ein ambivalentes Kulturkonzept, das sich auf gesellschaftliche Teilkulturen bezieht, die sich mehr oder weniger durch eigene Regeln und Merkmale von Mehrheitskulturen unterscheiden.

ECTS: 6

Notes:
In den thematischen Seminaren dieser Modulgruppe beschäftigen sich Studierende und Dozierende gemeinsam mit spezifischen Themen im Bereich der Alltagskulturen. Im ersten Semester finden wöchentliche Sitzungen mit Referaten, Inputs und Diskussionen statt. Im zweiten Semester verfassen die Studierenden selbständig eine schriftliche Arbeit. In Ausnahmefällen (z.B. Mobilität, Abschluss des Studiums) kann das Modul nach Rücksprache mit den Dozierenden bereits nach einem Semester abgeschlossen werden.

Learning Outcome:
Die Studierenden haben einen Überblick über ein spezifisches Themenfeld der Alltagskulturen, entwickeln eine eigene Fragestellung auf Basis von Fachliteratur und können diese diskutieren und präsentieren. Sie können eine wissenschaftliche Arbeit zu ihrem Thema verfassen.

Module “Après Ski?” Contributions from social sciences and humanities to climate change in the Alps
06SM506o502 / Module

Description:

General description:
Der menschengemachte Klimawandel ist eine der grossen Herausforderungen, die auch in einem globalen Massstab die Kultur- und Sozialwissenschaften zusehends beschäftigen. In den Alpen als einem von den Folgen der Erwärmung besonders betroffenen Gebiet, das zudem politisch und kulturell besonders aufgeladen und eng mit seinem Umfeld verflochten ist, hat dies zu einer Intensivierung der entsprechenden Forschung in einem breiten Fächerspektrum geführt. Das Seminar sichtet und diskutiert wichtige Grundlagentexte und ausgewählte aktuelle Arbeiten, die sich mit dem Umgang mit den Auswirkungen des Klimawandels im Alpenraum beschäftigen - es geht dabei etwa um Gletscher und Identität, um den Umgang mit Naturgefahren und Zielkonflikte im Zusammenhang verschiedener Anpassungsleistungen oder auch um Veränderungen im Wintertourismus und Erfahrungen der Solastalgie in der Land- und Alpwirtschaft. Auch die theoretischen und methodischen Herausforderungen für eine kulturwissenschaftliche Forschung unter den Bedingungen des Anthropozäns sollen systematisch thematisiert werden. Neben Lektüren und Diskussionen wird das Seminar auch den direkten Austausch mit aktuell auf diesem Gebiet Forschenden ermöglichen.

ECTS: 6

Notes:
In den «Thematischen Lektürekursen Alltagskulturen» steht die gemeinsame reflexive Auseinandersetzung mit spezifischen Themen, Theorien und Phänomenen im Zentrum.

Learning Outcome:
Die Studierenden kennen spezifische Forschungsfelder der Kulturwissenschaft des Alltags. Sie entwickeln gemeinsam eine Diskussionskultur fortgeschrittenen analytischen Argumentierens und Reflektierens.

Module Cultural Analysis of Acceleration and Politics of Time: An Introduction to Accelerationist Theories
06SM506o503 / Module

Description:

General description:
Das Vertiefungsseminar führt in zentrale theoretische Debatten um temporale Strukturen der Moderne ein. Ausgehend von zeitdiagnostischen Ansätzen (u.a. Hartmut Rosa, Armen Avanessian), die moderne Gesellschaften durch dynamische Steigerungslogiken, Beschleunigungserfahrungen und Zukunftsfixierung charakterisieren, widmen wir uns der kritischen Auseinandersetzung mit dem Akzelerationismus als vielschichtige wissenschaftliche und politische Strömung.
Wir untersuchen unterschiedliche Spielarten des Akzelerationismus: von reaktionär-destruktiven über emanzipatorisch-linke bis hin zu feministischen und xenofuturistischen Positionen. Gemeinsam ist diesen, dass sie Beschleunigung nicht allein als Problem, sondern auch als taktische Möglichkeit begreifen - sei es zur Überwindung des Kapitalismus, zur Radikalisierung technologischer Entwicklung oder zur Dekonstruktion normativer Subjektivitätsformen.

ECTS: 6

Notes:
Die Seminare auf Masterstufe dienen der Spezialisierung und der theoretischen Vertiefung des Fachwissens im Bereich Kulturwissenschaft Populärer Literaturen und Medien. Die Studierenden werden zu theoretisch und methodisch reflektierten Analysen und Interpretationen angeleitet. Im ersten Semester finden wöchentliche Sitzungen mit Referaten, Inputs und Diskussionen statt. Im zweiten Semester verfassen die Studierenden selbständig eine schriftliche Arbeit. In Ausnahmefällen (z. B. Mobilität, Abschluss des Studiums) kann das Modul nach Rücksprache mit den Dozierenden bereits nach einem Semester abgeschlossen werden.

Learning Outcome:
Studierende können populäre Literaturen und Medien kulturwissenschaftlich analysieren sowie historisch und theoretisch kontextualisieren. Sie verfügen über vertiefte Kenntnisse kulturwissenschaftlich-narratologischer Analyseverfahren.

Module STA462 SRMAWS: Systematic Review and Meta-Analysis Winter School
07SMSTA462 / Block Course

Description:

General description:
This two-week research-based course teaches participants how to independently conduct a systematic review with or without meta-analysis. A systematic review is a structured summary of the literature on a specific research question using explicit, transparent methods.
The course covers all key steps: formulating a review question, protocol development and registration, comprehensive literature searches, study screening using dedicated software, data extraction, critical appraisal (risk of bias), synthesis of findings, and meta-analysis. Participants will also learn how to report and publish their results. The use of AI tools in the review process will be addressed.
Participants are expected to work on their own review topics. The course combines theoretical input with practical sessions and tutor support. The aim is for participants to gather the necessary material and skills to complete their reviews independently after the course.

ECTS: 3

Notes:
Room: HIT E03

Registration: via email to marianna.rosso@uzh.ch

Registration deadline: 21.12.2025

Numbers of participants limited to 16, priority is given to UZH students

Learning Outcome:
Participants gain the competence and confidence to independently plan, conduct, and complete a systematic review, with targeted support during key methodological steps.

Target Groups:
Students enrolled in the Master's program in Biostatistics, as well as Bachelor's and Master's students from other life science disciplines such as (bio)medicine, biology, or pharmacology.

PhD students in Epidemiology and Biostatistics

Merkmale:	Target Group: Suitable for English Speakers
Responsible instructor:	Leonhard Held

Requirements:

Prior Knowledge:	Knowledge approximately equivalent to the fall and spring semester compulsory courses of the Master Program in Biostatistics, especially STA 425 Survival Analysis resp. STA 406 Likelihood & Regression II
Assessment:	Submission of systematic review protocol, prepare and hold a short presentation (english)
Grading Scale:	Pass/Fail
Repeatability:	Can be repeated once

Module Focus on People: Understanding Society through Science
10SMSTSo100 / Module

Description:

General description:
Die Ringvorlesung "Fokus Menschen: Wie Wissenschaft die Gesellschaft erforscht" bietet einen umfassenden Einblick in die Bevölkerungsforschung an der Universität Zürich. Sie zeigt Forschung, die direkt mit Menschen arbeitet, etwa durch Befragungen, Interviews, klinische Studien oder Langzeitbeobachtungen. Vorgestellt werden aktuelle Projekte aus historischer Demografie, Gesundheitsforschung und der Analyse gesellschaftlicher Einstellungen. Die Vorlesung zeigt, wie interdisziplinäre Forschung über, für und gemeinsam mit der Bevölkerung gestaltet wird. Ein Schwerpunkt liegt auf Langzeitstudien, die Teilnehmende zum Teil über viele Jahre begleiten. Die Vorträge machen deutlich, wie Vielfalt in Alter, Herkunft, Geschlecht und politischen Erfahrungen in die Forschung einfliesst.

ECTS: 3

Learning Outcome:
Nach Abschluss der Vorlesung sind die Teilnehmenden in der Lage:
1. Die Vielfalt aktueller bevölkerungsbezogener Forschungsansätze an der UZH zu benennen und einzuordnen.
2. Zentrale Konzepte, Methoden und ethische Fragen der Bevölkerungsforschung zu verstehen.
3. Gesellschaftliche Herausforderungen wie Gesundheit, Digitalisierung, und Diversität aus Forschungsperspektive zu reflektieren.
4. Unterschiede und Gemeinsamkeiten interdisziplinärer Studien kritisch zu analysieren (Sozialwissenschaften, Medizin, etc.).
5. Den Wert von Langzeitstudien für wissenschaftliche und gesellschaftliche Entwicklungen zu beurteilen.
6. Die Bedeutung einer inklusiven, verantwortungsvollen Forschung im Dialog mit der Bevölkerung zu erkennen.

Target Groups:
BA, MA, PhD

Languages of Instruction:

Merkmale:

Responsible instructor: Seraina Rüegger

Requirements:

Assessment: Der Leistungsnachweis besteht aus einem Diskussionsbeitrag und einem Essay. Diskussionsbeitrag: Jede*r Studierende bereitet zu einer Veranstaltung drei Fragen vor, die im Anschluss an den Vortrag als Diskussionsanstoss verwendet werden. Die Fragen sollen zeigen, dass sich die Studierenden kritisch mit dem Thema und der Literatur auseinandergesetzt haben. Die Beiträge können entweder
1. eine Frage formulieren,
2. eine Kritik äussern oder
3. einen Verbesserungsvorschlag machen. Die Diskussionsbeiträge sind jeweils zum Termin der Veranstaltung schriftlich einzureichen. Dabei ist es ausdrücklich erwünscht, die Beiträge aus der Perspektive der eigenen Fachrichtung zu verfassen. Die Themenverteilung erfolgt in der ersten Sitzung.

Essay: Kritische Auseinandersetzung mit einem frei gewählten Thema aus der Vorlesung. Umfang ca. 2.000 Wörter, mit klarer Argumentationsstruktur, Einbindung relevanter Literatur (mind. 5 wissenschaftliche Quellen, davon 2 aus der Pflichtlektüre) und einheitlicher Zitation. Abgabe als PDF bis 31.5.2026.

Module Beyond Carbon: Debating the Future
10SMSTSo101 / Module

Description:

General description:
In this interactive lecture series, students discuss key issues relating to decarbonisation with experts from academia, politics and practice: What are the biggest hurdles on the path to climate neutrality and what solutions are already available today? The format combines short keynote speeches with open debates, group work and international exchange. The aim is to jointly develop practical strategies and position the University of Zurich as an active contributor to global climate transformation.

The seminar aims to:

- Facilitate a multi-disciplinary dialogue on decarbonization challenges and solutions
- Actively engage students as part and driver of the decarb UZH strategic project
- Create tangible value for participants in the form of a sustainability micro-credential
- Post-process the discussions into accessible formats to maximize reach and impact

ECTS: 3

Notes:
This lecture series will be an online format. The module will feature contributions from distinguished experts, including: Prof. Dr. Katarina Michaelowa, Prof. Dr. Michael Coors, Prof. Dr. sc. nat. Michael Schaepman, Prof. Dr. Hans-Joachim Voth, Prof. Ralph Ossa, Prof. Gabriele Siegert, Prof. Bjarne Steffen, Prof. Nadine Strauss, and Linde Warland, among others.
In addition, further invited speakers will include leading scientific experts such as Stephane Hallegatte, Chief Climate Economist, World Bank, and Prof. Achim Wambach, President of the European Center for Economic Research (ZEW Mannheim), Prof. Moritz Drupp (ETH), Prof. Greg Nemet (University of Wisconsin & IPCC), Prof. Gernot Wagner, Columbia University, Prof. Ben Caldecott, University of Oxford and Prof. Alessio Terzi (University of Cambridge), thought leaders and entrepreneurs such as Dr. Jan Wurzbacher, CEO of Climeworks, Alex Pfeiffer, CEO of Terralytiq, and Albert Bravo Biosca, founder of the Innovation Growth Lab, and Lisa Mangertseeder, Vice-president of the German Association for Negative Emissions, ensuring a broad range of perspectives and expertise. This list will be updated as the programme develops.

Learning Outcome:
Students gain insights into current scientific and experimental approaches to decarbonization and understand their significance in the global context.
They develop an understanding of the complexity of societal transformation processes through active exchange with stakeholders from science, politics, and practice.
Participants are able to identify the key messages of a discussion.
Participants are able to formulate concrete recommendations for action toward sustainable transformation - both at the institutional level (e.g., UZH) and beyond.
They critically reflect on the role of universities in societal change as well as on their own role as multipliers.

Module Digital Security: What Everyone Should Know
10SMSTS-118 / Module

Description:

General description:
Cybersecurity affects everyone - not just IT professionals. This interdisciplinary introductory course provides fundamental knowledge of the technical, legal, ethical, psychological, and societal aspects of digital security.

Using real-life case studies, scenario-based learning, and escape room elements, students work in interdisciplinary teams to analyze common cybersecurity incidents. The course empowers participants to assess risks, understand different perspectives, and apply practical security measures in everyday digital life.

ECTS: 3

Notes:
The course takes place every Thursday from 14:00 - 15:45. Some sessions will be held on-site in room SOC-E-010. A detailed schedule and further information will be provided at the beginning of the semester.

Learning Outcome:
Students will be able to...

- ... learn and explain fundamental cybersecurity concepts
(Learning Objective 1 - Knowledge)
- ... identify , understand, and apply the technical, social, psychological, legal, and ethical components of cybersecurity
(Learning Objective 2 - Interdisciplinary Collaboration)
- ... assess general societal threat scenarios realistically and weigh potential benefits and draw-backs of cybersecurity measures, including their own behavior
(Learning Objective 3 - Risk Awareness)
- ... develop recommendations and alternative solutions for simple cases
(Learning Objective 4 - Solution Orientation)
- ... accept the residual risk inherent in chosen cybersecurity measures
(Learning Objective 5 - Responsibility and Accountability)

Module Reading Ancient Texts
06SM682o002 / Module

Description:

General description:
In der Lektüre antiker Texte werden vorhandene Latein bzw. Griechisch-Kenntnisse reaktiviert, repetiert und verbessert anhand von einfacheren Originaltexten, die didaktisch aufbereitet werden und einen Bezug zu archäologischen Themen haben. Die Übersetzungen werden hauptsächlich zu Hause vorbereitet und in der Gruppe besprochen. Der sorgfältigen Textarbeit wird viel Zeit eingeräumt. Je nach Kenntnissen der Teilnehmenden werden lateinische oder lateinische und griechische Texte ins Zentrum gestellt (allenfalls unter den Teilmehmenden aufgeteilt).

ECTS: 3

Learning Outcome:
Reaktivierung, Repetition und Verbesserung der Latein- bzw. Griechischkenntnisse anhand von kommentierten Originaltexten: Die Studierenden können Ihre Kenntnisse in Wortschatz und Grammatik anwenden und ihre Übersetzungskompetenzen verbessern. Sie sind in der Lage, die Textinhalte mit den Inhalten ihrer Studienprogramme zu verbinden.

Module Major excursion Classical Archaeology: Pompeii and the Gulf of Naples
06SM682o004 / Field Trip

Description:

General description:
Die durch den Vesuvausbruch 79 n. Chr. verschütteten Städte Pompeji, Herculaneum und die Villa von Oplontis biete eine einzigartige Perspektive auf römische Stadt- und Wohnkultur, die wir auf der grossen Exkursion im Mai 2026 erkunden wollen. Die im Zürcher Seminarraum erworbenen Erkenntnisse des vorbereitenden Seminars vertiefen wir vor Ort mit ausführlichen Besuchen im Neapler Nationalmuseum und den verschiedenen Ausgrabungsstätten.

ECTS: 6

Notes:
Interessierte Studierende müssen bereits einführende Lehrveranstaltungen der Klassischen Archäologie absolviert haben. Voraussetzung für die Teilnahme am Modulbestandteil Exkursion ist die regelmässige Teilnahme am vorbereitenden Seminar.

Die Anmeldung erfolgt per E-Mail an: johannes.eber@archaeologie.uzh.ch. Auch bei Rückfragen können Sie sich jederzeit melden.

Learning Outcome:
Hauptziel des Moduls ist die Kenntnis archäologischer und ggf. kunsthistorischer Denkmäler in Museen und Sammlungen sowie archäologischer Ausgrabungsstätten und Landschaften eines ausgewählten Gebietes. Ergänzend kommt dazu die Kenntnis der Methoden archäologischer Erforschung von Einzeldenkmälern und Materialgattungen sowie von Ausgrabungen und Landschaften. Ein weiteres Ziel besteht darin, ausgehend von einer genauen Autopsie den entsprechenden Forschungsstand selbständig und kritisch zu verarbeiten sowie in vorbereitenden Sitzungen und/oder vor Ort klar und konzis zu referieren und zu diskutieren. Im Rahmen der Exkursion wenden die Studierenden relevante Methoden und Lerninhalte eigenständig an, wobei der Transfer der Literaturrecherchen auf Originale eine besondere, eng am Berufsfeld orientierte Herausforderung darstellt. Die Exkursionen stehen damit an der Schnittstelle zwischen universitärer Lehre und beruflicher Praxis.

Gegenstand der Lehrveranstaltung sind interdisziplinär erforschbare Phänomene vergangener Epochen. Dazu gehören u. a. umweltgeschichtliche, landschaftsarchäologische, humanökologische, technologische, ideengeschichtliche und ethnoarchäologische Themen. Es gilt, anhand von konkreten Beispielen (Kontexte) Elemente des sozialen, ökonomischen oder ideologischen Lebens zu erarbeiten.

ECTS: 9

Learning Outcome:
Die Studierenden sind in der Lage, einen komplexen Themenbereich aus dem Gebiet der Interdisziplinären Archäologischen Wissenschaften selbständig zu erschliessen und einen ausgewählten Aspekt aus diesem Bereich vertiefend zu bearbeiten. Sie können den aktuellen Forschungsstand dazu kritisch referieren, eigene Gedanken zum Thema vortragen und mögliche neue Ansätze für eine weitere wissenschaftliche Bearbeitung aufzeigen. Sie sind in der Lage, das Thema - oder einen Ausschnitt daraus - in einer klar strukturierten und präzise formulierten schriftlichen Arbeit selbständig weiter zu entwickeln.

Module Computer Applications
06SM683o001 / Module

Description:

General description:
Viele Aspekte der archäologischen Wissenschaften können durch Computerprogramme und elektronische Infrastrukturen unterstützt werden. Dies gilt für quantitative, qualitative une räumliche Daten, die mit Hilfe der Informatik sowohl kategorisiert als auch analysiert und interpretiert werden können. Das Applikationsfeld wird nicht nur im Bereich Auswertung und Analyse, sondern auch bei der Feldarbeit immer breiter. Es gilt, diese Technologien kennenzulernen und an kleinen praktischen Arbeiten anzuwenden.

ECTS: 3

Learning Outcome:
Die Studierenden lernen Aspekte archäologischer Arbeit mit Bezug auf Hard- und Softwareapplikationen kennen. Sie kennen ein Spektrum an Möglichkeiten, die verschiedene Computerprogramme wahlweise für quantitative, qualitative und räumliche Daten bieten. Diverse praktischen Arbeiten ermöglichen ihnen, Anwendungsbeispiele umzusetzen und so die Bandbreite an Optionen der Programme zu erforschen. Des Weiteren erwerben die Studierenden Kenntnisse über technische Aspekte der Datenaufnahme bei Feld- oder Auswertungsarbeiten.

Module Heinrich von Kleist
06SM360o503 / Module

Description:

General description:
"Unwahrscheinliche Wahrhaftigkeiten": Der Titel einer seiner "Anekdoten" steht pars pro toto programmatisch für Kleists literarisches Schaffen. Im zeitlichen Kontext der Weimarer Klassik - gemessene Form, Ausgleich, Triebmodulierung, stille Grösse - konfrontiert uns praktisch jeder seiner Texte mit der Herausforderung eines 'Unglaublichen', eines Kontralogischen, eines Hyperbolischen, eines Oxymoralen, eines schlichtweg Unfassbaren, das zu - literarischer Realität und damit zu einer zeichenhaften Form eines 'Wahren' wird. Die Amazonenkönigin Penthesilea, die den Geliebten zerfleischt, mit eigenen Händen und eigenen Zähnen: Wir möchten es nicht lesen, es nicht hören; doch das Drama konfrontiert uns erbarmungslos mit dem blanken Faktum seines Geschriebenseins. Kleists Werke auf eine 'Gegenbewegung zur Klassik' festzulegen, kann so wenigfunktionieren, wie sie dieser als ein ihr zugehöriges 'Anderes' einzugemeinden. Wie mit solcher systemischer Sinnresistenz textanalytisch umzugehen wäre und ob aus solcher jede Verstehensbewegung fortlaufend unterminierender Signifikatslogik allenfalls Verfahren für aktuelle Diskurformationen zu gewinnen wären, soll in genauen Einzellektüren erprobt und diskutiert werden.

ECTS: 3

Learning Outcome:
Die Studierenden verfügen über vertiefte Kenntnisse in einem spezifischen Teilgebiet der Neueren deutschen Literaturwissenschaft.
Basierend auf dem aktuellen Stand der Forschung können sie eigene literaturgeschichtliche und -wissenschaftliche Fragestellungen bearbeiten und/oder in einem praxisbezogenen Zusammenhang darstellen.

Module Practical Training Scandinavian Studies
06SM360o231 / Module

Description:

General description:
In der Skandinavistik besteht die Möglichkeit, fachbezogene Praktika über Praktikumsberichte anrechnen zu lassen. Praktika können z.B. bei Medien (Rundfunk, TV, Printmedien, etc.), kulturellen Institutionen (Theater, Literaturhäuser, etc.), Bibliotheken oder Archiven, Verlagen oder wissenschaftlichen Institutionen (Projektmitarbeit) absolviert werden. Sie sollten mindestens einen Zeitraum von zwei Wochen umfassen. Die Anerkennbarkeit des Praktikums muss vor Antritt des Praktikums mit der oder dem betreuenden Dozierenden abgesprochen werden.

ECTS: 6

Learning Outcome:
Die Studierenden können durch ein fachbezogenes Praktikum studienrelavante Inhalte mit praktischer Arbeit verbinden und gegebenenfalls wissenschaftliche Inhalte an ein ausseruniversitäres Publikum vermitteln.

Module EEE 335 Human Evolutionary Genetics
07SMEEE335 / Block Course

Description:

General description:
The course focuses on the evolution of modern humans, their genetic diversity, and their population history as inferred from modern and ancient genetic data. It also presents current knowledge on the role of natural selection and cultural practices in shaping human genetic variation.

Besides providing theoretical foundations in population and evolutionary genetics, the course includes research practicals. Students will collect genomic data from public databases and use computational tools to reconstruct demographic histories and detect genetic adaptations. They will also present a scientific publication to the class and participate in group discussions, being encouraged to address not only the research but also its societal impact.

ECTS: 6

Notes:
REGISTRATION FOR BLOCKCOURSES HERE
www.mybioportal.uzh.ch (https://www.mybioportal.uzh.ch/)

Please bring your laptop for the practicals.

Learning Outcome:
Students will learn how genetic variation is shaped by evolutionary forces such as natural selection, genetic drift, mutation, and migration; how it can be used to reconstruct human population history and evolution; how to handle and process large genomic datasets; and how to test alternative models of population history and infer demographic parameters. They will also become familiar with the distribution of human genetic and cultural diversity across time and space, and reflect on how these diversity patterns have been interpreted historically and at present.

Module Governing risks of algorithms in everyday life
06SM248o601 / Module

Description:

General description:
Internet applications that are based on automated algorithmic selection influence internet users' everyday lives through personalized recommendations, allocated advertisements, or tailored search results. This seminar will mainly focus on risks that are associated with the use of such algorithmic-selection applications (e.g., biases, manipulation, distorted information, internet overuse), users' awareness of these risks as well as their coping practices to deal with these risks.

Module Human or machine? AI and the future of knowledge in digital societies
06SM248o602 / Module

Description:

General description:
This seminar will examine how artificial intelligence (AI) - particularly generative AI, such as large language models - is transforming the production and distribution of knowledge in digital information societies. We will focus on new and established epistemic authorities, including tech influencers, scientists, journalists, and professional communicators, and explore the boundary work between them. In this context, we will examine how these authorities, as well as citizens, use and perceive generative AI as a novel information intermediary and how AI itself functions as an epistemic authority that contributes to knowledge production. Students will conduct small research projects to critically analyze the roles of various epistemic authorities in shaping knowledge, considering both the opportunities and challenges posed by AI-mediated information ecosystems.

Description:

General description:
Begriffe wie «Influencer», «virale» Videos, «Fake News» und «Digital Divide» prägen öffentliche und wissenschaftliche Diskurse über digitale Kommunikation. Die Kommunikationswissenschaft und Digitalisierungsforschung sind geprägt von einer Vielzahl solcher Fachbegriffe, die erst in jüngerer Zeit entstanden sind und von ausserwissenschaftlichen Akteuren - etwa aus Politik, Medien und Marketing - beeinflusst wurden. Das Seminar widmet sich der Frage, wie diese Begriffe entstehen und mit welchen (ungeprüften) Narrativen sie verbunden sind. Nach einer Einführung in grundlegende Fragen der Wissenschaftstheorie untersuchen und diskutieren wir in diesem Seminar gemeinsam die öffentlichen und wissenschaftlichen Diskurse zu Digital Buzzwords. Die Studierenden können sich dabei auf Fallanalysen zu ausgewählten Begriffen fokussieren. Ziel ist eine kritische Reflexion der Rolle wissenschaftlicher Begriffsbildung und des Einflusses von öffentlichen Debatten.

ECTS: 6

Learning Outcome:
- Grundlegendes Wissen zu Wissenschaftstheorie und Medialisierungsforschung aneignen
- Wissen zur kommunikationswissenschaftlichen und interdisziplinären Digitalisierungsforschung vertiefen
- Fachbegriffe der Digitalisierungsforschung kritisch hinterfragen lernen
- Analysefähigkeiten weiter ausbauen

Description:

General description:
Die Seminare dienen der wissenschaftlichen Vertiefung unterschiedlicher Anwendungen in kommunikationswissenschaftlichen Kernbereichen. Sie zeichnen sich durch ein grosses Mass an Interaktivität aus und schaffen Optionen für ein lösungsorientiertes Lernen in kleineren Gruppen.

ECTS: 6

Learning Outcome:
Die Studierenden vertiefen und erweitern ihre Anwendungs- und Vermittlungskompetenzen in unterschiedlichen Kernbereichen der Kommunikationswissenschaft bzw. der Medienforschung. Sie können den Forschungsstand eines Themas eigenständig recherchieren, aufarbeiten und mit Hilfe sozialwissenschaftlicher Theorien und Methoden bearbeiten. Sie wissen um die (Team)Arbeit in Forschungsprojekten zur Erstellung von Präsentationen in mündlicher und/oder schriftlicher Form.

Module Resources for Japan Research
06SM290o416 / Module

Description:

General description:
Dieses Modul vermittelt umfassende Kenntnisse über die verschiedenen Informationsressourcen für die Japan-Forschung. Es umfasst drei Hauptaspekte:

1. Sammlung und Recherche von Informationen
2. Verwaltung von Informationen und Wissen
3. Informationen und Wissen in nicht-textueller Form

Sammlung und Recherche von Informationen: In diesem Abschnitt werden sowohl analoge als auch digitale Nachschlagewerke, Recherche-Plattformen und andere relevante Forschungstools vorgestellt. Die Teilnehmenden erhalten die Möglichkeit, eine Vielzahl von japanischsprachigen Ressourcen kennenzulernen und selbst auszuprobieren. Fortgeschrittene Japanischkenntnisse sind hierfür von Vorteil.

Verwaltung von Informationen und Wissen: Neben der Sammlung von Informationen ist auch deren Verwaltung ein zentraler Bestandteil der Forschung. In diesem Modul lernen die Teilnehmenden wichtige Managementtools wie Zotero und Obsidian kennen. Besonders das Literaturverwaltungssystem Zotero wird praktisch erprobt. Die hier vermittelten Kenntnisse sind nicht nur in der Japan-Forschung, sondern auch in anderen wissenschaftlichen Disziplinen von Nutzen.

Informationen und Wissen in nicht-textueller Form: Zusätzlich werden in diesem Modul auch Informationen und Wissen in nicht-textuellen Formen, wie statistische und geografische Daten, behandelt. Diese Formen der Daten gewinnen im Bereich der "Digital Humanities" zunehmend an Bedeutung. Die Teilnehmenden werden die Anwendungsmöglichkeiten solcher Daten kennenlernen und diskutieren.

ECTS: 3

Learning Outcome:
In der Veranstaltung eignen sich die Teilnehmenden die folgenden Fähigkeiten an:

- Praktische Kenntnisse über Recherchemöglichkeiten für Japan-Forschung
- Umgang mit Literatur- und Wissensmanagementsystem
- Bedeutung und Nutzung der "Daten" für Japan-Forschung

Languages of Instruction:
Deutsch

Merkmale:

Responsible instructor: David Chiavacci

Requirements:

Prerequisites: - Elementare Japanischkenntnisse für originalsprachliche Ressourcen
- Ein Laptop-PC oder ein ähnliches Gerät

Assessment: Portfolio (Referat; schriftliche Arbeit)

Der Leistungsnachweis wird im Rahmen einer Gruppenarbeit erbracht.

Alle Elemente des Portfolios müssen absolviert und bestanden werden. Wird ein Element nicht absolviert bzw. nicht bestanden, gilt das gesamte Portfolio als nicht absolviert und das Modul damit als nicht bestanden

Description:

General description:
Vermittlung eines fundierten Einblicks in die japanische Gegenwartsliteratur, ihre Themen, Strömungen und Distributionskanäle. Die wissenschaftliche Erschliessung erfolgt über die Lektüre von literarischen und literaturkritischen Texten. In der gemeinsamen Diskussion werden die Befunde analysiert, angewendet und vertieft.

ECTS: 6

Learning Outcome:
Fähigkeit, eine Problemstellung (Forschungsfrage) im Bereich der japanischen Kultur- und Geistesgeschichte, Literatur oder Philosophie anhand der je einschlägigen Theorien und Methoden unter Hinzuziehung eines substantiellen Anteils originalsprachlicher Quellen und Sekundärliteratur wissenschaftlich reflektiert zu bearbeiten und im Rahmen eins Referats vorzustellen.

Module Computational digital media analysis
06SM254o057 / Module

Description:

General description:
This course introduces students to computational approaches for analyzing digital media. It covers basic methods and tools for collecting, processing, and interpreting social media and online communication data, helping students understand how digital media can be studied with data-driven techniques.

ECTS: 3

Learning Outcome:
Die Studierenden erwerben spezifische Analyse- und Reflexionskompetenzen, die es ihnen ermöglichen, Theorien, Studien und Aussagen im jeweiligen Fachgebiet kritisch zu vergleichen und zu bewerten. Die Studierenden wissen, auf welchen Grundlagen spezifischere Inhalte aufbauen. Durch das Herstellen von Bezügen zum Methodenwissen (wo immer möglich) können Studierende die vermitteleten Inhalte in einem grösseren Zusammenhang betrachten

Module Media Management
06SM254o058 / Module

Description:

General description:
The lecture "Media Management" consistently focuses on the economic and the business sub-perspectives. The key research question is: How can media manage business models in a digitized environment - in terms of society and economy, in terms of functions and industries as well as in terms of corporations and applications? After all, a company is always embedded in a society and economy whose markets develop competitively according to certain preferences and environmental and surrounding conditions (such as technological advances).

Module Climate change communication
06SM254o059 / Module

Description:

General description:
Climate change communication influences how individuals, organizations, and societies perceive climate change, and how they react to it. But how does successful climate change communication look like? How is information about climate change best conveyed to different audiences? How can insights from psychology help us to successfully communicate about climate change? How does climate change communication look like in practice? In this course, we will discuss research findings in communication science and psychology to understand specific challenges of climate change communication and successful strategies to address these challenges. We will also hear from two guest speakers who are experts in communication of climate change.

ECTS: 3

Notes:
The course will provide students with an overview of current psychological theory and best practices in the area of climate change communication. At the completion of the course, students will be able to:

- Identify and address challenges in climate change communication
- Understand the psychological and social factors that influence climate change perceptions
- Apply insights from psychology to improve the effectiveness of climate change communication
- Evaluate the effectiveness of climate change communication strategies
- Critically assess the role of the media in shaping public discourse on climate change

Module Comparative international communication research
06SM254o503 / Module

Description:

General description:
Comparative international approaches are becoming increasingly common in many areas of communication research. Using examples mainly from political communication and journalism studies, this lecture will show what the basic logic of comparative international research is, what the typical methodological approaches and analytical steps are, and what central findings are. We will take a comparative look at media systems, journalistic cultures, election campaigns, politicians' strategies, and audience effects. The lecture is aimed primarily at more advanced students who wish to broaden their basic knowledge and are interested in the specific challenges of comparative communication research.

ECTS: 6

Learning Outcome:
Advanced knowledge of various topics in international comparative communication studies as well as relevant theoretical and methodological approaches within various topics in international comparative political communication studies.
Competence: Students learn to interact with relevant studies and research results in international comparative political communication in an informed and reflective manner.

Languages of Instruction:

Module Digital Technology Use and Well-Being
06SM254o504 / Module

Description:

General description:
This course examines how digital technologies shape individual well-being.

In the first section of the course, we will cover key underlying theories and methods for studying both technology use and well-being, including concepts such as hedonic and eudaimonic well-being, the hierarchical taxonomy of computer mediated communication, problematic use, and digital detox.

In the second section, we will explore several concrete media channels and applications, ranging from social networking and instant messaging to video streaming, gaming, podcasts, and AI-based communication tools.

In the third section, we will address how digital technology affects well-being in contexts of workplace and study. We engage with the current discussion of how digital technology should be regulated, to improve the experiences of young people.

In doing so, we discuss relevant underlying theory, present important individual studies, and also look at literature syntheses such as meta-studies or systematic reviews to gain a balanced and nuanced overview of how digital technology affects user well-being.

ECTS: 6

Learning Outcome:
By the end of the course, students will have a solid understanding of the theoretical and methodological foundations needed to study digital technology use and well-being.

They will be familiar with core concepts such as causal inference, moderation, mediation, and effect sizes, as well as key media effects theories and models.

Students will be able to apply these frameworks to analyze specific technologies and platforms, interpret empirical findings, and evaluate the quality of evidence.

Finally, they will be equipped to transfer their knowledge to emerging technologies and current debates, connecting academic research to contemporary media phenomena and societal challenges.

Module Strategic Communication: Fundamentals, Fields of Practice, and Current Challenges
06SM254o505 / Module

Description:

General description:
In dieser Vorlesung lernen Sie die Grundlagen strategischer Kommunikation, die wichtigsten Anwendungsfelder in der Praxis sowie aktuelle Herausforderungen des Fachgebiets. Behandelt werden unter anderem folgende Themen: Definitionen und Ansätze der strategischen Kommunikation, Unternehmenskultur und -identität, Image und Reputation, interne und externe Kommunikation, Kommunikationsmanagement und Krisenkommunikation, Digitalisierung und Künstliche Intelligenz, Wirkungsanalyse und Evaluation sowie Finanzmarktkommunikation und Corporate Social Responsibility/Nachhaltigkeit.

Jede Woche wird ein Thema anhand zentraler Fachliteratur behandelt und in der Vorlesung gemeinsam diskutiert. Ergänzt wird das Seminar durch mindestens einen Gastvortrag aus der Praxis.

ECTS: 6

Notes:
Die Literatur ist überwiegend in englischer Sprache; die Vorlesung und die Diskussionen finden auf Deutsch statt.

Learning Outcome:
- zentrale Definitionen, Theorien und Ansätze strategischer Kommunikation erkennen, vergleichen und einordnen können
- ein fundiertes Verständnis zentraler Themen und Praxisfelder strategischer Kommunikation entwickeln und kritisch reflektieren
- empirische und praxisbezogene Einblicke in das Fachgebiet analysieren und mit theoretischen Konzepten verknüpfen können
- ihr kritisches Denkvermögen schärfen und die Fähigkeit weiterentwickeln, komplexe Inhalte in fundierter und differenzierter Weise zu diskutieren

Module Communication by and about sports actors
06SM254o506 / Module

Description:

General description:
Fussballspiele dominieren seit Jahren die Einschaltquoten im Schweizer Fernsehen. Weltweit führen Lionel Messi und Cristiano Ronaldo die Ranglisten der Instagram-Follower an. Diese Beispiele verdeutlichen: Sport begeistert, verbindet und ist längst ein zentraler Bestandteil der Mediengesellschaft. Sportübertragungen erreichen live ein Millionenpublikum, Athletinnen und Athleten nutzen digitale Kanäle, um sich in gesellschaftliche Debatten einzubringen, und Sportorganisationen setzen auf strategische Kommunikation, um ihr Image und ihre Reputation zu pflegen. Begleitet wird dies von journalistischen Medien, die sowohl über Ereignisse berichten als auch Missstände thematisieren. Kurzum: Sport ist ein hoch relevanter Forschungsgegenstand der Kommunikationswissenschaft.
Die Vorlesung untersucht die Kommunikation von, in und über den Sport. Sie zeigt erstens, wie Medienformate und Digitalisierung den Sport verändern - und umgekehrt, wie Sportakteure (digitale) Medien für sich nutzen.
Zweitens beleuchtet sie das Feld der Kommunikatoren im Sport, von Athletinnen und Athleten über Sportorganisationen bis zu Verbänden.
Drittens analysiert sie die Rolle des Sports im Journalismus und die Berichterstattung über Sportereignisse und -akteure. Darüber hinaus wird diskutiert, wie Sportevents durch ihre enorme Reichweite zunehmend auch zur Bühne politischer Akteure werden.

06SM615o514 / Module

Description:

General description:
Das Modul fördert vertieftes Fachwissen in einem ausgewählten Forschungsfeld. Es vermittelt die Kompetenz, zu einem ausgewählten Thema Fragestellungen aus Sicht der Politikwissenschaft zu entwickeln und zu analysieren. Im Zentrum des Seminars stehen die politikwissenschaftliche und normative Analyse, das trennscharfe Analysieren der Begriffe in ihrer Anwendung auf empirische Studien und das Begründen politischer Sachverhalte. Die unterschiedlichen Themen werden theoretisch und empirisch vertieft.

ECTS: 6

Learning Outcome:
Fachkompetenzen: Verortung von Argumenten und empirischen Studien in den relevanten wissenschaftlichen Debatten zu einem ausgewählten Thema; Methodenkompetenzen: wissenschaftliches Schreiben und Argumentieren; Verfassen eines schriftlichen Beitrags (Policy Paper, wissenschaftliche Abhandlung, etc.) Selbstkompetenzen: Definition eigener inhaltlicher Schwerpunkte, Selbsteinschätzung, Planungsfähigkeit.

Module The Role of Algorithms and (Generative) Artificial Intelligence in High-Choice Information Environments
06SM254o601 / Module

Description:

General description:
In den letzten Jahren hat sich das politische Informationsumfeld stark verändert und eine Reihe neuer Möglichkeiten und Herausforderungen mit sich gebracht. Dieses Seminar wird die Rolle von Algorithmen, (generativer) künstlicher Intelligenz (KI) und der Personalisierung von Inhalten bei der Produktion, Verbreitung und Rezeption von (politischen) Informationen und Nachrichten näher beleuchten.
Anschliessend werden wir diese Phänomene in den Kontext anderer, breiter angelegter Trends in der politischen Kommunikation und dem digitalen Journalismus einbetten.

ECTS: 6

Learning Outcome:
Die Studierenden vertiefen und erweitern ihre Anwendungs- und Vermittlungskompetenzen in unterschiedlichen Kernbereichen der Kommunikationswissenschaft bzw. der Medienforschung. Sie können den Forschungsstand eines Themas eigenständig recherchieren, aufarbeiten und mit Hilfe sozialwissenschaftlicher Theorien und Methoden bearbeiten. Sie wissen um die (Team)Arbeit in Forschungsprojekten zur Erstellung von Präsentationen in mündlicher und/oder schriftlicher Form.

Module Market power control in the communications sector
06SM254o602 / Module

Description:

General description:
«It's time to break up Amazon, Google and Facebook,» meinte die US-Senatorin Elizabeth Warren im Jahr 2019 angesichts der Marktmacht dieser Internetfirmen.
Aber ist eine Entflechtung möglich und welche anderen Massnahmen gibt es, um Konzentration und Marktmachtmissbrauch im Kommunikationssektor zu begegnen? Dieses Seminar widmet sich diesen Fragen im internationalen Vergleich und fokussiert dabei auf Themen und Entwicklungen, die in den aktuellen wissenschaftlichen und politischen Debatten von zentraler Bedeutung sind.

Module Management of Communication Campaigns in the Health Sector
06SM254o603 / Module

Description:

General description:
Kommunikationskampagnen sind neben rechtlichen und technischen Massnahmen ein wichtiges Mittel, um gesellschaftlichen Herausforderungen wie Sucht (z.B. Alkohol und Tabak), Krankheiten (z.B. Covid-19 oder AIDS), mentale Gesundheit (z.B. Depression), knappen Ressourcen (z.B. Spendeorgane) oder Unfällen (z.B. Verkehr und Arbeitsplatz) zu begegnen. Das erfolgreiche Management solcher Kampagnen erfordert ein vertieftes Verständnis gesellschaftlicher, gesundheitspsychologischer und kommunikationswissenschaftlicher Zusammenhänge. Das Seminar vermittelt deshalb, wie verschiedene Theorien und Methoden genutzt werden können, um evidenzbasierte Kampagnen zu entwickeln, durchzuführen und zu evaluieren. Die Seminarteilnehmenden setzen sich dabei vertieft mit einem selbstgewählten Gesundheitsthema auseinander. Gastvorträge von Kampagnenmanager:innen bieten zudem einen Blick hinter die Kulissen der Kampagnenpraxis.

ECTS: 6

Learning Outcome:
- Die Studierenden kennen die wichtigsten theoretische Grundlagen und empirische Forschungsbefunde zu Organisation, Management, Strategie, Evaluation und Wirkung von Kommunikationskampagnen im Gesundheitsbereich.
- Die Studierenden sind in der Lage, neue Studien und methodische Weiterentwicklungen vor dem Hintergrund der bisherigen Forschung einzuordnen und kritisch zu reflektieren.
- Die Studierenden setzen sich mit einem konkreten Themenfeld der Gesundheitskommunikation vertieft auseinander und können die Chancen und Gefahren von Kampagnen in diesem Themenfeld auf Basis wissenschaftlicher Theorien und empirischen Befunden abschätzen.
- Die Studierenden können bisheriger Kampagnen kritisch reflektieren (z.B. Botschaften und Kanäle) und Verbesserungsmöglichkeiten formulieren.

Module Content Creators and their social media ecosystems
06SM254o604 / Module

Description:

General description:
This seminar explores the complex dynamics between content creators and social media platforms, examining how digital ecosystems shape contemporary media production, consumption, and social interaction.
Students will investigate practical, conceptual, and theoretical approaches to creator industries while critically analyzing the tensions between authenticity and commerciality, creator-audience relationships, state regulation, and platform governance structures.

The course adopts a multidisciplinary approach, drawing from media studies, digital sociology, platform studies, and critical theory to explore evolving creator cultures.

ECTS: 6

Learning Outcome:
- Discussing and understanding the current theoretical and methodological trends to research online content creators.
- Exploring the different elements of social media ecosystems and their relevance to understand content creators.
- Develop practical skills in scripting, filming, and editing social media videos.
- Analyzing societal impacts of digital content creators.
- Gaining experience in collaborative research and social media production.
- Exploring and understanding the importance of platform vernaculars, affordances and genres for online content creation.
- Discussing and critically reflecting about how creator cultures reflect current communication environments.
- Examining the roles of content creators in society and their implications.
- Working in a team and evaluating others' work constructively.

Module Laws of Nature
06SM164o501 / Module

Description:

General description:
The concept of a law of nature plays a central role in the philosophy of science and metaphysics. Philosophical analysis of this concept raises fundamental questions about modality, causation, and explanation. One influential tradition begins with the idea that laws of nature describe regularities in the world, while another interprets them as involving some form of natural necessitation.
The regularity theory faces the immediate problem of distinguishing genuine laws from merely accidental generalisations, such as "No diamond weighs more than one tonne". One strategy attempts to avoid any appeal to natural necessity by holding that laws are those generalisations that, taken together, provide the simplest and most powerful description of the world.
The necessitarian, by contrast, can readily explain why accidental generalisations lack the status of laws: while it may be true that no diamond exceeds a tonne in weight, this is a contingent fact, not a matter of natural necessity. Yet this approach faces its own challenge: to explain what such natural necessitation amounts to and in what sense, if any, laws of nature "govern" the behaviour of the world.
By engaging with classic and contemporary texts, we will explore competing accounts of the laws of nature and examine related questions about their function in science, their modal status, and their connection to explanation and prediction.

Module Philosophy of Law
06SM160o507 / Module

Description:

General description:
Why do human societies have laws? Where does the "authority of law" come from? What is the relationship between the law and morality? Is there a moral obligation to obey the law? What if a law is unjust?

These and other fundamental questions in the philosophy of law will be explored. The focus of the first part of the course will be the major theoretical conceptions of law such as natural law theory, legal positivism, and legal realism. In the second part of the course, we will turn to other major debates in the philosophy of law. For instance, some legal theorists hold that law has authority because individuals do better to follow the law than to follow their own reasons and inclinations. Others contest the idea that law has authority at all, and emphasize law's fundamentally coercive nature.
This is a reading and discussion focused seminar. Students are expected to come to the seminar having completed all the Required readings, bringing their questions to the texts, and prepared to discuss the material in plenary or in small groups on relevant series of questions related to the readings

Guided self-study: students are expected to read the Required articles, book chapters, web sources, newspapers stories, etc., to prepare the seminar sessions and the assignments

Independent research: students are expected to do their own independent research for their essays

ECTS: 6

Notes:
Studierende der Philosophie, die eine Seminararbeit verfassen wollen, buchen nach Absprache mit der Dozentin oder dem Dozenten ein entsprechendes Wahlpflichtmodul ohne Veranstaltung, in dessen Rahmen die Arbeit verfasst wird (vergl. programmspezifische Wegleitung): «Politische Philosophie (Vertiefung)».

Learning Outcome:
In this seminar students:

- gain an understanding of the fundamental concept of law;
- learn to critically analyze concepts, arguments, and theories of law;
- gain systematic tools to normatively evaluate a system of law ;
- develop skills in reading and discussing demanding theoretical texts;
- widen their experience of academic writing in legal and political theory.

Module Intellectual responsibility: duties, values and virtues in cognition
06SM160o505 / Module

Description:

General description:
In der zeitgenössischen Erkenntnistheorie wird zunehmend betont, dass Überzeugungen - ebenso wie Handlungen - normativen Anforderungen unterliegen. In diesem Seminar gehen wir der Frage nach, welche epistemischen Pflichten es gibt: Sind sie rein theoretischer Natur, oder gibt es auch moralische Pflichten zu glauben - etwa das moralisch Gute - und Verbote, schädliche Überzeugungen zu erwerben? Zudem untersuchen wir, ob es tugendhafte oder verwerfliche Arten des Erwerbs von Überzeugungen gibt. Die Diskussion stützt sich auf aktuelle Beiträge der analytischen Erkenntnistheorie

ECTS: 6

Notes:
Studierende der Philosophie, die eine Seminararbeit verfassen wollen, buchen nach Absprache mit der Dozentin oder dem Dozenten ein entsprechendes Wahlpflichtmodul ohne Veranstaltung, in dessen Rahmen die Arbeit verfasst wird (vergl. programmspezifische Wegleitung): «Erkenntnistheorie (Vertiefung)».

Learning Outcome:
Kenntnisse zum Thema des Seminars; die Fähigkeit, sich in komplexe philosophische Themen und Fragen sowie den jeweiligen Forschungsstand einzuarbeiten; die Fähigkeit zur kritischen Reflexion von Argumenten aus der Erkenntnistheorie.

Module Why is there something rather than nothing?
06SM160o506 / Module

Description:

General description:
In this seminar devoted to the question of why there is something rather than nothing, we will address this fundamental metaphysical issue from three complementary angles, in addition to the examination of the contemporary literature directly devoted to this question. The first will be historical and contemporary debates about cosmological arguments for God's existence. The second will be historical and contemporary debates about what is called since Leibniz the Principle of Sufficient Reason. The third will be contemporary debates about the nature of metaphysical grounding and how it differs from other forms of explanation - e.g., causal explanations. Much attention will be devoted to views such as metaphysical nihilism and brute fundamentalism, and to arguments such as the subtraction argument.

Requirements:

Prerequisites:	Für die Teilnahme sind keine Vorkenntnisse erforderlich.
Assessment:	The texts that will be studied during the seminar will be indicated during the first session, at the latest. The students will have to read one or two texts a week (depending on their length and difficulty). In order to pass the seminar, the students will also have to write three short essays of approximately 2,000 words during the semester, and to give a presentation of one of them during the seminar. The essays will consist in addressing questions I will indicate, and they will just have to be based on the texts and views examined during the seminar. --- In order to pass the module: - Three 2,000 word long essays will have to be written during the seminar (60% of the grade).

- One presentation will have to be made during the seminar (20% of the grade).
- The text(s) of the week will have to be read on every week (20% of the grade).

All elements of the portfolio must be completed. If one element is not completed, the entire portfolio is deemed not to have been completed and the module is therefore failed (grade 1).

Module Contemporary Philosophical Issues in Artificial Intelligence
06SM163o501 / Module

Description:

General description:
Künstliche Intelligenz (KI) birgt ein enormes Potenzial, den Menschen in verschiedensten Bereichen zu unterstützen - und weltweit wird dieses Potenzial zunehmend ausgeschöpft. Gleichzeitig sind die mit dieser Technologie verbundenen Zweifel und Herausforderungen beträchtlich. Dieses Seminar widmet sich aktuellen Debatten an der Schnittstelle von Philosophie und KI-Forschung.

Behandelt werden Themen wie der rationale und moralische Status künstlicher Agenten, die Interpretierbarkeit von KI, das Problem des "Value Alignment" (Wie können wir sicherstellen, dass KI-Systeme "Ziele" verfolgen, die mit dem menschlichen Wohlergehen vereinbar sind?) sowie konkrete ethische Fragen im Zusammenhang mit der Anwendung von KI - etwa im Gesundheitswesen, in der Kriegsführung oder im Umgang mit digitalen Duplikaten.

ECTS: 6

Notes:

Studierende des Minor «Grundlagen der Moralphilosophie», die eine Seminararbeit verfassen wollen, buchen nach Absprache mit der Dozentin oder dem Dozenten ein entsprechendes Wahlpflichtmodul ohne Veranstaltung, in dessen Rahmen die Arbeit verfasst wird (vergl. programmspezifische Wegleitung): «Jüngere Debatten in der Moralphilosophie».

Learning Outcome:
Die Teilnehmenden erwerben grundlegende Kenntnisse zentraler Begriffe, Fragestellungen und Theorien der philosophischen Auseinandersetzung mit Künstlicher Intelligenz. Sie entwickeln die Fähigkeit, philosophische Texte eigenständig zu erschließen und zu interpretieren sowie Argumente im Kontext von KI kritisch zu reflektieren. Darüber hinaus wird die Fähigkeit gestärkt, interdisziplinäre Perspektiven in die philosophische Diskussion einzubringen.

Module What Are Values?
06SM163o503 / Module

Description:

General description:
Das Gute ist ein zentraler Begriff der Philosophie und auch unseres alltäglichen Denkens. Bei genauerem Hinsehen sind allerdings Dinge (zum Beispiel Handlungen, Sachverhalte, Charaktereigenschaften) nicht nur «einfach» gut (oder schlecht), sondern sie sind es in vielen unterschiedlichen - und nicht immer miteinander vereinbaren - Hinsichten: schön, angenehm, interessant, gerecht, effizient, kreativ, lukrativ und so weiter. Deshalb ist anstatt von «dem Guten» häufig von «Werten» die Rede. In unserem Urteilen, Handeln und Empfinden reagieren wir Menschen auf - und orientieren uns an - Werten, also an Hinsichten, in denen Dinge gut sein können.

In der philosophischen Diskussion über das Wesen und die Rolle von Werten treffen sich Ethik, Metaethik und Handlungstheorie. In diesem Seminar beschäftigen wir uns anhand wichtiger Texte der Gegenwartsphilosophie mit zentrale Fragen, die sich in Bezug auf die Begriffe des Guten und des Wertes stellen. Dazu gehören insbesondere die folgenden: Gibt es fundamental unterschiedliche Arten des Gutseins (zum Beispiel intrinsisch und extrinsisch, als Zweck und als Mittel, für eine Person und an sich)? Inwieweit lassen sich unterschiedliche Arten des Gutseins miteinander vergleichen und auf begründete Weise gegeneinander abwägen? Was heißt es, sich an Werten zu orientieren? Lässt sich die Existenz von Werten durch Einstellungen und Praktiken des Wertschätzens erklären? Zu den Autorinnen und Autoren, deren Beiträge wir diskutieren werden, gehören u.a. Christine Korsgaard, Judith Thomson, Thomas Nagel, Samuel Scheffler, Joseph Raz, Ruth Chang und andere.

Einen Überblick über einige der Themen des Seminars liefert der folgende ausführliche Artikel in der Stanford Encyclopedia of Philosophy: Mark Schroeder, "Value Theory" (https://plato.stanford.edu/entries/value-theory/).

Module Ethics, Sustainability and Financial Markets
06SM163o502 / Module

Description:

General description:
There are contexts where anyone's personal decision is unlikely to make a difference, yet independent decisions by a large number of people can yield severe effects - think of buying an airplane ticket or of taking out a risky mortgage. What moral obligations do we have in situations like these - as private individuals, as professionals who occupy certain roles within organisations, and as members of political bodies that can impose regulations? This interdisciplinary seminar, which is offered in cooperation with the Institute for Banking and Finance, explores the recent literature on individual and collective responsibility, structural injustice, complicity, and systemic risk, and puts these concepts to use by addressing unavoidable ethical questions related to financial markets and global commons. Bringing together students from Philosophy and Economics, it draws on real-life decision scenarios to render the discussion concrete and to apply the theoretical ideas to practical questions we all face.

Learning Outcome:
Upon completing the seminar, students should have achieved the following learning objectives:

- An understanding of the fundamental concepts, problems and theories relevant to the topic of the seminar.
- The ability to independently work out and interpret philosophical texts as well as to critically reflect on arguments in ethics and political philosophy.
- The ability to contribute constructively to text-based discussions.
- The ability to develop and justify, in written form, an independent position within a philosophical debate.
- The ability to apply theoretical frameworks to concrete real-world contexts.

Prerequisites:	None
Assessment:	Portfolio (active course participation, regular contributions to course blog, discussion of three applied scenarios or one in-class presentation, and written exam) --- All components of the portfolio must be completed successfully to pass the course, but only the exam will be graded.

The exam will be an open books exam, so you can bring all your notes, but you will not have access to the internet (nor AI tools) during the exam. The exam will consist of open questions and combine the tasks of reconstructing arguments encountered in the readings and critically and independently engaging with them. Students will have some choice as to which of a number of questions they answer.

The design of the exam and its grading policy will take into account that students come from a variety of subject backgrounds and may not have taken a philosophy class before.

Module Hindi Seminar: Gender and Liminality in the Novel Tyāgpatra by Jainendra Kumar
06SM330o026 / Module

Description:

General description:
Das Seminar vermittelt forschungsrelevantes Wissen über die Thematisierung und Positionierung von sozio-kulturellen Themen und Debatten in Hindi-sprachlichen Texten und Medien anhand der Analyse und Interpretation ausgewählter Beispiele. Dabei geht es auch um die verschiedenen Register des Hindi als Literatur- und Kommunikationssprache. Analyse und Interpretation erfolgen unter Einbeziehung von relevanten historischen, sozialen und intellektuellen Kontexten sowie von theoretischen Fragestellungen.

ECTS: 6

Learning Outcome:
Die Studierenden haben forschungsrelevantes Wissen über die Wechselwirkungen zwischen sozio-kulturellen Transformationsprozessen und literarisch-medialen Gestaltungs- und Kommunikationsformen im modernen Indien. Sie können die Positionierung sozio-kultureller Themen und Debatten in Hindi-Texten und anderen Medien analysieren und dazu relevante Forschungsliteratur sowie theoretische Ansätze heranziehen. Sie beherrschen die Techniken der Textanalyse, können selbständig angefertigte Übersetzungen theoretisch reflektieren und besitzen Medienkompetenz. Sie kennen den Stand der Forschung und können deren Fragestellungen und Resultate mündlich darlegen. Sie können die Resultate der Analysen und Interpretationen unter Einbeziehung von ausgewählten Forschungsansätzen und methodisch reflektiert schriftlich darlegen.

Module Sanskrit Seminar: Classical Texts of the Yoga Tradition
06SM330o019 / Module

Description:

General description:
Das Seminar vermittelt forschungsrelevantes Wissen über die Lehren und Darstellungsformen indischer Religionen und Philosophien anhand der Lektüre und Analyse von ausgewählten Texten. Die Grundstrukturen und Techniken der Analyse von Kommentarliteratur in Sanskrit werden erörtert. Unter Einbeziehung des Forschungsstandes werden Konzepte und Lehrpositionen analysiert und im Hinblick auf deren historische, soziale und intellektuelle Kontexte und unter Einbeziehung theoretischer Fragstellungen interpretiert.

ECTS: 6

Learning Outcome:
Die Studierenden haben vertieftes Wissen über die Inhalte religiöser und philosophischer Grundtexte und die Formen ihrer Darlegung und können diese auf historische Kontexte und zeitgenössische intellektuelle Diskurse und Debatten beziehen. Sie beherrschen die Techniken der Analyse von Kommentarliteratur in Sanskrit und können selbständig Übersetzungen anfertigen und theoretisch reflektieren. Sie kennen den Stand der Forschung und können deren Fragestellungen und Resultate methodisch reflektiert mündlich präsentieren und argumentativ darlegen. Sie können Befunde der Textanalyse unter Einbeziehung von ausgewählten Forschungsansätzen schriftlich darlegen.

Module History of Modern India
06SM330o312 / Module

Description:

General description:
This course offers in-depth insights into historical developments, cultural and social transformations, and current debates, with a focus on recent scholarly discourse.

ECTS: 3

Learning Outcome:
Students have an overview of key events and processes of transformation that have shaped the history of modern India/South Asia. They are familiar with the range of historical sources as well as the questions and methods relevant to their analysis. They understand debates surrounding the interpretation of history and are able to discuss different models of historiography, providing concrete examples. They are capable of presenting their acquired knowledge in written form by addressing selected research questions in accordance with the principles of academic writing.

Module Visual documentation
06SM683o002 / Module

Description:

General description:
Viele Aspekte der archäologischen Wissenschaften können durch analoge oder digitale visuelle Dokumentationen unterstützt werden. Dies gilt für Befundsituationen wie auch für einzelne Befunde und Funde, wobei zeichnerische, fotografische und andere digitale Bildverfahren zur Anwendung kommen. Das Applikationsfeld wird nicht nur im Bereich Auswertung, sondern auch bei der Aufnahme im Feld immer breiter. Es gilt, diese Techniken kennenzulernen und an kleinen praktischen Arbeiten anzuwenden.

ECTS: 3

Notes:
Schriftliche Bewerbungen beim Dozierenden Frank Tomio frank.tomio@archaeologie.uzh.ch. Bitte machen Sie dabei folgende Angaben: Name, Matrikelnummer, UZH-Mail-Adresse, Semesterzahl und Fächerkombination, Vorkenntnisse in Fotografie und Bildbearbeitung sowie das Kameramodell, das Sie zum Fotografieren im Kurs mitbringen werden. Eine eigene Kamera ist erforderlich. Anmeldefrist ist der 2.2.2026. Die Teilnehmendenzahl ist auf 8 begrenzt.

Learning Outcome:
Die Studierenden lernen Aspekte archäologischer Arbeit mit Bezug auf visuelle Dokumentationen kennen. Sie kennen ein Spektrum an Möglichkeiten, um Funde oder Befunde bzw. Befundsituationen wahlweise zeichnerisch, fotografisch oder mit erweiterten digitalen Vefahren zu dokumentieren. Diverse praktischen Arbeiten ermöglichen ihnen, Anwendungsbeispiele umzusetzen und so die Bandbreite an Optionen zu erforschen.

Module Realistic Utopias
06SM160o017 / Module

Description:

General description:
What does it mean for a utopian vision to be realistic? A classic claim made against utopian visions is that they are only good in theory but not in practice. Is it possible to have an desirable vision that is also practicable? And if so, should we want that? This course delves into the role of utopian thinking in political philosophy. The aim is to use analytic philosophical methods to rigorously engage with utopian thinking, what types of considerations can make them be considered 'realistic' by reasonable people, and in what ways social science can be considered emancipatory.

ECTS: 6

Notes:
Studierende der Philosophie, die eine Seminararbeit verfassen wollen, buchen nach Absprache mit der Dozentin oder dem Dozenten ein entsprechendes Wahlpflichtmodul ohne Veranstaltung, in dessen Rahmen die Arbeit verfasst wird (vergl. programmspezifische Wegleitung): «Politische Philosophie».

Learning Outcome:
Students will should be able to rigorously engage with works of analytic political philosophy. They should develop critical thinking skills and be able to express their thoughts in clear and concise ways. They will be able to develop a thorough understanding of the role that both realism and utopian plays in our political thinking.

Module The Logic and Epistemology of the Ontological Argument and Its Critique: Descartes, Goedel, Plantinga, Kant
06SM160o503 / Module

Description:

General description:
Der ontologische Gottesbeweis steht für eine dynamische Tradition des Denkens in der westlichen Philosophie, das Denkerinnen und Denker bis zur Gegenwart inspiriert und zur Kritik anregt. Es ist deshalb gar nicht so einfach, eine kurze Charakterisierung der Argumentationsweise zu geben, welche diese Tradition zusammenhält. Immanuel Kant, gleichzeitig der wichtigste Systematiker und der wichtigste Kritiker dieser Argumentationsform und ein zentraler Referenzpunkt für das Seminar, hält fest, dass der ontologische Gottesbeweis ``gänzlich a priori aus blossen Begriffen auf das Dasein einer höchsten Ursache'' schliessen will (KrV, B 618-19). Im Gegensatz zu anderen so genannten Gottesbeweisen verfährt der ontologische Gottesbeweis also gänzlich ohne Rückgriff auf empirische Evidenz, Daten, oder Beobachtungen.

Im Seminar werden wir diese negative Charakterisierung schrittweise mit einer positiven ergänzen. Dazu analysieren und diskutieren wir ausgewählte Instanzen dieser Argumentationsform aus einer erkenntnistheoretischen und logischen Perspektive, und wir setzen uns intensiv mit Kants Kritik am ontologischen Gottesbeweis fest. Tatsächlich bietet Kants Kritik an dieser Argumentationsform einen sehr erhellenden Einstieg in seine kritische Philosophie selbst: Das ontologische Argument steht für alles, was Kant an der traditionellen rationalistischen Metaphysik für grundlegend verkehrt hält und damit als Antithese zu seiner kritischen Philosophie.

Wir lassen dabei die ursprüngliche Version des Gottesbeweises von Anselm von Canterbury beiseite
-- nicht zuletzt deshalb, weil sich bei ihm nicht ohne weiteres überhaupt von einem Argument im modernen Sinne, geschweige denn von einer bewusst erkenntnistheoretischen Vorgehensweise sprechen liesse. Wir konzentrieren uns vielmehr auf die sehr breit diskutierte Version, bzw. die Versionen, von René Descartes, des Mathematikers Kurt Gödel, und des amerikanischen Religionsphilosophen des 20. Jahrhunderts Alvin Plantinga. Diese Texte werden mit passender Sekundärliteratur erschlossen und kritisch diskutiert, und die Systematik und Kritik Kants wird von zentraler Bedeutung sein.

Jahrhunderts (Vertiefung)».

Learning Outcome:
Studierende
1. erwerben ein vertieftes Verständnis der Erkenntnistheorie und der Logik verschiedener Versionen des ontologischen Gottesbeweises sowie ihrer wichtigsten Gegenargumente,
2. können die Versionen in die geschichtsphilosophischen Kontexte der jeweiligen Zeit einordnen,
3. und vor diesem Hintergrund begründet Stellung für oder gegen die Gültigkeit der drei Versionen beziehen.

Module Merleau-Ponty: The Phenomenology of Perception and other early writings
06SM160o016 / Module

Description:

General description:
How does our direct, bodily engagement with the world shape the very possibility of thought?
Maurice Merleau-Ponty's early philosophy offers a distinctive account of perception, embodiment, and the relation between humans and their environment. This course provides an in-depth study of Phenomenology of Perception (1945) alongside selections from his earlier work, The Structure of Behaviour (1942).
We will examine Merleau-Ponty's attempt to move beyond traditional divisions between mind and body, subject and object, and to replace them with an account of lived experience informed by phenomenology and psychology. The course will explore his critical engagement with Descartes, empiricism, behaviourism, Gestalt theory, Husserl and Sartre, and consider how these influences shape his philosophical method and arguments.
Classes will involve careful analysis of selected passages, attention to key concepts such as embodiment, intentionality, and perception, and discussion of the philosophical problems that arise from his work. We will also address the historical context in which Merleau-Ponty was writing, and assess how his ideas can be applied to contemporary issues in philosophy, cognitive science, and related fields.
Students will engage with the primary texts in detail, participate in structured discussion, and reflect critically on the strengths and weaknesses of Merleau-Ponty's positions. The course aims to provide a clear understanding of his early philosophical project, its coherence, and its continuing relevance.

Learning Outcome:
Kenntnis grundlegender Begriffe, Probleme und Theorien zum Thema des Seminars; die Fähigkeiten zur selbständigen Erarbeitung und Interpretation philosophischer Texte sowie der kritischen Reflexion von Argumenten aus der Philosophie des 19. und 20. Jahrhunderts. Fähigkeit zur konstruktiven und textbezogenen Diskussion.

Requirements:

Prerequisites:	Für die Teilnahme sind keine Vorkenntnisse erforderlich.
Assessment:	Portfolio 1. Weekly exercises (20%). Each student must submit at least 1 question or comment regarding the assigned primary reading to the OLAT forum at the latest by 18:00 the day before class. You may refer to secondary readings to formulate your question/comment, but the question/comment itself should be specifically about a topic, argument, thought experiment, idea, etc. in the primary reading. In addition to submitting a question/comment, you must answer at least 1 question of another student (or respond to their comment).

2. Presentation (40%). Each student (or group of 2-3 students, depending on the number of participants in the course) must present one of the assigned primary readings. Presentations should last no longer than 20 minutes (excluding Q&A). You must either use MS PowerPoint/Google Slides (or similar software) to present or produce a presentation handout. I encourage you to do both. Like the weekly exercises, you may refer to secondary readings in your presentation. (In fact, I encourage that as well!)
In evaluating the presentations, I will pay attention to whether: (i) you understand the main thesis, issues, and arguments presented in the paper, (ii) you are able to critically engage with the content of the paper by formulating an objection to any argument in the paper, (iii) your presentation is well-structured, and (iv) you present clearly.

3. Short essay (40%). Each student must write a short essay (3 pages max.) about a specific thesis, argument, question, or text, discussed during the course. Deadline for submission is the date of the final class. For instance, you may raise an objection to a text, reformulate or expand an argument, or present a thesis of your own.

In evaluating the short essay, I will pay attention to whether: (i) you make a coherent argument that addresses a well-specified question, (ii) you write clearly and with correct English, (iii) you use proper citations (including any work produced by you or other students for the presentations or weekly exercises). I will also assess (iv) the strength of your argument, over and above whether it is coherent.
In evaluating the weekly exercises, I will pay attention to whether: (i) you understand the main thesis, issues, and arguments presented in the paper, (ii) you are able to critically engage with the content of the paper, (iii) your questions/ comments are clear and easy to understand, and (iv) your questions/comments are well articulated and complete.

Module Epistemic Injustice
06SM160o011 / Module

Description:

General description:
Wir klagen häufig über Ungerechtigkeit, z.B. über die ungerechte Verteilung von Gütern, über soziale Ungerechtigkeit oder über ungerechte Institutionen. In diesen Zusammenhängen ist das Thema seit langem Gegenstand der praktischen Philosophie. Doch auch im Rahmen der theoretischen Philosophie ist das Thema seit einiger Zeit in den Fokus gerückt, was in erster Linie dem Engagement feministischer Philosoph:innen zu verdanken ist. In unserem Seminar wollen wir uns mit einem wirkmächtigen Werk aus dieser Richtung auseinandersetzen: Miranda Frickers Buch «Epistemic Injustice». Fricker thematisiert dort Ungerechtigkeiten, die uns als Erkenntnissubjekte betreffen. Inwiefern verhalten wir uns beispielsweise ungerecht, wenn wir den Ansichten von Personen, die bestimmten sozialen Gruppen angehören, weniger Glauben schenken als anderen? Gibt es strukturelle Benachteiligungen kognitiver Natur, die sich auf die Teilhabe am gesellschaftlichen Leben auswirken? Grenzen bestimmte Praktiken des Erkenntnisgewinns Personen systematisch aus?

Das Seminar wird Frickers Antworten auf diese und andere, damit zusammenhängende, Fragen gewidmet sein.

Learning Outcome:
Die Studierenden lernen zentrale Themen der Erkenntnistheorie, insbesondere der feministischen Erkenntnistheorie anhand eines modernen Klassikers kennen. Sie üben den Umgang mit aktueller Forschungsliteratur zum Thema und lernen es, eine eigene, begründete Position zu teils hochkontroversen Themen einzunehmen.

06SM160o012 / Module

Description:

General description:
In this course, we address the question, «how should we make rational decisions about risk?». We begin by examining the metaphysics of risk, comparing competing answers to the question «what is risk?». We thenmove on to looking at the epistemology of risk, and the consequences it has for rationality and decision-making. Finally, we consider the impact of risk on moral decision-making and moral risks.

ECTS: 6

Notes:
Studierende der Philosophie, die eine Seminararbeit verfassen wollen, buchen nach Absprache mit der Dozentin oder dem Dozenten ein entsprechendes Wahlpflichtmodul ohne Veranstaltung, in dessen Rahmen die Arbeit verfasst wird (vergl. programmspezifische Wegleitung): «Metaphysik» oder «Erkenntnistheorie».

Learning Outcome:
Kenntnis grundlegender Begriffe, Probleme und Theorien zum Thema des Seminars; die Fähigkeiten zur selbständigen Erarbeitung und Interpretation philosophischer Texte sowie der kritischen Reflexion von Argumenten aus der Metaphysik und der Erkenntnistheorie. Fähigkeit zur konstruktiven und textbezogenen Diskussion.

Module Introduction to Data Science
06SM615o528 / Module

Description:

General description:
Das Modul fördert vertieftes Fachwissen in einem ausgewählten Forschungsfeld. Es vermittelt die Kompetenz, zu einem ausgewählten Thema Fragestellungen aus Sicht der Politikwissenschaft zu entwickeln und zu analysieren. Im Zentrum des Seminars stehen die politikwissenschaftliche und normative Analyse, das trennscharfe Analysieren der Begriffe in ihrer Anwendung auf empirische Studien und das Begründen politischer Sachverhalte. Die unterschiedlichen Themen werden theoretisch und empirisch vertieft.

ECTS: 6

Learning Outcome:
Fachkompetenzen: Verortung von Argumenten und empirischen Studien in den relevanten wissenschaftlichen Debatten zu einem ausgewählten Thema; Methodenkompetenzen: wissenschaftliches Schreiben und Argumentieren; Verfassen eines schriftlichen Beitrags (Policy Paper, wissenschaftliche Abhandlung, etc.) Selbstkompetenzen: Definition eigener inhaltlicher Schwerpunkte, Selbsteinschätzung, Planungsfähigkeit.

Module BME 369 Diffusion weighted imaging and tractography in clinical neuroscience
07SMBME369 / Block Course

Description:

General description:
This seminar introduces you to diffusion-weighted imaging (dMRI) and tractography using magnetic resonance imaging (MRI). In the first part of the seminar, we will cover some fundamentals of dMRI and tractography, including physical and theoretical fundamentals of dMRI signal acquisition and modelling as well as tractography algorithms. This will make you set for the second, hands-on part of the seminar: Together, we will go through the complete analysis of a dMRI data set using the software MRtrix3. We will start with a raw data set, as it comes out of the scanner, and at the end, we will have “tracked” some of the most important fiber tracts in one of the organizer’s brain! The practical part will be based on the tutorial “B.A.T.M.A.N.” by the course organizers, which is freely available at https://osf.io/fkyht/ along complementary tutorial data.

ECTS: 6

Notes:
REGISTRATION FOR BLOCKCOURSES HERE
https://www.mybioportal.uzh.ch

Learning Outcome:
Key objectives:

Upon successful completion of the module students should be able to:
•   understand the fundamentals of dMRI and tractography
•   understand the types of questions that can be addressed with dMRI
•   learn how analyze a raw set of dMRI data using the command line and obtain tracts of interest
•   learn about other measures derived from dMRI

Merkmale:	Target Group: Suitable for English Speakers
Responsible instructor:	Philipp Homan

Requirements:

Prerequisites:	General: This course is open to M. Sc. students (basic studies completed) with a general interst in magnetic resonance imaging (MRI) data analysis, seeking to enhance their understanding of diffusion-weighted imaging (dMRI) and tractography in the neurosciences. While this is a basic course, previous knowledge on MRI data analysis and fundamentals of the command-line usage can enhance your learning success Specific: own laptop (Linux or OSX, alternatively Windows with a virtual box apt for Linux computing with at least 8 GB RAM, 16 GB RAM are preferable: note that the course consists of a theoretical and a practical part, whereas the practical part will be performed on your own machines in pairs of two students)
Assessment:	Oral exam, based on an exercise similar to the practical part worked through during the course (in pairs of two students) Language: English
Grading Scale:	1-6, Half Grades Given

Module Hegels Elements of the Philosophy of Right
06SM160o002 / Module

Description:

General description:
Hegels «Grundlinien der Philosophie des Rechts» (1821) reichen weit über das hinaus, was heute unter dem Begriff der Rechtsphilosophie verstanden wird. Sie enthalten neben einer Grundlegung des sog. abstrakten Rechts eine Theorie der Moralität (und deren Grenzen) sowie im Rahmen von Hegels Theorie der Sittlichkeit umfassende Analysen von Institutionen wie Familie, bürgerliche Gesellschaft, Staat. Im Seminar soll anhand dieses grundlegenden Textes zugleich eingeführt werden in Struktur und grundlegende Begriffe von Hegels philosophischem System insgesamt.

Module Descartes Meditations
06SM160o004 / Module

Description:

General description:
Rene Descartes «Meditationen über die erste Philosophie» gehören fraglos zu den philosophischen Klassikern. Das liegt nicht nur daran, dass das Werk überaus einflussreich für die Philosophie der Neuzeit gewesen ist, sondern auch daran, dass Descartes es mit einer Fragestellung beginnt, die gleichermaßen zugänglich wie tief erscheint: Gibt es eigentlich Überzeugungen, an denen ich unter keinen Umständen zweifeln kann? Im Anschluss an seine Antwort auf diese Frage diskutiert Descartes eine Reihe von Themen, die bis heute im Zentrum der theoretischen Philosophie stehen: die Natur von Wissen und Wahrheit, die Beziehung von Körper und Geist und die Existenz Gottes.

ECTS: 6

Notes:
Studierende der Philosophie, die eine Seminararbeit verfassen wollen, buchen nach Absprache mit der Dozentin oder dem Dozenten ein entsprechendes Wahlpflichtmodul ohne Veranstaltung, in dessen Rahmen die Arbeit verfasst wird (vergl. programmspezifische Wegleitung): «Philosophie der Neuzeit», «Erkenntnistheorie» oder «Metaphysik».

Learning Outcome:
Die Studierenden lernen anhand eines klassischen Textes zentrale Probleme aus Erkenntnistheorie, Metaphysik und Philosophie des Geistes kennen. Sie erlernen Lösungstechniken für hermeneutische Probleme bei der Texterschliessung und den zielführenden Umgang mit Sekundärliteratur.

Im Zuge der Bearbeitung von Übungszetteln lernen sie in kleinen Schritten eigenständig die Rekonstruktion von Argumenten und das Verfassen von Texten. Im Seminar üben wir das sorgfältige, textbasierte Argumentieren ein.

Description:

General description:
In diesem Seminar werden wir die einflussreichsten Ideen des Philosophen Franz Brentano im Detail untersuchen. Unser Hauptinteresse gilt zunächst seiner Philosophie des Geistes. Wir werden jedoch auch seine Theorie der Emotionen, einige seiner metaphysischen Thesen sowie seine Werttheorie behandeln. Wir werden hauptsächlich die folgenden Texte lesen:
Psychologie vom empirischen Standpunkt (1874)
Vom Ursprung sittlicher Erkenntnis (1889)

Module What is there at all? Answers from Greek, Arabic, Latin and contemporary analytical metaphysics (ancient philos
06SM160o006 / Module

Description:

General description:
«Existiert Gott?», «Existiert Königin Elisabeth II. (noch)?», «Existiert die Mafia?», «Existiert die Weisheit?», «Existiert dieBlässe?», «Existiert Lord Voldemort?», «Existiert das Böse?»,«Existiert die Quadratwurzel aus vier?»: all diese Fragen haben dasVerb «existieren» gemeinsam. Aber ist der Sinn dieses Verbs in allenSätzen derselbe?

In der Geschichte der Philosophie wurden unterschiedliche Antworten auf diese Fragen gegeben. Nach Aristoteles gibt es vier Sinne von Sein; nach al-Fārābī, Averroes, Thomas von Aquin und anderen mittelalterlichen Philosophen hingegen gibt es zwei Sinne von Sein; nach Gottlob Frege (zumindest in der Auslegung von Bertrand Russell) gibt es nur einen Sinn von Existenz: «Es ist ja Bejahung der Existenz nichts Anderes als Verneinung der Nullzahl.»

Es sieht jedoch nicht so aus, als ob Hamlet, als er sich die Frage «to be or not to be?» stellte, mit einer bloss logisch-mathematischen Denksportaufgabe konfrontiert war - Null oder größer als Null? Vielmehr stand er mit grossem Unbehagen vor einer existenziellen Frage: noch existieren oder nicht mehr existieren, leben oder sterben?

Die Debatte über eben dieses Thema in der analytischen Metaphysik ist noch einmal lebhaft. Einige zeitgenössische Autoren (wie Peter Geach, Anthony Kenny, Barry Miller, Colin McGinn, William Vallicella und Kris McDaniel), die die Auffassung von Frege-Russell-Quine nicht teilen, beziehen sich oft auf Aristoteles oder Thomas von Aquin.

Das Seminar schlägt daher eine erneute Lektüre einiger Klassiker der Metaphysik vor, wie Aristoteles' Metaphysik, das sogenannte Epitome von Averroes, Thomas von Aquins De ente et essentia sowie die beiden Klassiker von Gottlob Frege: Die Grundlagen der Arithmetik und Dialog mit Pünjer über Existenz. Das Seminar ist gleichzeitig auch als Einführung in die Metaphysik von Aristoteles, Al-Fārābi, Averroes, Aquin und Gottlob Frege konzipiert.

Kenntnisse zum Thema des Seminars; die Fähigkeit, sich in komplexe philosophische Themen und Fragen sowie den jeweiligen Forschungsstand einzuarbeiten; die Fähigkeit zur kritischen Reflexion von Argumenten aus der Philosophie der Antike und des Mittelalters sowie des 19. und 20. Jahrhunderts; die Fähigkeit die Kerngedanken einiger Hauptquellen der Metaphysik zu nachvollziehen und in eigenen Worten wiederzugeben.

Module The Power of Praise
06SM160o007 / Module

Description:

General description:
In diesem Seminar beschäftigen wir uns mit philosophischen Theories über moralisches Lob. Im Zentrum stehen dabei drei eng miteinander verknüpfte Fragenkomplexe:

1. Was ist Lob? Was macht ein Lob moralisch?
2. Welche soziale Funktion kann und sollte moralisches Lob erfüllen?
3. Wann wird Lob als angemessen betrachtet?

ECTS: 6

Notes:
Studierende der Philosophie, die eine Seminararbeit verfassen wollen, buchen nach Absprache mit der Dozentin oder dem Dozenten ein entsprechendes Wahlpflichtmodul ohne Veranstaltung, in dessen Rahmen die Arbeit verfasst wird (vergl. programmspezifische Wegleitung): «Angewandte Ethik».

Learning Outcome:
Kenntnis grundlegender Begriffe, Probleme und Theorien zum Thema des Seminars; die Fähigkeiten zur selbständigen Erarbeitung und Interpretation philosophischer Texte sowie der kritischen Reflexion von Argumenten aus der angewandten Ethik. Fähigkeit zur konstruktiven und textbezogenen Diskussion.

Module On Certainty
06SM160o010 / Module

Description:

General description:
This seminar will address key epistemological issues pertaining to the notion of certainty. These issues include, inter alia, the distinction that can be drawn between the attitude of certainty and certainty as a property of a believed proposition, and the relationship between certainty on the one hand and knowledge and epistemic justification on the other hand.

ECTS: 3

Merkmale:

Responsible instructor: Andreas Victor Walser

Requirements:

Assessment: Portfolio

Der Leistungsnachweis für dieses Kolloquium besteht aus mehreren Komponenten:

Referat (ca. 15 Minuten) - Das Referat soll eine klare Fragestellung verfolgen, die Ergebnisse strukturiert präsentieren und zur Diskussion anregen.

Mündliche Beiträge und aktive Teilnahme - Die regelmäßige und aktive Teilnahme an den Diskussionen ist ein zentraler Bestandteil des Kolloquiums. Die Teilnehmenden sollen sich kritisch mit den Beiträgen der anderen auseinandersetzen, Fragen stellen und eigene Perspektiven einbringen.

Abschließender Essay (ca. 3-5 Seiten) - Zum Abschluss des Kolloquiums verfassen die Teilnehmenden einen Essay, der eine eigenständige Fragestellung zu den behandelten Themen aufgreift. Der Essay soll wissenschaftlich fundiert sein und die im Kolloquium erarbeiteten Inhalte reflektieren.

Module Text Generation with Language Models
06SM521o001 / Module

Description:

General description:
AI tools can generate answers, explanations, summaries, translations, programming code, and creative stories. Under the hood, they are using specific algorithms to elicit words and sentences from a language model. In this course, we take a deep dive into text generation with language models. After revising some mathematical foundations, we will implement different text generation algorithms, such as ancestral sampling, speculative decoding and minimum Bayes risk decoding, using Python and the PyTorch machine learning framework. We will then apply our code to real language models and have a close look at the results.

ECTS: 6

Learning Outcome:
The students (1) will be able to describe text generation algorithms using basic information-theoretical concepts; (2) will learn to implement inference algorithms using the PyTorch framework; (3) will learn to evaluate machine-generated text and choose sensible text generation methods for a given purpose

Module Exercise: The Swiss views in the archive of Einsiedeln Abbey. Organising and inventorying
06SM640o001 / Module

Description:

General description:
Die Sammlung des Klosters Einsiedeln ist topographisch geordnet. Die Teilnehmenden erhalten die Aufgabe, sich geographisch zu spezialisieren und sich einem 'Hot spot' der schweizerischen Ansichtenproduktion zu widmen. Vermittelt werden Kenntnisse aus allen Bereichen der Sammlungspflege. Praktische Fragen der druckgraphischen Techniken, der Erhaltung, Konservierung und Katalogisierung sind ebenso Teil der Veranstaltung, wie die kunsthistorischen und rezeptionsgeschichtlichen Aspekte auf dem Gebiet der sogenannten 'Schweizer Kleinmeister'. Die Katalogisate der im Rahmen der Übung bearbeiteten Blätter dienen dem Kloster danach als Grundlage für die eigene Sammlungsdatenbank.

ECTS: 6

Learning Outcome:
Die Studierenden erlernen die Umsetzung des erworbenen kunsthistorischen Wissens in der Praxis und erhalten unter Anleitung die Möglichkeit sowohl ihre schriftlichen als auch praktischen Fähigkeiten zu erproben.

Merkmale:

Responsible instructor:	Raphaèle Odile Preisinger

Requirements:

Prerequisites:	Es sind keine speziellen Vorkenntnisse nötig.
Assessment:	Portfolio. Der Leistungsnachweis besteht aus Referat und schriftlicher Übung, bestanden/nicht-bestanden. --- Die schriftlichen Inventarblätter zu Originalen der Sammlung sind bis zum 7. Juni 2026 abzugeben.

Module Theoretical and practical aspects of medieval archaeology 6 ECTS
06SM640o701 / Module

Description:

General description:
Anhand konkreter Beispiele aus jeweils wechselnden Themen soll der Umgang mit den archäologischen Quellengattungen Funde und Befunde erlernt werden. Vermittelt werden wissenschaftliche Methoden, die es erlauben, Funde und Befunde adäquat anzusprechen, zu beschreiben und übergreifende Verbindungen herzustellen.

ECTS: 6

Notes:
Die Veranstaltung wird im FS26 in 6 Blockkurse vor Ort in Winterthur gegliedert. Die eine vollständige Teilnahme vor Ort wird vorausgesetzt.

Learning Outcome:
Die Studierenden verstehen archäologische Funde und Befunde sowie deren Zusammenhänge. Sie sind in der Lage, Objekte und Fundumstände zu erfassen, zu korrelieren und mit dem theoretischen Grundwissen in Verbindung zu bringen. Die Studierenden kennen einschlägige Fachpublikationen sowie Forschungsmeinungen und sind in der Lage, relevante Zeichnungen, Bilder, Fotos sowie Rekonstruktionen zu interpretieren.

Module What is New Adult Fiction?
06SM440o505 / Module

Description:

General description:
What originally started as an experimental marketing campaign in 2009 has by now become an international staple of bookstores and booktok: "new adult fiction." Neither fully adhering to the coming-of-age narrative commonly found in young adult fiction, nor revolving around watersheds such as parenthood or midlife crises associated with adult fiction, the newly minted genre was supposed to represent and attract people in their twenties.

But what ingredients, specifically, make up a recipe for quintessential "new adult fiction"? How is new adult fiction produced by conglomerate publishers? How is new adult fiction shelved in bookstores-and why might that be culturally significant? What explains the popularity of "50 Shades of Grey"- a novel that prominent critics in the humanities dismiss as "some of the worst writing I have ever seen" (Eva Illouz)? How do industrial and economic factors shape the emergence of new adult fiction and its plotlines? What kind of romantic and sexual scripts can be identified across commercially successful samples of new adult fiction-and why does that matter? And how do we 'do' textualanalysis when a seemingly "basic" popular novel openly explains its own symbolism to the implied recently adult reader?

ECTS: 9

Learning Outcome:
Students are able to: (a) draw on an in-depth knowledge of a specific research topic or area in the field of literary and/or cultural studies; (b) show familiarity with both the current state of research and contemporary debates and issues in the respective area; (c) articulate complex viewpoints concering the respective seminar topic in an appropriate academic register.

Languages of Instruction:
Englisch

Merkmale:

Responsible instructor:	Cedric Essi

Requirements:

Prerequisites:	Students are expected to be familiar with the core concepts of textual analysis and be experienced in the close reading of primary and secondary texts. They should have read a wide range of texts from all the literary periods from the Renaissance to the present, and they are also expected to have written term papers in (English) literature at Bachelor level. Students are required to have good (written) academic English language skills (Level C1). Students are expected to have taken the Reading Literary and Critical Theory Module or an equivalent Master-level course elsewhere.

Module Problems and Methods in Philosophy
06SM160o015 / Module

Description:

General description:
This course introduces philosophical methodology by focusing on central problems in theoretical philosophy. It covers some of the most fundamental and fascinating issues in epistemology, metaphysics, the philosophy of mind, and the philosophy of language. Rather than aiming for an overview of different intellectual traditions, we will try to get a profound understanding of hand-picked philosophical problems by reflecting on the methods by which these problems are tackled. In preparation for each session, students will read an original text addressing an intriguing philosophical problem, such as the problem of the external world, other minds, free will, induction, personal identity, meaning, and consciousness. Based on the selected texts from both classic and contemporary philosophers, students will become familiar with a wide range of philosophical methods; e.g., the Socratic, axiomatic, transcendental, verificationist, dialectic, phenomenological, and experimental method, the appeal to common sense, thought experiments, conceptual analysis, and the method of analogy. This approach will offer profound insights into fundamental questions of Western philosophy while empowering students with the skills to navigate and critically engage with other domains of abstract and complex thought.

ECTS: 6

Notes:
Previous familiarity with philosophy is not required, but students must be prepared to study the weekly reading assignments carefully, ask intelligent questions online, and participate in class actively.
At the beginning of each session, the respective problem and method are explained with a short introduction so we can quickly move on to a challenging group discussion on specific questions. The course will be conducted in English and concludes with a written exam at the end of the semester.
Admission to the written exam requires the submission of 8 reading questions.

Learning Outcome:
The primary objective is to develop analytical skills and learn the methodological essentials of rigorous philosophical argumentation. The students develop a comprehensive understanding of key philosophical problems and methods, acquire the ability to interpret and analyze texts from various historical periods and cultivate the skills necessary to articulate and defend a perspective in thoughtful discussions with others.

Module Model Analysis and Interpretability in NLP
06SM521o501 / Module

Description:

General description:
A seminar serves the scientific deepening of knowledge in a particular subject area. Students learn the methods of scientific work, e.g. how to deal with research literature, how to interpret facts and theories as well as to properly evaluate empirical results. Moreover, they learn how to prepare and give a talk. Students learn how to discuss and evaluate other talks. Finally, they acquire the skill to elaborate their talk in a written format.

ECTS: 6

Learning Outcome:
The students (1) gain further insight in a specific area of Natural Language Processing (2) acquire basic methodological skills needed for scientific research (3) get practice in presenting complex topics in a clear manner (4) can write a scientific paper

Merkmale:	Target Group: Suitable for English Speakers
Responsible instructor:	Rico Sennrich

Requirements:

Prerequisites:	None
Assessment:	Students will 1. perform a brief literature review on a selected method/issue in interpretability research; 2. hold an in-class presentations on the chosen topic; 3. write a scientific report on the topic, ideally including their own experiments. Final grade: 60% scientific report + 40 % presentation ---

Module Forms of philosophical texts - From dialog to journal paper
06SM160o013 / Module

Description:

General description:
Philosophische Gedanken und Argumente entfalten sich stets in konkreten sprachlichen Formen. Ob Platons Dialoge, Montaignes Essays, Kants Kritiken oder zeitgenössische philosophische Fachartikel - jede Textform beeinflusst entscheidend, wie philosophische Gedanken gedacht, präsentiert, diskutiert und rezipiert werden. Werner Stegmeiers Übersicht zählt
50 verschiedene Formen auf. Von dieser Vielfalt ist heute nicht mehr viel übrig. Mit Blick auf den gegenwärtigen akademischen Betrieb scheint es fast so, als hätte die Philosophie im Paper zu ihrer definitive Gestalt gefunden - und dies obwohl innovative Gedanken immer wieder auch mit formalen Innovationen einher gingen.
Das Artensterben ist vor allem dann Anlass zur Sorge, wenn man die Form als etwas versteht, was der Argumentation und dem Denken nicht äusserlich ist. Wenn also formale Besonderheiten nicht einfach der Rhetorik zugeschlagen werden können, für die die Literaturwissenschaften zuständig wären, sondern vielfältige, wenn auch komplizierte Bezüge zu den Wahrheitsansprüchen des Textes unterhalten.

ECTS: 6

Notes:
Studierende der Philosophie, die eine Seminararbeit verfassen wollen, buchen nach Absprache mit der Dozentin oder dem Dozenten ein entsprechendes Wahlpflichtmodul ohne Veranstaltung, in dessen Rahmen die Arbeit verfasst wird (vergl. programmspezifische Wegleitung): «Erkenntnistheorie»

Learning Outcome:
Kenntnis grundlegender Begriffe, Probleme und Theorien zum Thema des Seminars; die Fähigkeiten zur selbständigen Erarbeitung und Interpretation philosophischer Texte sowie der kritischen Reflexion von Argumenten aus der Erkenntnistheorie. Fähigkeit zur konstruktiven und textbezogenen Diskussion.

Module The pre-Socratics: profound or immature thinking?
06SM160o502 / Module

Description:

General description:
Seit langem, nämlich seit Platon und dann wieder im 20. Jahrhundert, haben vorsokratische Denker wie Heraklit oder Parmenides den Nimbus von tiefgründigen Denkern, die das Prinzip des Weltganzen enthüllen. Dies kontrastiert mit der einflussreichen Auffassung von Aristoteles, wonach es sich bei allem vorsokratischen Denken um ein unsystematisches und unreifes handelt.
Das Seminar wird diesem Kontrast nachgehen und dafür die Fragmente behandeln von Parmenides, Heraklit, Xenophanes, Anaxagoras, Demokrit, Empedokles sowie Protagoras.
Griechischkenntnisse sind nicht erforderlich, aber die Bereitschaft, sich mit den oft nur kurzen Textfragmenten eingehend zu befassen.
Zudem wird am Ende jeder Seminarsitzung exemplarisch das Verfassen von philosophischen Arbeiten eingeübt.

ECTS: 6

Notes:
Studierende der Philosophie, die eine Seminararbeit verfassen wollen, buchen nach Absprache mit der Dozentin oder dem Dozenten ein entsprechendes Wahlpflichtmodul ohne Veranstaltung, in dessen Rahmen die Arbeit verfasst wird (vergl. programmspezifische Wegleitung): «Philosophie der Antike und des Mittelalters (Vertiefung)»».

Learning Outcome:
Kenntnisse zum Thema des Seminars; die Fähigkeit, sich in komplexe philosophische Themen und Fragen sowie den jeweiligen Forschungsstand einzuarbeiten; die Fähigkeit zur kritischen Reflexion von Argumenten aus der Philosophie der Antike und des Mittelalters

Description:

General description:
In diesem Modul wird die skandinavische Überlieferung in Hinblick auf mediale Erscheinungsformen in der Moderne in den Blick genommen und dabei vor allem das Zusammenspiel verschiedener Medien (z.B. Handschrift und Druck, Text und Bild) in diachroner wie synchroner Perspektive in den Blick genommen. Unter Rückgriff auf medienhistorische wie -theoretische Ansätze werden Charakteristika und Besonderheiten intermedialer Konstellationen im skandinavischen Kontext untersucht.

ECTS: 3

Learning Outcome:
Die Studierenden wissen um die mediale Verfasstheit der modernen skandinavischen Literaturen und Kulturen und können skandinavische Entwicklungen historisch kontextualisieren und zu theoretischen Ansätzen in Bezug setzen.

Module Modern Scandinavian Literature: Ibsen
06SM360o233 / Module

Description:

General description:
In diesem Modul wird die Fähigkeit des Verstehens von abstrakten theoretischen Texten und von Sekundärtexten zur skandinavistischen Literaturwissenschaft erarbeitet, ebenso die Fähigkeit zur Erprobung von Lektüre- und Interpretationsverfahren auf diesem Fachgebiet. Das selbständige Abfassen einer wissenschaftlichen Hausarbeit zu einem Themengebiet aus der Neueren Skandinavistik steht am Ende dieses Moduls, also der Umgang mit literaturwissenschaftlichen Forschungsansätzen in Bezug auf Texte der neueren skandinavischen Literatur und die selbständige Aufarbeitung eines skandinavischen Materials.

ECTS: 6

Learning Outcome:
Die Studierenden sind in der Lage, abstrakte theoretische Texte und Sekundärliteratur im Umfeld der skandinavistischen Literaturwissenschaft zu lesen und zu verstehen. Sie können das im Kurs erlernte Wissen auf ein selbständiges Projekte (Abfassung einer ca.
8-10-seitigen wissenschaftlichen Hausarbeit zu einem Themengebiet aus der neueren skandinavischen Literatur) anwenden.

Merkmale:

Responsible instructor:	Andreas Victor Walser

Requirements:

Prerequisites:	Studieneingangsphase erfolgreich bestanden
Assessment:	Portfolio --- Der Leistungsnachweis in diesem Kolloquium ist ein Portfolio aus verschiedenen Aufgaben, welche die Schritte eines Archivbesuchs bis zur fertig ausgewerteten Quelle imitieren. Die geforderten Aufgaben sind: ein Quellengutachten zu einer nach den Vorgaben der Dozentin ausgewählten und selbst digitalisierten Quelle aus dem Staatsarchiv Zürich, Abgabe des Transkriptionsentwurfs, Halten eines Quellenreferats als Werkstattbericht sowie zum Schluss die Abgabe der definitiven Transkription inklusive eines kurzen Kommentars im Editionsstil. Zusätzlich müssen 5 vorgegebene Quellenübungen auf der e-learning Plattform Ad fontes gelöst werden. Hilfreiche Tools und Tipps für die einzelnen Schritte stellt die Dozentin im Unterricht vor. Es ist nach Absprache möglich, eine Quelle zu bearbeiten, die für eine Seminararbeit benötigt wird.

Module PhD Working Group Arts and Social Sciences
06SMG00o101 / Module

Description:

General description:
Die interdisziplinäre Forschungswerkstatt, organisiert durch das Asien- Orient-Institut, richtet sich an alle Doktorierende und Postdocs der Philosophischen Fakultät. Der Kurs ist so konzipiert, dass ein interaktiver Austausch zwischen allen Teilnehmern möglich ist, z.B. durch die Diskussion eigener Forschungsfragen, Präsentation von Kapiteln und Austausch von Erfahrungen über den Schreibprozess.
Die Forschungswerkstatt thematisiert aktuelle Forschungsfragen und Probleme. Sie versteht sich als spezifische Arbeitsform, bei der methodologische und theoretische Fragen unter Einbeziehung der Gruppe der Anwesenden diskutiert werden.
Die gemeinsame Auseinandersetzung mit konkreten Problemen aus den einzelnen Forschungsprojekten der Mitglieder der Forschungswerkstatt soll es ermöglichen, unter Berücksichtigung der Vielzahl an eingebrachten Perspektiven einen anregungs- und ertragreichen Austausch zu initiieren. Teilnehmende, die ihr Projekt vorstellen möchten, werden gebeten, sich vorab mit dem Werkstattleiter/der Werkstattleiterin in Verbindung zu setzen.

ENGLISH:
The interdisciplinary research workshop is aimed at doctoral students and postdocs from all humanities and is organized by the Institut for Asian and Oriental Studies. The course is designed to enable an interactive exchange between all participants, e.g. by discussion of own research questions and challenges among peers. Presentation of chapters and exchanging experiences about the writing process.
The research workshop addresses current research questions and problems.
It is a specific form of work in which methodological and theoretical questions are discussed with the involvement of the group of participants.
The joint discussion of specific problems from the individual research projects of the members of the research workshop should make it possible to initiate a stimulating and fruitful exchange, taking into account the multitude of perspectives brought in. Participants who would like to present their project are asked to contact the group leader in advance.

Module Doctoral Day
06SMG92o001 / Module

Description:

General description:
The aim of this course is to discuss and advance the PhD projects the students are working on. A short session is devoted to the presentation of each thesis project. In the remaining sessions, some of the individual projects are presented and discussed at length.

Presenting students submit their paper one week in advance so that the plenary has enough time to read and comment on them. In their oral presentations students highlight particular issues they would like to discuss.

Students are supposed to present their work at the beginning of their project (before field research) and at an advanced stage (after their field research).

At least two of the four professors will be present, depending on the topics to be presented.

Module Democracy Studies Research Colloquium
06SMG94o003 / Module

Description:

General description:
The Democracy Studies Research Colloquium is the occasion for every member of the Doctoral Programme Democracy Studies (DPDS) to share and learn about research on democracy undertaken by colleagues following different disciplinary or methodological approaches, thus gaining new insights and knowledge.

The extensive time slots planned for each presentation allow in-depth discussions and ensure that the presenting doctoral members can benefit from comments, questions, and discussions following their presentations.

The presenters circulate their articles or chapter ahead of time, and all the participants attending the colloquium will read these texts and be ready to discuss them.

Module Writers Workshop for Social Scientists for PhD Students
06SMG95o003 / Module

Description:

General description:
This course is intended to help graduate students become confident and capable writers of scientific articles in English. It is intended for students who wish to begin to write a scientific article or are currently writing such an article. Professor Shanahan will introduce some preliminary material and then students will circulate their drafts to the rest of the class for peer critique of the writing. Emphasis is placed on providing a constructive, collegial atmosphere of support and encouragement with the goal that each participant will make substantial progress on her or his article during the semester.

ECTS: 1

Learning Outcome:
Participants in this course will (1) learn the basic orientation to scientific writing in English and common pitfalls, (2) provide and receive feedback about scientific writing, and (3) make substantial progress on their own scientific articles.

Module Communicating Science: PhD Seminar on Writing Quantitative Papers
06SMG95o101 / Module

Description:

General description:
Whether you are a Master student, a PhD student or a senior scientist, your reputation and success rests on the ability to communicate your ideas and data. The seminar provides a forum for discussing research projects on advanced topics in theory-oriented quantitative social science. It is organized as a practical and collaborative workshop focusing on improving the scientific writing of own manuscripts and reviewing and discussing paper drafts of the other participants. Research projects can be discussed at different stages of development from early conceptual ideas to advanced written articles. The topics focus on linking theoretical actor-based models with empirical tests designed for causal inference. The substantive areas are broad, including e.g. social norms, cooperation, trust, deviance, crime, social networks, wisdom of crowds, sociology of science, analytical sociology, rational-choice and game theory, experimental methods, causal inference and quantitative methods.

ECTS: 2

Notes:
Online participation not possible

Readings:
1. Montgomery, Scott L. (2003): The Chicago guide to communicating science. University of Chicago Press.
Coleman, James S., and James Samuel Coleman. Foundations of social theory. Harvard university press, 1994.
2. Shadish, William R., Thomas D. Cook, and Donald T. Campbell (2002): Experimental and quasi-experimental designs for generalized causal inference. Houghton, Mifflin and Company, 2002.

Learning Outcome:
The objective of this course is twofold. First, students learn how to communicate their ideas, methods and data to the scientific audience and how to express comments and criticism to their peers both orally and in written form by crafting scientific reviews. Second, the research seminar aims to help students to improve their current work, develop and discuss their ideas in quantitative social science, and nurture their creativity.

Module Digital Governance
06SM615o537 / Module

Description:

General description:
Das Modul fördert vertieftes Fachwissen in einem ausgewählten Forschungsfeld. Es vermittelt die Kompetenz, zu einem ausgewählten Thema Fragestellungen aus Sicht der Politikwissenschaft zu entwickeln und zu analysieren. Im Zentrum des Seminars stehen die politikwissenschaftliche und normative Analyse, das trennscharfe Analysieren der Begriffe in ihrer Anwendung auf empirische Studien und das Begründen politischer Sachverhalte. Die unterschiedlichen Themen werden theoretisch und empirisch vertieft.

ECTS: 6

Learning Outcome:
Fachkompetenzen: Verortung von Argumenten und empirischen Studien in den relevanten wissenschaftlichen Debatten zu einem ausgewählten Thema; Methodenkompetenzen: wissenschaftliches Schreiben und Argumentieren; Verfassen eines schriftlichen Beitrags (Policy Paper, wissenschaftliche Abhandlung, etc.) Selbstkompetenzen: Definition eigener inhaltlicher Schwerpunkte, Selbsteinschätzung, Planungsfähigkeit.

Languages of Instruction:
Deutsch/Englisch - siehe Sprache der Lehrveranstaltung(en)

Merkmale:	Target Group: Suitable for English Speakers
Responsible instructor:	Silja Häusermann

Requirements:

Assessment:	Portfolio --- Schriftliche Arbeit 60% / Schriftliche Übung 40% Bitte beachten: Alle Elemente des Portfolios müssen absolviert werden. Wird ein Element nicht absolviert, gilt das gesamte Portfolio als nicht absolviert und das Modul damit als nicht bestanden. Please note: All elements of the portfolio must be completed. If an element is not completed, the entire portfolio is deemed not to have been completed and the module thus failed.

Module Artificial Intelligence Terminology
06SM521o502 / Module

Description:

General description:
A seminar serves the scientific deepening of knowledge in a particular subject area. Students learn the methods of scientific work, e.g. how to deal with research literature, how to interpret facts and theories as well as to properly evaluate empirical results. Moreover, they learn how to prepare and give a talk. Students learn how to discuss and evaluate other talks. Finally, they acquire the skill to elaborate their talk in a written format.

ECTS: 6

Learning Outcome:
Students (1) gain further insights into a specific area of natural language processing; (2) acquire basic methodological skills needed for scientific research (3); obtain practice in presenting complex topics in a clear manner (4); are capable of writing a scientific paper.

Module Computational Processing of Speech Rhythm for Language and Speaker Classification
06SM521o003 / Module

Description:

General description:
Speech rhythm plays a key role in human communication. Thanks to computational models of speech rhythm nowadays it is possible to quantify between-language and
-speaker variability, as well as speech variations caused by extra-linguistic factors (i.e. emotional states, aging, and health conditions).
After a brief introduction about the theoretical fundamentals in the study of speech rhythm, the course will:a) present recent models for speech rhythm processing, b) show the practical applications of these models for language and speaker classification,
c) introduce common automatic classification algorithms.

ECTS: 6

Learning Outcome:
Students are expected to know: a) Historical overview of speech rhythm research; b) Current models of speech rhythm and their applications to language and speaker classification (Duration-/Intensity-/F0-/Loudness- based metrics, Combined metrics);
c) Common automatic classification algorithms; d) Students will also be enabled to apply the current models of speech rhythm to the analysis of spoken corpora in different languages.

Module Much that is new in the west – museum landscape(s) of western Switzerland
06SM640o006 / Module

Description:

ECTS: 3

Notes:
Bitte bewerben Sie sich bis zum 01. Februar 2026 per Mail mit dem Betreff «Exkursion Westen» an Jonas Schnydrig (jonas.schnydrig@khist.uzh.ch). Fügen Sie folgende Angaben hinzu: Name, E-Mailadresse, Matrikel-Nr., Haupt- und Nebenfach (mit Semesterzahl), inklusive kurzes Motivationsschreiben und CV. Sprachkenntnisse in Französisch werden nicht zwingend vorausgesetzt, sind aber definitiv von Vorteil.
Die Teilnehmerzahl ist auf 10 begrenzt und wird nach Eingangsdatum bearbeitet. Die Veranstaltung wird erst ab mind. 8 Teilnehmenden durchgeführt. Angenommene Bewerbende werden bis zum 15. Februar benachrichtigt.

Learning Outcome:
Die Studierenden erlernen Techniken der Beschreibung und Analyse von Originalen. Sie reflektieren den räumlichen und kulturellen Kontext, in den die Werke eingebunden sind.

Module Construction Documentation
06SM682o005 / Module

Description:

General description:
Das Modul Bauaufnahme bietet eine theoretische und praktische Einführung in die Dokumentation und Vermessung historischer Bausubstanz. Im Zentrum steht die Erstellung einer systematischen Bestandsaufnahme in Form von Plänen, Skizzen, Fotografien und Beschreibungen, die als Grundlage für weiterführende bauanalytische Untersuchungen dienen. Der Kurs vermittelt die grundlegenden Techniken der Vermessung und gibt einen Überblick über die gängigen händischen und digitalen Methoden der Bauaufnahme. Ergänzend wird die relevante Fachterminologie zur Beschreibung von Architektur und Konstruktion eingeführt. In praktischen Übungen werden die Dokumentationsmethoden, mit Schwerpunkt auf der zeichnerischen Bauaufnahme, geübt.

ECTS: 3

Learning Outcome:
Die Studierenden kennen den Zweck von Bauaufnahme und Bauforschung im Rahmen der archäologischen Wissenschaften. Sie sind in der Lage, verschiedene Plan-Darstellungsarten zu lesen und zu beurteilen. Sie erlangen Grundwissen zur Bauwerksvermessung und können ein einfaches Handaufmass selbstständig durchführen. Darüber hinaus kennen sie aktuelle digitale Methoden der Bauaufnahme und deren Einsatzmöglichkeiten. Die Studierenden erlernen ausserdem die für die verbale Beschreibung notwendige bautechnische Terminologie. Sie erwerben somit die Kompetenz, historische Bausubstanz mittels Text, Plan, Skizzen und Fotos gesamthaft dokumentarisch zu erfassen.

Module Physiological Mechanisms of Speech
06SMG62o103 / Module

Description:

General description:
"Physiological Mechanisms of Speech" is an advanced, interdisciplinary course that examines the physiological foundations of human speech production and perception. Integrating applied neuroscience, biomedical engineering, and multisensory research, it covers respiratory, laryngeal, articulatory, nervous, auditory, and cardiovascular systems and their dynamic coordination during speech. Core topics include respiratory mechanics and speech breathing; brainstem, cortical, and subcortical control of respiration, phonation, and articulation; cocalfold biomechanics and pitch control; articulatory mechanics and computational models; auditory encoding and multisensory integration; and cardioencephalic coupling and autonomic modulation of speech under stress and disease.
Students will engage with contemporary theoretical models (e.g., DIVA, state feedback control), experimental perturbation paradigms, and clinical perspectives on disorders.Methodological training covers aerodynamic measures (spirometry, airflow, oral/nasal pressure), laryngoscopy and high-speed imaging, EMG, articulatory tracking (EMA, ultrasound), and neuroimaging (EEG/MEG, fMRI), with emphasis on multimodal data integration and analytic trade-offs.
Students will critically evaluate primary research, learn measurement and analysis approaches, and develop integrative perspectives linking physiological mechanisms to linguistic and cognitive theories. Targeted to linguistic PhD students, the course prepares participants for interdisciplinary research and translational applications by linking system-level physiology to fluent, adaptive human speech and communication.

Module How to Design Your Study
06SMG61o105 / Module

Description:

General description:
When we read a research paper, we often overlook how the research was designed. However, understanding the study design is essential for assessing the quality of the findings. For example, researchers in Linguistics, and more broadly in Social Sciences and Humanities, may conduct observational studies, such as corpus studies, or experimental studies that test the effect of specific interventions (e.g., pronunciation training).
This course will address seven key issues.
We will begin with the distinction between observational and experimental studies, emphasizing causality. Next, different types of experimental designs (true, pre-, and quasi-experimental) will be described. After that, we will discuss randomization and blocking (i.e., control), as well as research validity. Finally, specific designs (e.g., factorial, Latin square, split-plot designs) will be presented, together with the notions of power, effect size, and sample size. At the end of the course, the students will be able to define the most appropriate design for their own research questions.

06SM521o004 / Module

Description:

General description:
Das Seminar dient der wissenschaftlichen Bearbeitung eines spezifischen Themenbereichs. Dabei werden die Methoden wissenschaftlichen Arbeitens erlernt, z.B. das Rezipieren von Fachliteratur, die Informationssuche, das Strukturieren von Fakten und Theorien, sowie das eigenständige Beurteilen empirischer Befunde. Daneben lernen die Studierenden einen Vortrag zu konzipieren und zu halten. Sie lernen mit anderen über das Gehörte zu diskutieren und es zu bewerten. Schliesslich erwerben sie die Fähigkeit zur schriftlichen Ausarbeitung ihres Vortrags.

ECTS: 6

Learning Outcome:
Die Studierenden (1) vertiefen ihr Wissen in einem spezifischen Gebiet (2) erlernen die methodischen Grundkompetenzen wissenschaftlicher Arbeit (3) üben das verständliche Präsentieren komplexer Sachverhalte (4) können eine wissenschaftliche Arbeit verfassen

Description:

General description:
Sommerschulen dienen dazu, den Studierenden vertiefenden Einblick in spezifische computerlinguistische Themenbereiche zu geben. Sie festigen das bisher im Studium Gelernte, erweitern ihre Kenntnis der zentralen Inhalte und bieten ihnen in kompakter Weise Zugang zu neuen Ansätzen. Sie werden auf aktuelle Trends aufmerksam, tauschen Erfahrungen und Einschätzungen mit Studierenden anderer Universitäten aus, und bekommen auf diese Weise die Möglichkeit, das internationale Niveau kennenzulernen und gleichzeitig Beziehungen zu knüpfen, die über das Studium hinaus hilfreich sein können. Dieses Modul kann gebucht werden, um den Besuch von Sommerschulen im Bereich der Sprachverarbeitung anrechnen zu lassen. Dieses Modul kann mit einer Punktzahl von 3 oder 6 gebucht werden. Die Punktanzahl wird in Absprache mit dem Modulverantwortlichen festgelegt.

ECTS: 6

Notes:
Die Studierenden müssen selbständig eine geeignete Summer School finden, die inhaltlich zum Studienprogramm passt. Vor Beginn der Summer School ist ein Antrag an die modulverantwortliche Person zu senden - mit Angaben zur Institution, dem Titel, den Daten, dem Arbeitsaufwand, den Inhalten sowie zur Relevanz für das Studienprogramm.

Hinweis: Eine finanzielle Unterstützung durch das Institut für Computerlinguistik ist nicht vorgesehen.

Nach Abschluss der Summer School ist eine E-Mail an die modulverantwortliche Person zu senden mit folgenden Angaben:
(1) vollständiger Name,
(2) Matrikelnummer,
(3) Studienprogramm,
(4) Modulnummer,
(5) Anzahl der ECTS-Punkte (in der Regel 3 oder 6),
(6) offizielle Teilnahmebestätigung (PDF),
(7) ein kurzer Bericht (500-1000 Wörter, ca. 1-2 Seiten) zu Lernerfahrungen und Relevanz.

Das Modul wird danach für das Semester, in dem die Summer School stattgefunden hat, durch die modulverantwortliche Person gebucht und als bestanden bewertet. Eine selbstständige Buchung im Buchungstool ist nicht möglich.

Learning Outcome:
Die Studierenden (1) repetieren und verfestigen Gelerntes (2) erarbeiten neue Inhalte/Themenbereiche in kompakter Form (3) lernen aktuelle Trends kennen (4) tauschen Erfahrungen aus mit Studierenden anderer Universitäten (5) machen Networking auf internationaler Ebene

Merkmale:	Target Group: Suitable for English Speakers
Responsible instructor:	Simon Clematide

Requirements:

Prerequisites:	Dieses Modul kann nicht selbst gebucht werden, die Buchung des Moduls muss vom Modulverantwortlichen autorisiert werden. Bevor die Sommerschule besucht wird, muss die Anrechnung mit dem Modulverantwortlichen abgesprochen werden.

Module Summer School
06SM521o503 / Module

Description:

General description:
Summer schools are designed to give students an in-depth insight into specific subject areas. This way, they consolidate what they have learned so far during their studies, expand their knowledge of core theories and understand new approaches in a compact way. They become aware of current trends, they exchange experiences and assessments with students from other universities, and thus get the opportunity to get to know the international level and at the same time establish relationships that can be helpful beyond their studies. This module can be booked to credit the attendance at summer schools that are related to Natural Language Processing. This module can be booked with 3 or 6 ECTS points. The amount of points will be decided in consultation with the module coordinator.

ECTS: 6

Notes:
Students must independently find a suitable summer school relevant to their degree program. Before the summer school begins, they must send a request to the module coordinator, including details on the institution, title, dates, workload, content, and relevance.

Note: No financial support from the Department is foreseen.

After completing the summer school, students must send an email to the module coordinator with the following details:
(1) full name,
(2) matriculation number,
(3) degree program,
(4) module number,
(5) number of ECTS credits to be awarded (typically 3 or 6),
(6) official confirmation of participation (PDF),
(7) a short reflection (500-1000 words, approx.
1-2 pages) on learning outcomes and relevance.

The module will then be booked and marked as passed by the module coordinator for the semester in which the summer school took place. Self-enrollment via the booking tool is not possible.

Learning Outcome:
Learning objectives are (1) repeat and consolidate what you have learned (2) acquire new content / topic areas in a compact form (3) get to know the latest trends (4) exchange of experiences with students from other universities (5) networking at international level

Merkmale:	Target Group: Suitable for English Speakers
Responsible instructor:	Simon Clematide

Requirements:

Prerequisites:	This module can not be booked by the students themselves, the booking has to be authorized by the module coordinator. In order to credit the attendance at a summer school, it is essential to submit a request to the module coordinator before the start of the summer school.

Module BIO 404 Science Fiction for Biologists
07SMBIO404 / Course

Description:

General description:
Biology has fuelled speculative literature for centuries. Zombie pathogens, biopunk futures, endless seasons, spider matriarchies, androids dreaming of electric sheep—fictional ideas often grow from real biological seeds. Conversely, imaginative concepts like cloning have moved from fiction into scientific reality. This lecture explores how seemingly wild sci-fi ideas are grounded in biology, highlighting the interplay between fact and fantasy.

ECTS: 1

Learning Outcome:
After completing this module, students should be able to identify roots of biological metaphors in speculative fiction and better understand narratives that may inspire scientific curiosity.

Module Contemporary Chinese Politics
06SM615o538 / Module

Description:

General description:
Das Modul fördert vertieftes Fachwissen in einem ausgewählten Forschungsfeld. Es vermittelt die Kompetenz, zu einem ausgewählten Thema Fragestellungen aus Sicht der Politikwissenschaft zu entwickeln und zu analysieren. Im Zentrum des Seminars stehen die politikwissenschaftliche und normative Analyse, das trennscharfe Analysieren der Begriffe in ihrer Anwendung auf empirische Studien und das Begründen politischer Sachverhalte. Die unterschiedlichen Themen werden theoretisch und empirisch vertieft.

ECTS: 6

Learning Outcome:
By the end of this course, students will be able to:

Understand the historical trajectory of China's political development since 1949 and identify its key turning points.

Analyze the institutions, actors, and mechanisms that structure political power and governance in contemporary China.

Critically evaluate the major challenges facing the Chinese Communist Party.

Module Methods of Social Network Analysis
06SM240o027 / Module

Description:

General description:
Social network analysis (SNA) is focussed on the relation between individuals and the features that go along with certain network positions. By now, it is applied in various areas of sociological research and in the broader social sciences. This course introduces the most common, basic empirical methods of SNA. A focus lies on the description of individual positions, such as centrality and brokerage, and on network-level description, such as community detection or measures of homophily. The theoretical introduction of core network concepts is accompanies by extensive practicals using the statistical software R.

ECTS: 6

Notes:
Some familiarity with the statistical software R is recommended. The course requires some affinity to programming or willingness to learn.

Learning Outcome:
The students will be able to understand the most common empirical tools to analyse social networks. This enables the critical understanding and evaluation of contemporary network literature using common descriptive network methods. Further, students will learn to apply them to empirical datasets, in particular network data of informal relationships between individuals. This will allow the students to answer basic and intermediate empirical questions relating to social networks and carry out simple empirical studies using network methodology.

Module Tourism & Sustainability
06SM240o029 / Module

Description:

General description:
Der Tourismus ist laut BfS (2020) eine der wichtigsten Exportbranchen der Schweiz und gleichzeitig eine der "schmutzigsten", wenn man beispielsweise die Treibhausgasemissionen, die dieser Sektor verursacht, in Betracht zieht (Lenzen et al., 2018). In diesem Seminar bekommen die Studierenden einen Überblick über die Tourismusbranche, ihre wichtigsten Stakeholder sowie deren Einfluss auf eine nachhaltige Entwicklung. Diese Grundlage dient der Analyse von Fallstudien, die mittels "problem based learning" (PBL) in Gruppen unter den Studierenden erarbeitet werden. Die Ergebnisse dieser Gruppenarbeiten werden mittels Präsentationen vorgestellt und im Anschluss mit Hilfe von unterschiedlichen Diskussionstechniken (z.B. Amerikanische Debatte, Fish Bowl, Podiumsdiskussionen etc.) kontrovers reflektiert. Neben den Gruppenpräsentationen gibt es eine individuell zu verfassende schriftliche Arbeit zu einem weiteren Themenbereich.

ECTS: 6

Learning Outcome:
Ziele dieser Veranstaltung sind:
a) Kennenlernen des touristischen Wirtschaftssektors
b) Auseinandersetzung mit Fallstudien zu ökologischen, sozialen und ökonomischen Auswirkungen des Tourismus
c) Schulung der Informationsverarbeitung (Sammeln, Strukturieren, Analysieren, Verdichten und Reflektieren) mittels PBL
d) Schulung der Fähigkeiten zur kritischen Reflexion bestimmter umstrittener Sachverhalte mittels unterschiedlicher Diskussionstechniken

Module Time, Money, Inequality and Solidarity in Social Relationships
06SM240o030 / Module

Description:

General description:
Warum haben Männer mehr Freizeit und Frauen weniger Vermögen? Warum ist Vermögen in der Schweiz viel ungleicher verteilt als Einkommen? Wessen Zeit ist wie viel wert? Und wie verändern sich Ungleichheiten über den Lebenslauf?
Längst ist bekannt, dass es sich bei sozialen Ungleichheiten nicht um Naturgegebenheiten handelt. Vielmehr spiegeln sie historisch gewachsene soziale Machtverhältnisse wider und können als solche auch gesellschaftlich verändert werden.
Das Seminar beleuchtet Ungleichheit und Solidarität in sozialen Beziehungen aus einer soziologischen Perspektive. In der gemeinsamen Auseinandersetzung werden sowohl soziologische Klassiker als auch zeitgenössische theoretische Konzepte und aktuelle empirische Auswertungen berücksichtigt. Anschliessend befassen wir uns mit den solidarischen Potentialen und Grenzen von romantischen Beziehungen, Generationenbeziehungen, Freund*innenschaften und Geschwisterbeziehungen.

ECTS: 6

Learning Outcome:
- Soziologische Konzeptualisierungen von Ungleichheit und Solidarität kennenlernen.
- Relevante Verbindungen zu anderen Themenfeldern erkennen.
- Eine Forschungsfrage mit Bezug zum Themenfeld entwickeln und das eigene Forschungsprojekt in der Gruppe diskutieren.
- Die Forschungsfrage weiterentwickeln und im Rahmen einer eigenen schriftlichen Arbeit beantworten.

Module Communicating Science: Seminar on Writing Quantitative Papers
06SM240o501 / Module

Description:

General description:
Whether you are a Master student, a PhD student or a senior scientist, your success rests on the ability to communicate your ideas and data. The seminar provides a forum for discussing M.A. and Ph.D. research projects on advanced topics in theory-oriented quantitative social science. It is organized as a practical and collaborative workshop focusing on improving the scientific writing of own manuscripts and reviewing and discussing paper drafts of the other participants. Research projects can be discussed at different stages of development from early conceptual ideas to advanced written articles. The topics focus on linking theoretical actor-based models with empirical tests designed for causal inference. The substantive areas are broad, including e.g. social norms, cooperation, trust, deviance, crime, social networks, wisdom of crowds, sociology of science, analytical sociology, rational-choice and game theory, experimental methods, causal inference and quantitative methods.

ECTS: 3

Learning Outcome:
The objective of this course is twofold. First, students learn how to communicate their ideas, methods and data to the scientific audience and how to express comments and criticism to their peers both orally and in written form by crafting scientific reviews. Second, the seminar aims to help students to improve their current work, be it their Master thesis, Ph.D. thesis or Post-Doctoral research papers, develop and discuss their ideas in quantitative social science, and nurture their creativity.

Module Beyond Algorithms: How AI Reshapes Society
06SM240o025 / Module

Description:

General description:
Artificial Intelligence (AI) is transforming the way we work, learn and interact, and is becoming a key player in shaping everyday experiences and societal norms. This course critically examines the evolving relationship between humans and AI, focusing on how it is reconfiguring social structures, agency and identity. We will explore AI's capabilities, real-world applications, and key approaches such as AI ethics and human-centred AI. Examining areas such as education, work, and research, students will analyse the impact of AI and reflect on its risks - bias, inequality, and changing social dynamics - while envisioning pathways for a responsible future. Through case studies and theoretical insights, the course challenges students to engage with AI not just as a technology, but as a transformative social phenomenon. Students from all disciplines will gain a nuanced understanding of the societal role of AI and tools to critically assess its promises and pitfalls.

ECTS: 6

Learning Outcome:
Students will leave the course with the following learning outcomes:
1. Understand the societal implications of human-AI interaction and AI integration.
2. Analyse the impact of AI on social structures, roles and agency.
3. Critically evaluate approaches such as ethical AI and human-centred AI.
4. Apply theoretical and practical insights to real-world examples of AI in education, work and research.
5. Reflect on the potential and risks of AI through an interdisciplinary, critical lens.

Module Marx and the Marxisms
06SM240o026 / Module

Description:

General description:
Unbestritten ein soziologischer Klassiker, hat Karl Marx (1818-1883) die Entwicklung der Sozialwissenschaften wie auch politische Bewegungen des 19. und 20. Jahrhunderts nachhaltig beeinflusst. In der Vorlesung wird die Herausbildung des Marx/Engels'schen Theorieansatzes in ihren Etappen rekonstruiert, die Haupttexte werden vorgestellt (und durch Eigenlektüre der Studierenden erarbeitet), unter Bezug auf moderne Interpretationen, Kritiken und Weiterentwicklungen. Grundlegend für die Vorlesung ist das Verständnis des Marxschen Projekts als das Bemühen um die Begründung einer kritischen Theorie der Gesellschaft in politisch-emanzipatorischer Absicht. In diesem Sinne stehen weniger philosophiehistorische, politik- oder sozialgeschichtliche Aspekte im Vordergrund, sondern methodische Probleme sowie die zentralen theoretischen und analytischen Konzepte wie Entfremdung, Ausbeutung, Klasse, Staat, Ideologie, Kapitalismus, Krise, Weltmarkt und ihre gesellschaftstheoretische Verknüpfung.

ECTS: 6

Learning Outcome:
Das Marxsche Projekt als (unvollendetes) Projekt zur Grundlegung einer kritischen Gesellschaftstheorie in seinen historischen Etappen verstehen; die zentralen Begriffe und Verknüpfungen verstehen und in diesem Kontext verorten zu können; ausgewählte weiterführende Interpretationen und Anknüpfungen verstehen.

Module Biological Informed Sociology
06SM240o021 / Module

Description:

General description:
It is now well-established that human biology is highly responsive to and also shapes our social circumstances, an insight that is consistent with Darwinian theory. This key insight will be explored largely with respect to human genetics and stress biology. With respect to genetics, we will consider genome-wide association studies and copy-number variants, adoption and identical twin designs, telomeres, and epigenetics and transcription. With respect to stress biology, we will consider connections among the HPA-axis, immune system, and brain. Emphasis is placed contemporary research and what studies tell us about social settings and society. No prior knowledge of biology is assumed.

ECTS: 6

Learning Outcome:
1. Gain insights into the basic biological models that inform the study of human social behavior.
2. Critically evaluate empirical studies that combine these biological ideas with social and behavioral data.
3. Meta-skills: Critical reading; class participation; presentation in English; the organization of a term paper (outlining).
4. Meta-skills: Appreciation for the basics of the scientific method.

Module Eliminationism
06SM240o022 / Module

Description:

General description:
This course covers genocide and the broader concept of eliminationism, which refers to efforts by one social group to rid themselves of another social group. The most dramatic example is genocide, but other forms include, for example, forced migration. This course begins by considering the Holocaust from a sociological perspective, and then widens the scope to other forms of eliminationism in different times and places. What are the factors that enable and even promote eliminationist projects? What factors can stop them? The focus is on how the causes and course of eliminationist activities reflect social and cultural structures.

ECTS: 6

Learning Outcome:
1. Develop an appreciation for the different ways that the sociology thinks about the origins, maintenance, and possible prevention of eliminationist acts. There are two distinct steps: theory and research methods.
2. Meta-skills: Critical reading; class participation in English; the organization of a term paper (outlining).
3. Meta-skills: Appreciation for the basics of the scientific method and sociological perspective.

Module Writers Workshop for Social Scientists
06SM240o023 / Module

Description:

General description:
This workshop is intended to help graduate students become confident and capable writers of scientific articles in English. The seminar is intended for students who wish to begin to write a scientific article or are currently writing such an article. Professor Shanahan will introduce some preliminary material and then students will circulate their drafts to the rest of the class for peer critique of the writing. Emphasis is placed on providing a constructive, collegial atmosphere of support and encouragement with the goal that each participant will make substantial progress on her or his article during the semester.

ECTS: 3

Learning Outcome:
Participants in this seminar will (1) learn the basic orientation to scientific writing in English and common pitfalls, (2) provide and receive feedback about scientific writing, and (3) make substantial progress on their own scientific articles.

Module From Aid to Development Policy
06SM240o016 / Module

Description:

General description:
Die Lehrveranstaltung führt in die Theorie und empirische Forschung zu Grundfragen der Entwicklungszusammenarbeit ("Entwicklungshilfe") und Entwicklungspolitik ein und diskutiert aktuelle Praxistrends. Entwicklungspolitik meint über die Entwicklungszusammenarbeit hinaus die Gesamtheit aller politischen, wirtschaftlichen und sozialen Massnahmen, mit denen Industrieländer und internationale Organisationen zur nachhaltigen Verbesserung der Lebensbedingungen in Entwicklungsländern beitragen wollen. Sie berührt Politikfelder wie die Wirtschafts- oder Migrationspolitik, mit denen sich ausgeprägte nationale Eigeninteressen verbinden, und ist deshalb Gegenstand intensiver politischer Debatten. Ziel der Veranstaltung ist eine theoretisch und empirisch fundierte kritische Reflexion dieser Debatten.

ECTS: 6

Notes:
Die Lehrveranstaltung wird im Vorlesungsformat (Präsenzunterricht) mit diversen Interaktionselementen (Gruppen- und Plenumsdiskussionen) sowie Gastreferaten durchgeführt. Es wird eine regelmässige Präsenz und aktive Beteiligung an den Diskussionen erwartet.

Learning Outcome:
Die Teilnehmenden sind vertraut mit zentralen theoretischen Konzepten und empirischen Forschungsbefunden zur internationalen Entwicklungspolitik und Entwicklungszusammenarbeit. Sie vermögen diese selbständig zu reflektieren und verfügen über ein kritisches Verständnis insbesondere der folgenden Lehrinhalte: Begriff der (nachhaltigen) Entwicklung; Fakten und Trends der globalen Armut; Typen und Wirkung der Entwicklungszusammenarbeit; Agenda 2030 für nachhaltige Entwicklung; Politikkohärenz für nachhaltige Entwicklung; weltwirtschaftliche Rahmenbedingungen nachhaltiger Entwicklung.

Module Research Lab Online Surveys
06SM240o017 / Module

Description:

General description:
Der Workshop führt in die Technik der Online-Befragung ein und ermöglicht insbesondere die Erhebung eigener Surveydaten auf Basis einer vorrekrutierten Stichprobe, dem SUZ-Online Panel. Er bietet einen praxisorientierten Kompetenzerwerb im Bereich der Online-Fragebogenprogrammierung an. Zudem bietet er fortgeschrittenen Studierenden die Möglichkeit, für Seminar- und Abschlussarbeiten eine eigenständige, fragebogenbasierte Datenerhebung unter professionellen Bedingungen durchzuführen.

ECTS: 3

Notes:
Der Workshop findet an 4 Terminen statt:
1. Einführung und Auffrischung Erhebungsmethoden und Fragebogenkonstruktion
2. Diskussion/Pretest von Fragebogenentwürfen & Einführung in die Praxis von Online-Befragungen
3. Hands-on EFS Online Survey - Praktische Konstruktion des Online-Fragenbogens & Spezielle Themen der Online-Befragung (Monitoring, Datenretrival, Dateninspektion)
4. Fragebogenpräsentation

Learning Outcome:
1. Fähigkeit zu eigenständiger onlinebasierter Datenerhebung
2. Anwendungskompetenz Online-Befragungssoftware
3. Management onlinebasierter Primärdaten
4. Konsolidierung der Kenntnisse zur Fragebogenkonstruktion

Module Introduction to Social Systems Theory
06SM240o019 / Module

Description:

General description:
Diese Vorlesung analysiert die Schlüsselbegriffe der Luhmannschen Systemtheorie wie Autopoiesis, Kontingenz, Kommunikation, Komplexität, Form, Differenz, Information, Medium, Paradoxie, Sinn und Struktur mit dem Ziel, diese ebeso faszinierende wie komplexe Theorie verständlich zu machen. Spätestens seit seinem Grundlagenwerk "Soziale Systeme: Grundriss einer allgemeinen Theorie" (1984) versteht Niklas Luhmann sein Theorieprojekt als Systemtheorie. Damit reiht er sich ein in ein weites und vielschichtiges Bezugsfeld ganz unterschiedlicher wissenschaftlicher Errungenschaften. Luhmanns Rückgriff auf dieses Fundament muss kritisch durchdacht werden. Wie etwa transformiert er Talcott Parsons Handlungsbegriff? Und welche unreflektierten Folgeprobleme handelt sich Luhmann mit der Adaption des Autopoiesisbegriffs ein? Diese Vorlesung arbeitet einerseits die Originalität und die Qualitäten der Luhmannschen Systemtheorie heraus, zeigt andererseits aber auch deren Defizite auf.

ECTS: 6

Learning Outcome:
Ich verstehe die Grundlagen der Systemtheorie, einschliesslich der Rolle des Beobachters und der System/Umwelt-Differenz. Ich kann Luhmanns zirkuläre Gesellschaftstheorie, Sinnstrukturen in psychischen und sozialen Systemen sowie die Formel "Komplexitätssteigerung durch Komplexitätsreduktion" erklären. Kommunikation als autopoietisches System und die Bedeutung von Sprache als Kopplung von Bewusstsein und Kommunikation sind mir klar. Ich verstehe die Codierung und Programmierung des Kunstsystems und die Aussage, dass Kunst ein Paradigma moderner Gesellschaft ist. Ich kann die Grundgedanken der Kybernetik und Maturanas und Varelas Konzepte von Autopoiesis, operationaler Geschlossenheit und struktureller Kopplung erklären. Die Operationsweisen psychischer und sozialer Systeme sowie die Rolle der Person in Luhmanns Theorie sind mir geläufig. Ich kann Liebe als Kommunikationsmedium und Spencer-Browns Formbegriff im Kontext von Wahrnehmung und Kunsttheorie erläutern.

Module Why are Some Countries Rich and Others Poor?
06SM240o012 / Module

Description:

General description:
Im Jahr 1950 waren Ägypten und Südkorea zwei arme Agrarstaaten. Laut der Weltbank wird Ägypten heute als ein sogenanntes "lower middle income country" klassifiziert, während Südkorea zu den "high income countries" zählt. Wie kommen solche Disparitäten im ökonomischen Wohlstand zustande? Dieser Frage widmet sich dieses Seminar mit Blick auf die wichtigsten theoretischen Perspektiven und empirischen Forschungsergebnisse. Dabei wird gezeigt, dass diese Forschungsfragen im Zentrum soziologischer Diskussionen stehen. Zudem werden zentrale Erklärungen für Wohlstandsunterschiede theoretisch und auf ihre empirische Erklärungskraft hin diskutiert.

ECTS: 6

Learning Outcome:
Sozialwissenschaftliche Theorien und Erklärungen wirtschaftlichen Wachstums kennen, anwenden und kritisch reflektieren können.

Module Progressive, Prosperous Societies of the 21st Century.
06SM240o013 / Module

Description:

General description:
Technologischer und gesellschaftlicher Fortschritt ermöglichten in Wohlstandsgesellschaften des 21. Jahrhunderts die Gleichberechtigung von Mann und Frau. Historisch existierte eine solche Gesellschaftsform bislang noch nie. So erstaunt es auch nicht, dass althergebrachte soziale Normen in Konflikt stehen oder mit neuen Erwerbs- und Familienmodellen experimentiert wird. Die Vorlesung beleuchtet (a) die Entwicklung von Wohlstandsgesellschaften zur Gleichberechtigung, z.B. durch Pille, 68-er Bewegung, Affirmative Action, (b) die neuen Chancen und Herausforderungen für Personen und Gesellschaften, z.B. Wettbewerb, Leistungsdruck, Individualisierung, Fertilität, negative und positive Diskriminierung, und (c) die Entwicklung sozialer Normen, z.B. Ent- und Re- Traditionalisierung von (Geschlechter-)Normen bei Ausbildungs-, Berufs- und Familienentscheidungen.

ECTS: 6

Learning Outcome:
Wohlstandsgesellschaften des
21. Jahrhunderts verstehen und analytisch reflektieren.

Module Globalization: World Society, Global Economy and Politics
06SM240o014 / Module

Description:

General description:
Globalisierung ist der Vorgang der zunehmenden weltweiten Verflechtung in Familien, Wirtschaft, Politik oder Kultur. Diese Verdichtung der globalen Beziehungen geschieht auf der Ebene von Individuen, Gesellschaften, Institutionen und Staaten. Als wesentliche Ursachen der Globalisierung gelten technologische Fortschritte in den Kommunikations- und Transporttechniken und politischen Entscheidungen zur Liberalisierung des Welthandels. Die Vorlesung beleuchtet Theorien der Globalisierung und transnationaler Zivilgesellschaften und verschiedene Teilaspekte der Globalisierung wie Landeskulturen, Weltfamilien, Migration, digitale, globale Arbeitsmärkte, unternehmerische Gesellschaftsverantwortung, Terrorismus, Schattenwirtschaft.

ECTS: 6

Learning Outcome:
Die Studierenden können Theorien der Globalisierung und verschiedene Teilaspekte der Globalisierung benennen und erklären. Es können kritisch Vor- und Nachteile der Globalisierung reflektiert und erklärt werden, und wie Gesellschaften diesen begegnen können.

Module LGBTIQ+-Movements and Social Protests
06SM240o015 / Module

Description:

General description:
Ein sozialer Protest wird von Opp (2022, S.4) definiert als jede gemeinsame Aktion mit dem Ziel, die Entscheidung einer Zielgruppe zu beeinflussen. Im Seminar beschäftigen wir uns mit sozialen Protesten am Beispiel der LGBT+-Bewegung. Seit dem Stonewall-Aufstand in New York 1969 haben sich Gay Prides in vielen Teilen der Welt etabliert und Rechte für die queere Bevölkerung erkämpft. Gleichzeitig sind sie zu riesigen Paraden gewachsen, die Tourist*innen und Sponsoren anlocken und dafür von Akteur*innen wegen zunehmender Kapitalisierung und fehlender politischer Schärfe kritisiert werden. Ist eine Parade noch ein sozialer Protest? Wie lässt sich der Erfolg der LGBTIQ+-Bewegung erklären? Im Seminar werden diese Fragen diskutiert, in dem Theorien queerer Denker*innen und Aktivist*innen gelesen und in den Kontext aktueller empirischer Studien und Theorien des kollektiven Handelns gebracht werden.

ECTS: 6

Learning Outcome:
Am Ende dieses Kurses können die Studierenden wichtige Strömungen, Herausforderungen und Ziele der LGBTIQ +-Bewegung aufzählen. Sie sind in der Lage, sowohl Erklärungsansätze zu sozialen Bewegungen als auch einige Thesen aus den Lesbian & Gay und Queer Studies einzuordnen,kritisch zu beleuchten und unter Einbezug passender qualitativer und quantitativer sozialwissenschaftlicher Methoden anzuwenden.

Module Empire – Communism – Nation: Nationalism and Migration in South Eastern Europe (with an Excursion to Serbia
06SM480o012 / Module

Description:

General description:
Die Lehrveranstaltung mit Forschungsreise widmet sich der Untersuchung von Nationalismen und Migration in Südosteuropa, insbesondere in den Ländern Serbien, Nord-Mazedonien und Albanien. Diese Themen werden in ihrer historischen und aktuellen Dimension analysiert und in einem interdisziplinären Ansatz beleuchtet, der die Bereiche Gesellschaft, Wirtschaft und Politik integriert. Im Rahmen des Kurses soll nach einer kurzen Einführung in die Geschichte und Gegenwart Südosteuropas sowie verschiedener Ansätze der Nationalismus- und Migrationstheorie auf die aktuelle Lage vor Ort sowie die Herausforderungen und Fragestellungen transnationaler Beziehungen eingegangen werden. Hier steht besonders die intensive Auseinandersetzung mit aktuellen Texten zum Thema im Vordergrund. Ergänzt werden diese Arbeiten mit historischen und aktuellen Fällen aus der Region, die einen Transfer von theoretischen Überlegungen auf konkrete Situationen intendieren.
Der Kurs besteht aus:
1. Einführungsteil: Online-Kick-off (Donnerstag, 26.2.2026, 16:00-18:00, online) und zwei Blocktage an der Universität St. Gallen (Freitag, 20.3.2026, 14:-18:00) und der UZH (Samstag, 21.3.2026, 10:00-14:00), in denen die theoretischen Grundlagen zu Nationalismus und Migration gelegt werden.
2. Exkursion: Eine einwöchige Studienreise zu den oben genannten Stationen (4.-11. April 2026). Während der Exkursion werden vor Ort historische und aktuelle Fälle untersucht und diskutiert.
3. Praktische Umsetzung: Die Studierenden wenden theoretische Konzepte auf reale Beispiele an und dokumentieren ihre Erkenntnisse in einer Projektarbeit.

ECTS: 3

Notes:
Der Kurs wird in Kooperation mit der Universität St. Gallen (Yves B. Partschefeld, Dr. rer. soc HSG, Geschäftsführer der School of Humanities and Social Science und Lehrbeauftragter für Geschichte an der Universität St.Gallen) angeboten.
Die Studierenden setzen sich jeweils zur Hälfte aus einer St.Galler und einer Zürcher Kohorte zusammen (beschränkte Platzzahl an beiden Universitäten). Das Modul besteht aus einem Einführungsteil (Online-Kick-off und Blocktage) an der HSG und der UZH und einer anschliessenden Exkursion zu den Stationen Serbien, Nord-Mazedonien und Albanien. Die Exkursion findet vom 4.-11. April statt (Osterferienwoche an der UZH). Die Anmeldung erfolgt durch ein kurzes Motivationsschreiben und einen Kurz-CV (inkl. Passkopie) im Rahmen eines Sonder-Bidding-Verfahrens (SBV). Die Unterlagen können entweder bei der Modulbuchung im Kästchen für Kommentare hochgeladen werden oder per Mail an sandra.king-savic@uzh.ch geschickt werden.
Die Reise- und Übernachtungskosten vor Ort werden vom Center for Governance and Culture in Europe an der HSG (GCE-HSG) übernommen. Für die Hin- und Rückreise sowie Verpflegung vor Ort müssen die Studierenden selbst aufkommen.

Learning Outcome:
Die Studierenden:

- analysieren die historische und gegenwärtige Entwicklung von Nationalismen und Migration in Südosteuropa.
- verstehen die komplexen Zusammenhänge zwischen gesellschaftlichen, wirtschaftlichen und politischen Entwicklungen in der Region.
- reflektieren kritisch die Auswirkungen von Nationalismus auf transnationale Beziehungen, Migration und die Konstruktion von Identitäten.
- erwerben die Fähigkeit, aktuelle Herausforderungen in Serbien, Nord-Mazedonien und Albanien aus historischer und politikwissenschaftlicher Perspektive zu bewerten.

Module Anti-/Postcoloniale Avant-Garde
06SM640o504 / Module

Description:

General description:
As part of the Anti-/Postcolonial Avant-Garde seminar, this excursion centers on the exhibition "Nigerian Modernism" at Tate Modern. Preceded by the reading and discussion of key texts by Chika Okeke-Agulu and Sylvester Okwunodu Ogbechie, the visit will provide an opportunity to engage directly with paintings, sculptures, textiles, and poetry by over fifty artists, including Uzo Egonu, El Anatsui, Ladi Kwali, and Ben Enwonwu MBE.
The excursion invites students to reflect critically on the exhibition's curatorial framework-considering how its narratives of "modernism" relate to broader debates about the avant-garde, decolonization, and the circulation of artistic ideas. Through this engagement, students will connect the exhibition's themes to the central questions of the Anti-/Postcolonial Avant-Garde seminar, examining how artistic practices from Nigeria both intersect with and challenge art-historical paradigms.
In addition to Tate Modern, the excursion will include visits to complementary exhibitions across London, such as "Beatriz González" at the Barbican.

ECTS: 3

Notes:
As spots in this excursion are limited please submit a brief statement (a few sentences) outlining your motivation and interest in participating, including your student ID number, by February 1 to abigael.vanalst@khist.uzh.ch
Priority will be given to students enrolled in the seminar "Anti-/Postcolonial Avant-Garde", but applications from other students are also welcome.
A preparatory class will take place on Tuesday, March 17, from 6 to 8 p.m. The excursion itself will be held from April 8 to April 10. Please ensure that you are available to attend both the preparatory class and the full excursion period before applying.
As part of the excursion, students will read and discuss texts in preparation for the excursion. In addition, they will prepare short presentations related to the exhibitions we will visit. The topics and distribution of these presentations will be discussed during the preparatory meeting.

Learning Outcome:
Die Studierenden erlernen Techniken der Beschreibung und Analyse von Originalen. Sie reflektieren den räumlichen und kulturellen Kontext, in den die Werke eingebunden sind.

Module Who needs books? – Cultural history of the Islamic world 1450–1950
06SM307o003 / Module

Description:

General description:
Das Buch spielte in der Kultur- und Gesellschaftsgeschichte eine grosse Rolle. Diese wird von der Forschung der letzten Jahre zunehmend untersucht. Das Seminar gibt einen Überblick über verschiedene dieser aktuellen Forschungsfragen. 1. Welche Informationen haben wir zum gesellschaftlichen Kontext der Herstellung und Nutzung von Büchern? 2. Wie konnten in einer Buchkultur, die sehr lange von handschriftlicher Produktion geprägt wurde, auch breitere Bevölkerungsgruppen erreicht werden? Wie wirkte sich die sehr späte Adaptation des Buchdrucks auf die Bildungskultur der islamischen Welt aus? 3. Was wissen wir über die Entstehung von Bibliotheken und die Beteiligung verschiedener Gruppen der Elite dabei.

Exkursionen zum Rietbergmuseum und in die Zentralbibliothek sind geplant.

Module Current Research on Digital Inequalities
06SM240o009 / Module

Description:

General description:
Digitalisation has transformed how we live, work, learn, and interact - but not everyone benefits equally. This course explores how digitalisation contributes to the creation of new forms of inequality, sustains existing social divides, and occasionally offers opportunities for previously disadvantaged groups. Drawing on cutting-edge research, we will discuss the mechanisms behind digital inequalities and examine their consequences across diverse domains of social life.
The course begins with an overview of the three classic dimensions of digital inequality: unequal access, unequal usage, and unequal returns. We will then investigate how algorithms, datafication, and digital platforms shape structural inequalities, before moving to specific areas of application. Weekly sessions will focus on topics such as demographic processes, online dating, education, adolescent mental health, gender gaps, family life, well-being, and politics.

ECTS: 6

Learning Outcome:
By the end of the course, students will be able to critically assess the promises and risks of digitalisation for social inequality, situate digital divides in relation to broader social processes, and evaluate how digitalisation interacts with key life domains such as education, health, and family. They will also be able to reflect on potential strategies for reducing digital inequalities and articulate how current research can inform debates in policy, practice, and everyday life.

Module Introduction to Demography and Population Studies
06SM240o024 / Module

Description:

General description:
Demography, the study of human populations, is a multidisciplinary field with close ties to sociology and other social sciences. This course provides a comprehensive introduction to the theories, methods, and key debates in demography, with a strong emphasis on global and comparative perspectives. Moving beyond the traditional focus on the Global North, we will explore population dynamics in diverse geographical contexts, including regions in the Global South where some of the most dramatic demographic changes are unfolding.
We will address pressing issues around the key themes of mortality, fertility, and migration, as well as their roles in driving global and regional demographic transformations. By learning concepts like "Life Expectancy" and "Years of Potential Life Lost" and how to compute them, students will also gain insight into the impact of global crises such as the COVID-19 pandemic and how demographic tools can inform policymaking.

ECTS: 6

Notes:
Some familiarity with statistics (or willingness to learn) is recommended.

Learning Outcome:
Through textbook-based lectures that combine theory and application, students will explore critical aspects of population dynamics. Additionally, they will gain hands-on experience with demographic analysis, including computing demographic measures and working with population data. By the end of the course, students will be equipped to analyze contemporary demographic developments and critically engage with the key debates surrounding population change, particularly in underrepresented and rapidly evolving geographical contexts.

Module Discrimination: Concept, Measurement, and Empirical Applications
06SM240o008 / Module

Description:

General description:
Discrimination in terms of group categories such as gender, social, or ethnic origin is a significant mechanism for the (re)production of social inequalities in increasingly pluralistic societies. This course aims to critically engage with the theoretical foundations, measurement, and international empirical literature on discrimination to better assess policy measures to reduce inequality. The course is divided into two main parts. In the first part, the seminar offers a well-founded overview of sociological and social-psychological theoretical approaches to the forms and causes of discrimination. The second part focuses on the different methodological approaches to empirically investigate discrimination. The advantages and disadvantages of i.e. (a) the survey of perceived discrimination, (b) the statistical residual method, and (c) field experiments (e.g., correspondence tests) are critically discussed.

ECTS: 6

Learning Outcome:
The seminar imparts knowledge and skills for the reflected use of general theoretical approaches and methodological approaches to studying discrimination. The students acquire the necessary competencies to independently develop and process questions on one of the currently most central topics in inequality research.

Module Youth, News and Media
06SM240o010 / Module

Description:

General description:
In den Sozial-, Medien- und Erziehungswissenschaften wird verstärkt über die Mediennutzung von Jugendlichen diskutiert. Es wird befürchtet, dass die Jugendlichen aufgrund verstärkter Zuwendung zu Social Media-Angeboten keine sog. publizistische Medienkompetenz aufbauen, d.h., dass sie sich überwiegend Medienangeboten aus dem Soft News Bereich zuwenden und kaum noch Interesse für gesellschaftspolitische Themen aufbringen. Dies würde dazu führen, dass Jugendliche weniger gesellschaftliche Partizipationsbereitschaft haben, für radikale und simplifizierende Politikangebote offener und anfälliger für Fake News sind. Die Vorlesung wird beleuchten, wie sich das Medienverhalten der Jugendlichen heute darstellt und wird diese und andere Thesen in Bezug auf die Medienkompetenz Jugendlicher analysieren und validieren.

ECTS: 6

Learning Outcome:
Die TeilnehmerInnen der Vorlesung sollen vertiefte Einsichten über das Medienverhalten Jugendlicher und dessen Implikationen für die Partizipationsbereitschaft und für das gesellschaftliche und politische Verhalten dieser Gruppe erhalten. Dies wird anhand verschiedener Ansätze aus dem sozial- und medienwissenschaftlichen Bereich geschehen.

Description:

General description:
Die Studierenden bewerben sich eigenständig bei einschlägigen Institutionen (z.B. Kantonsarchäologien, Grabungsfirmen, Denkmalpflege oder Museen) für ein "externes" Praktikum. Der Umfang des Praktikums umfasst wenigstens vier Wochen zu 100% Arbeitszeit. Nach Zusage der Praktikumsstelle vereinbaren die Studierenden mit dem Modulverantwortlichen ein Praktikumskonzept. Ziel des Praktikums ist der Einblick in die archäologische Arbeitspraxis ausserhalb der Universität. Es obliegt den Studierenden, nach Absolvierung die erforderlichen Unterlagen (schriftliche Bestätigung der anbietenden Organisation, Leistungsnachweise gemäss Praktikumskonzept) einzureichen.

ECTS: 6

Notes:
Vorgängig zur Modulbuchung ist eine schriftliche Vereinbarung einzureichen. Bitte kontaktieren Sie dazu die Studienfachberatung (studienberatung@archaeologie.uzh.ch).

Learning Outcome:
Die Studierenden beherrschen Methoden und praktische Anwendungen archäologischer Arbeit, wie sie an dem gewählten Praktikumsort zur beruflichen Praxis gehören. Die Studierenden sind mit den gängigen Arbeitsabläufen in mindestens einem der Bereiche Ausgrabung, Prospektion, Bauuntersuchung, Grabungsauswertung, Denkmalpflege oder Öffentlichkeitsarbeit der anbietenden Institution vertraut. Sie handeln eigenverantwortlich in den ihnen anvertrauten Aufgabenbereichen.

Module Causes and Consequences of (Forced) Migration
06SM240o007 / Module

Description:

General description:
Migration policy is at the top of the political agenda in Western democracies. Although some moderate voices praise the potential positive externalities of migration in times of demographic change, critical perspectives and populist outcries have primarily dominated the debate. Moreover, the rise of right-wing parties in many European countries suggests that these outcries tap into widespread anxieties among the public. Given the current trends in global migration, these anxieties are likely to grow fiercer in the future.
In this course, we will draw on empirical research and critically reflect on the evidence they provide to the debate on immigration and integration policies.
The course will draw on literature from different social sciences and introduce the main theoretical concepts in migration studies.

ECTS: 6

Learning Outcome:
The seminar imparts knowledge and skills for the reflected use of general theoretical frameworks and methodological approaches to studying migration and integration. The course will focus on strengthening students' understanding of the evidence base in debates about migration.The students acquire the necessary competencies to independently develop and process questions on one of the currently most central topics in inequality research.

Module Gender and Social Inequality over the Life Course
06SM240o004 / Module

Description:

General description:
Neben vertikalen, in der Regel erworbenen Indikatoren wie der Bildung oder dem Einkommen, spielen im Lebens(ver)lauf weiterhin auch horizontale, zugeschriebene Merkmale wie die Nationalität oder das Geschlecht als Dimensionen sozialer Ungleichheit eine zentrale Rolle für Lebenschancen. Vor allem das Merkmal Geschlecht wird auch gegenwärtig immer noch mit Fragen nach der Chancengleichheit, d.h. den gleichen bzw. ungleichen Möglichkeiten bestimmter Bevölkerungsgruppen, an vorteilhafte oder nachteilige Stellen innerhalb von Verteilungen zu gelangen, in Verbindung gebracht. Vor diesem Hintergrund steht im Zentrum des Seminars die Beschäftigung mit geschlechtsspezifischen sozialen Ungleichheiten und deren Einfluss auf die Verteilung von Lebenschancen. Hierfür sollen mittels der Dimension Geschlecht zentrale Bereiche wie Familie, Bildungswesen, Beruf, Politik, aber auch Freizeit und deren Zusammenhang mit sozialer Ungleichheit empirisch-vergleichend betrachtet und diskutiert werden.

ECTS: 6

Learning Outcome:
Grundlegendes Ziel der Veranstaltung ist es, einen Einblick in die theoretischen Grundlagen und empirische Befunde zu erhalten und die Teilnehmer*innen insbesondere mit der Interpretation und Diskussion empirischer Arbeiten im Rahmen der Thematik Geschlecht und Ungleichheit vertraut zu machen.

Module Digital Society
06SM240o006 / Module

Description:

General description:
This course provides an in-depth sociological introduction to the debates, theories and concepts related to the impact of digital technologies on human society. Through weekly lectures, it offers a critical exploration of digital inequalities and the lifelong implications of inclusion, exclusion, and exploitation online.
Students will address how social interactions, from intimate relationships to violent conflicts, are influenced by platforms, algorithms, and changing privacy norms. The course tackles pressing issues such as the formation of online subcultures, the spread of conspiracy theories, and evolving tensions between human and artificial agents. Students will gain insights into how online political activity and digital financial services reshape everyday interactions, as well as how emerging technologies influence our sense of time and space. This course takes a global perspective, prioritising the inclusion of diverse and cutting-edge academic research.

ECTS: 6

Learning Outcome:
The course will provide students with a sociological foundation in topics related to an increasingly digital society, as well as the skills to engage in constructive discussions about pressing, divisive, and rapidly changing social issues. At the end of the course students will be able to: a) identify and critically engage with major sociological and interdisciplinary theories about how new digital technologies drive or reflect social change; b) discuss how digital technologies (e.g. AI, IoT) influence identity, community, and activism across different social contexts; c) reflect on issues of access, representation, and bias, challenging their own assumptions and exploring how digital technologies shape inclusion and exclusion globally. Equality, diversity, and inclusion are prominent themes throughout the course and students will be encouraged to think critically about their own presumptions and experiences when engaging with the weekly topics and readings.

Module Climate Change and Environmental Policy
06SM240o002 / Module

Description:

General description:
Wie sind die Ziele der Paris-Konferenz noch erreichbar? Dazu bedarf es einschneidender Massnahmen, die die Treibhausgase drastisch verringern und eine Transformation zur Klimaneutralität der Wirtschaft einleiten.
Aber welche Massnahmen sind geeignet? Bei globalen und lokalen Umweltproblemen handelt es sich meist um Kollektivgut- oder Allmendeprobleme. Gar nicht überraschend ist deshalb die vielbeschworene Diskrepanz zwischen Umweltbewusstsein und Handeln. Zur Schließung der Lücke gibt es verschiedene Politikempfehlungen. Dazu zählen Änderungen von Institutionen, Infrastruktur, Preise (CO2-Abgaben), "weiche" Anreize (Normen, "green signaling", "nudging"). Umweltproteste erhöhen die Chancen der Durchsetzung von Klimapolitik. Weiterhin stellen sich Probleme der Umweltgerechtigkeit. In der Vorlesung werden wir Theorien, Modelle, Politikvorschläge und die empirische Evidenz von Maßnahmen zur Verbesserung der Qualität lokaler Umwelt und zur Prävention des Klimawandels kritisch analysieren.

ECTS: 6

Learning Outcome:
Erlangung von Kenntnissen einschlägiger Theorien, empirischer und experimenteller Studien, interdisziplinären Arbeitens (Soziologie, Sozialpsychologie, Ökonomie, Umweltpolitik) Untersuchungsmethoden und der kritischen Analyse von Massnahmen und Programmen der Umweltpolitik.

Module Sociology Goes Viral: Analyzing Structural Inequalities
06SM240o003 / Module

Description:

General description:
Soziologische Studien sind gesellschaftlich relevant, aber oft schwer zugänglich. In diesem diskussionsgetriebenen Seminar lesen und diskutieren wir ausgewählte soziologische Papiere, die verschiedene Aspekte sozialer Ungleichheit beleuchten (z.B. Einkommen, Bildung, Geschlecht, Rassismus). Wir werden uns mit ihren Konzepten und empirischen Methoden kritisch auseinandersetzen und lernen die daraus resultierenden Forschungsergebnisse zu bewerten.
Im zweiten Teil des Seminars geht es darum, komplexe, wissenschaftliche Inhalte in prägnante und ansprechende Beiträge (z.B. für soziale Medien) umzuwandeln. Statt einer traditionellen Seminararbeit können Instagram-Reels, TikTok-Videos oder short TedTalks erstellt werden, um die Kernbotschaften der besprochenen Studien und unserer Diskussionen zu vermitteln. Auf diese Weise machen wir komplexe Themen der sozialen Ungleichheit kreativ zugänglich und widerlegen gleichzeitig den Vorwurf, dass Wissenschaft nur im Elfenbeinturm stattfindet.

ECTS: 6

Notes:
Ein aktiver Social Media Account oder die aktive Benützung von Social Media ist nicht notwendig, um an dieser Lehrveranstaltung teilnehmen zu können. Ein gewisses Gespür für Videos, die auf Social Media kursieren ist von Vorteil.

Learning Outcome:
Die Grundidee des Moduls ist es, wissenschaftliche Theorien und Befunde zur Soziologie der sozialen Ungleichheiten zu verstehen und kritisch in Frage zu stellen. Zudem soll erlernt werden, wie diese Inhalte verständlich(er) und zugänglich(er) gemacht werden können. Dafür brechen wir wissenschaftliche soziologische Forschung runter zu einfach verdaulichen Medien.
Die Studierenden sind nach der Teilnahme dieses Kurses in der Lage:
1. sozialwissenschaftliche Forschungsliteratur zu ausgewählten Themen sozialer Ungleichheiten abzurufen und gegenüberzustellen,
2. ein Toolkit heranzuziehen um empirische Studien kritisch hinterfragen und diskutieren zu können, sowie
3. komplexe Inhalte vereinfacht in Form von kurzen Videos (im Stil von Social Media Beiträgen) herunterzubrechen.

Module Computational Social Science
06SM240o001 / Module

Description:

General description:
Over the last decade, new forms of data have become available through the spread of websites, digitization of public records, and the proliferation of mobile technologies. This has given rise to new techniques to collect and analyze data. As a result, the field of computational social sciences has emerged, trying to harness the immense opportunities these developments bear for the social sciences.
This course is designed as a hands-on introduction into this growing field.

ECTS: 6

Notes:
- All used software is open source.
- Preliminary readings (limited number of core texts/exemplary studies).
- Basic familiarity with R or (great) willingness to learn it is advisable.

Learning Outcome:
The course has three goals: (1) It will provide you with concrete skills to leverage these opportunities for your own work. Drawing on the programming language R, this course will introduce you to important techniques in this field, including techniques to gather data from the web, analyze text, and various forms of machine learning. (2) As we develop these skills, we will critically engage with exemplarily studies that have used these techniques to answer social science questions. (3) This course will introduce you to the ethical and methodological considerations that come with using modern, digital forms of data in the social sciences.

Module UZH - FU Berlin Joint PhD Workshop
06SMG22o101 / Module

Description:

General description:
The Japanese Studies at University of Zurich and Graduate School of East Asian Studies (GEAS) at Free University Berlin are planning a joint PhD workshop in Mai, 2026, to take place at Free University Berlin.
The workshop is designed to give doctoral candidates from Berlin and Zurich the opportunity to discuss either a chapter draft of their PhD thesis or a paper draft for publication with experienced scholars and fellow PhD candidates. Doctoral candidates who do not yet have a chapter draft can present a specific problem or issue of their project for discussion. We will also invite editors from journals in area studies.
The aim of the workshop is to gain useful feedback regarding chapter drafts and thesis writing and publication, to further develop a chapter or paper to better fit in the thesis or into journals, and to strengthen the personal academic network between fellows from Zurich and Berlin.

Module Digital Critical Editions: From Encoding to Visualisation
06SMG27o301 / Module

Description:

General description:
- A brief introduction to markup languages, focusing on XML and its implementation in the Text Encoding Initiative (TEI).
- TEI for critical editions: core modules for manuscript description and critical apparatus encoding.
- From encoding to publication: an overview of current visualisation tools, with hands-on experimentation using EVT (Edition Visualization Technology), an open-source platform specifically designed for displaying digital editions from TEI-XML data.
The workshop will be primarily practice-oriented, with hands-on sessions in both encoding and visualisation. Participants will also have the opportunity to experiment with their own projects.

ECTS: 3

Learning Outcome:
- To acquire a basic understanding of XML markup languages and the TEI standard;
- To gain familiarity with the principles and practices of encoding manuscripts and critical apparatuses;
- To develop practical skills in transforming TEI-XML encoded texts into digital critical editions, with hands-on training in the EVT (Edition Visualization Technology) platform.
- To reflect on opportunities and methodological issues arising from digital editing.

Module Colloquium
06SMG26o001 / Module

Description:

General description:
Ziele, Methoden und Ergebnisse der Doktorarbeit sind in Form eines Referats im Rahmen eines Kolloquiums zur Diskussion zu stellen. Die Doktorierenden beteiligen sich aktiv an der Diskussion der Forschungsergebnisse anderer Kolloquiumsteilnehmender.
Dabei erwerben sie grundlegende Fach- und Medienkompetenzen zur Präsentation eines spezialisierten wissenschaftlichen Themengebiets sowie zur Teilnahme an der aktuellen wissenschaftlichen Diskussionskultur.

ECTS: 3

Learning Outcome:
Die Doktorierenden sind in der Lage, den Inhalt ihrer eigenen wissenschaftlichen Arbeit auf dem Niveau aktueller Forschung mündlich vor Publikum zu präsentieren und im Rahmen einer kritischen Diskussion argumentativ zu vertreten. Ebenso können sie sich in Form von Diskussionsbeiträgen mit den Forschungsergebnissen anderer Teilnehmender fundiert auseinandersetzen.

Module Doing and Reflecting Critical Research in Gender Studies
06SMG25o102 / Module

Description:

General description:
In der zweitägigen Blockveranstaltung haben die Doktorierenden, die sich in ihrer Promotion schwerpunktmässig mit Gender und Sexualität auseinandersetzen, die Gelegenheit, spezifische methodologische und forschungsethische Herausforderungen zu reflektieren. Die Blockveranstaltung bietet zudem die Gelegenheit zur interuniversitären Vernetzung.
Der Workshop ist ein Angebot, das im Rahmen des interuniversitären Doktoratsprogramms Gender Studies von den Universitäten Zürich, Bern und Basel gemeinsam organisiert wird.

Module Exploring Swiss Culture with AI: From Roman Roots to Digital Futures
06SM323o016 / Module

Description:

General description:
This interdisciplinary module brings together classical philology, artificial intelligence and Swiss cultural heritage to offer students a unique opportunity to explore Switzerland's intellectual legacy through the lens of Latin sources and digital tools. The course is designed to meet the goals of the University of Zurich's internationalisation strategy by fostering intercultural dialogue, cultural mediation and accessibility across disciplines. At its core, the course fuses past and present: students engage with Latin sources which shaped European intellectual history - many of which were written, copied or preserved in Swiss monasteries, libraries and archaeological sites - while simultaneously learning how modern AI technologies can be used to translate, analyse, interpret and recontextualise these sources. This approach highlights Switzerland's enduring role as a hub of knowledge production and preservation, from the Roman era to the digital age.

ECTS: 3

Notes:
While we will be working with Latin sources, no knowledge of Latin is required for this course, as all course contents can also be discussed on the basis of translations. As such, this course is designed to appeal to a diverse student body:

- International students gain insight into Swiss culture and heritage through the study of Latin sources which are deeply embedded in the country's intellectual history.
- Students of classical philology are introduced to AI tools and digital methods, allowing them to explore familiar material in new and innovative ways.
- Students from other disciplines - such as computer science, linguistics, history or cultural studies - are invited to discover the relevance of classical sources and Switzerland's role in both the preservation of ancient knowledge and the development of cutting-edge technologies.

Learning Outcome:
- Attitude: Demonstrating openness to diverse cultural perspectives by engaging with Latin sources from different Swiss regions; showing historical empathy by interpreting sources in their original context; and applying critical and ethical reasoning when using AI tools to analyse and present cultural heritage.
- Knowledge: Gaining insight into the Swiss role in preserving European intellectual history and contributing to global AI research and policy; understanding the structure of the AI pipeline and the principles of digital heritage and cultural mediation through AI.
- Skills: Applying no-code AI tools for OCR, annotation, translation, text analysis and digital storytelling; understanding how AI models are trained, evaluated and deployed; developing transversal competencies such as critical thinking, collaboration and digital literacy, with an awareness of Switzerland's leadership in responsible AI development.

Module Big Excursion in Prehistoric Archaeology
06SM682o006 / Module

Description:

ECTS: 6

Notes:
Bewerbungen zwischen Oktober und November 2025, Informationen folgen separat

Learning Outcome:
Hauptziel des Moduls ist die Kenntnis archäologischer und ggf. kunsthistorischer Denkmäler in Museen und Sammlungen sowie archäologischer Ausgrabungsstätten und Landschaften eines ausgewählten Gebietes. Ergänzend kommt dazu die Kenntnis der Methoden archäologischer Erforschung von Einzeldenkmälern und Materialgattungen sowie von Ausgrabungen und Landschaften. Ein weiteres Ziel besteht darin, ausgehend von einer genauen Autopsie den entsprechenden Forschungsstand selbständig und kritisch zu verarbeiten sowie in vorbereitenden Sitzungen und/oder vor Ort klar und konzis zu referieren und zu diskutieren. Im Rahmen der Exkursion wenden die Studierenden relevante Methoden und Lerninhalte eigenständig an, wobei der Transfer der Literaturrecherchen auf Originale eine besondere, eng am Berufsfeld orientierte Herausforderung darstellt. Die Exkursionen stehen damit an der Schnittstelle zwischen universitärer Lehre und beruflicher Praxis.

Module Introduction to the Sociology of Crime
06SM240o005 / Module

Description:

General description:
Die Erklärung von Abweichung und kriminellem Verhalten ist ein bedeutsames Thema soziologischer Forschung. In der Vorlesung soll zunächst in zentrale theoretische Ansätze zur Erklärung von kriminellem Verhalten eingeführt werden. Hierbei werden sowohl individuelle Kriminalitätsdeterminanten, als auch Einflussfaktoren auf gesellschaftlicher Ebene, auf Mesoebenen, sowie die verschiedenen Ebenen verbindende Ansätze betrachtet; der Fokus wird auf erklärende Ansätze gelegt, wenngleich auch konstruktivistische Ansätze berücksichtigt werden. Die Prüfung der verschiedenen Theorien erfolgt in der Kriminalsoziologie mittels Hell- und Dunkelfeldforschung, weshalb in der Vorlesung die verschiedenen methodischen Herangehensweisen, ihre Besonderheiten und Herausforderungen, beleuchtet werden. Zusätzlich werden aktuelle Kriminalitätsthemen wie Jugendkriminalität, Migration und Kriminalität, Häusliche Gewalt u.a.m. in der Vorlesung behandelt.

ECTS: 6

Notes:
In der letzten Unterrichtseinheit am 18.5.26 wird in der ersten Hälfte Unterricht durchgeführt. Anschliessend findet die Prüfung statt (18.15 - 19.45 Uhr).

Learning Outcome:
1. Die Studierenden kennen aktuelle Theorien der Erklärung von Kriminalität.
2. Die Studierenden kennen Vor- und Nachteile von Hell- und Dunkelfeldforschung.
3. Die Studierenden haben Grundkenntnisse zu ausgewählten Kriminalitätsphänomenen der Schweiz erworben.

Module Cultural Studies Lecture Series
06SM506o405 / Module

Description:

General description:
Die Kulturwissenschaftliche Vortragsreihe wird gemeinsam von der Fachgesellschaft «Empirische Kulturwissenschaft Schweiz» (EKWS), Sektion Zürich, und dem ISEK - Populäre Kulturen veranstaltet. Ungefähr sieben Veranstaltungen finden über das Semester verteilt üblicherweise am Mittwochabend statt und sind öffentlich.

ECTS: 3

Learning Outcome:
Die Studierenden haben Einblick in anwendungsorientierte Forschungsfelder der Empirischen Kulturwissenschaft. Sie kennen fachspezifische Debatten und Institutionen und können aktiv an den Diskussionen teilnehmen. Sie sind in der Lage, aus vorbereitender Lektüre und eigenen Notizen einen synthetisierenden Bericht zu verfassen.

Module Longitudinal Data Analysis
06SM240o018 / Module

Description:

General description:
Viele sozialwissenschaftliche Datensätze sind als Paneldaten organisiert: Personen, Länder oder Organisationen werden nicht nur einmal, sondern wiederholt gemessen. Paneldaten bieten einzigartige analytische Potentiale, insbesondere für die Effektidentifikation im Rahmen kausaler Analysen. Neben praxisnahen Lektionen zu Techniken des längsschnittlichen Datenmanagements bietet dieses Seminar eine Einführung in drei der wichtigsten analytischen Basismethoden zur Analyse von Paneldaten: Das Difference-in-Difference Design und das Panel Event Design für kategoriale unabhängige Variablen, sowie die Fixed Effects Regression für metrische unabhängige Variablen.
Basierend auf der Regressionsmechanik erfassen diese Techniken die Längsschnittstruktur der Daten und unterscheiden zwischen within- und between-Effekten.

ECTS: 6

Learning Outcome:
1. Kenntnis der Potentiale und Einschränkungen von Längsschnittdaten, insb. für Kausalanalysen
2. Reflektierte und kompetente Anwendungen grundlegender Techniken zur Analyse von Längsschnittdaten
3. Vertiefte Kompetenz im Management komplexer Daten
4. Erweiterte Codierfähigkeiten in R/R-Studio

Module Living in a Technological Culture
06SM240o011 / Module

Description:

General description:
?We cannot solve problems by using the same kind of thinking we used when we created them?. These words of Albert Einstein are more valid today than ever. Therefore, this course aims to teach students how ?the stuff of the world? can be thought about in new ways by introducing them to the field of Science and Technology Studies (STS). To introduce students into STS the course will use different empirical examples like AI, post-truth, Climate crisis, Big Data, and the politics and ethics of artefacts. By emphasising how social, cultural, historical, political and economic conditions impact the development of science and technology, the course challenges the image of scientific development as an autonomous process driven by the search for truth and technological innovation as a process of applied science. Our critical approach does not imply we are negative about science and technology. Instead, we aim to provide a more balanced view like good film critics.

ECTS: 6

Learning Outcome:
After completion of this course, you are able: to explain different perspectives on the relationship between society, science and technology; to explain the differences between deterministic approaches and the Science and Technology Studies (STS) approach; to reflect critically on common sense views about knowledge production-to recognize, explain and apply the basic principles of STS-reasoning to our current societal concerns.

Module Business Research
06SM240o020 / Module

Description:

General description:
This course examines the role of business research in the corporate world, highlighting key differences between academic and applied research. It introduces essential methodologies and tools, focusing on the strategic importance of client-centric research. Practical exercises and discussions enhance hands-on learning, while a step-by-step guide ensures clarity in executing research projects.
Guest speakers-such as a journalist, a PR professional, or a social media expert-will share insights on how they leverage research and its findings in their respective fields. Their perspectives will offer students an even deeper practical understanding of applying research in real-world contexts, from media storytelling to strategic communication and digital engagement.
The course ends with a graded team project, where students carry out a research assignment and present their findings in a simulated investment pitch setting.

ECTS: 3

Notes:
With 2-3 external experts from the dozent's network spanning corporates, government agencies, and the media to deliver 30-minute presentations.

Learning Outcome:
Students will learn how to conduct business research using survey data and expert interviews, create thought leadership content, and promote it through traditional media, social media, and client sales teams.

- Develop the ability to conduct research in and for companies, applying important methodologies and tools for business research.
- Strengthen practical skills for creating and promoting research content and insights using various media channels.
- Gain insights into the corporate sector, its research needs, and decision-making processes, preparing students for career success.
- Expand labour market opportunities for sociologists by bridging academic knowledge with corporate applications.
- Build teamwork and presentation skills through interactive exercises and a simulated investment pitch presentation.

Das Modul fördert vertieftes Fachwissen in einem ausgewählten Forschungsfeld. Es vermittelt die Kompetenz, zu einem ausgewählten Thema Fragestellungen aus Sicht der Politikwissenschaft zu entwickeln und zu analysieren. Im Zentrum des Seminars stehen die politikwissenschaftliche und normative Analyse, das trennscharfe Analysieren der Begriffe in ihrer Anwendung auf empirische Studien und das Begründen politischer Sachverhalte. Die unterschiedlichen Themen werden theoretisch und empirisch vertieft.

ECTS: 6

Notes:
In den modernen Demokratien spielt die Gemeindeebene eine wichtige Rolle. Trotz ihrer Bedeutung stehen Gemeinden heute in vielen Ländern vor grossen Herausforderungen: begrenzte Ressourcen, interkommunale Zusammenarbeit, abnehmende Bürgerbeteiligung, Probleme des Milizsystems, usw.

Im Rahmen dieses Seminars werden Studierende diese - und andere - Herausforderungen empirisch untersuchen. Dazu analysieren sie Datensätze, die vom europäischen Forschungsnetzwerk "Political Leaders in European Cities" (POLLEADER) in den letzten 20 Jahren erstellt wurden. Diese Daten bieten einen fundierten Einblick in die politischen Strukturen, Herausforderungen und Entwicklungen in den Städten von rund 30 Ländern in Europa. Auf der Grundlage dieser Datenbasis erstellen die Studierenden Forschungsarbeiten zu einem selbst gewählten Thema. Diese Forschungsarbeiten werden an einer Blockveranstaltung vorgestellt und diskutiert (voraussichtlich am 15. Juni 2026).

Learning Outcome:
Fachkompetenzen: Verortung von Argumenten und empirischen Studien in den relevanten wissenschaftlichen Debatten zu einem ausgewählten Thema; Methodenkompetenzen: wissenschaftliches Schreiben und Argumentieren; Verfassen eines schriftlichen Beitrags (Policy Paper, wissenschaftliche Abhandlung, etc.) Selbstkompetenzen: Definition eigener inhaltlicher Schwerpunkte, Selbsteinschätzung, Planungsfähigkeit.

Module Conference Attendance: EKWS Tagung Berufseinstieg – Kulturpolitik
06SM506o406 / Module

Description:

General description:
Die Fachgesellschaft Empirische Kulturwissenschaft Schweiz (EKWS) organisiert jährlich die Tagung Berufseinstieg.
Die Veranstaltung richtet sich insbesondere an Studierende und Absolvent:innen der Fächer Kulturanthropologie, Empirische Kulturwissenschaft, Ethnologie und Sozialanthropologie sowie weiterer verwandter Disziplinen, die kurz vor dem Abschluss ihres Studiums stehen oder sich in einer frühen Phase ihres Berufseinstiegs befinden. Die Veranstaltung steht aber auch anderen Interessierten offen.
Neben der inhaltlichen Auseinandersetzung steht dabei die Weiterentwicklung des persönlichen Netzwerkes im Zentrum.

ECTS: 3

Notes:
Der Tagungsbesuch erfolgt selbständig und auf eigene Kosten.

Für Mitglieder der EKWS ist die Tagung kostenfrei. Für Nicht-Mitglieder beträgt die Tagungsgebühr CHF 20.- (inkl. Verpflegung).

Die Tagung findet in Basel statt.

Learning Outcome:
Studierende können aktiv an einer wissenschaftlichen Tagung teilnehmen und eigene Positionen einbringen. Im Austausch mit anderen Teilnehmenden und Referierenden stärken sie ihr eigenes wissenschaftliches Profil und vergrössern ihr Netzwerk.

Module Medieval Archaeological Objects: Documentation and Interpretation
06SM640o201 / Module

Description:

General description:
Anhand konkreter Beispiele aus jeweils wechselnden Themen soll der Umgang mit der archäologischen Quellengattung Funde erlernt werden. Vermittelt werden Methoden, die es erlauben, Materialität und Herstellungstechniken unterschiedlichster Fundobjekte vom Frühmittelalter bis in die frühe Neuzeit zu erfassen, zu verstehen und den Bezug zu relevanten Befunden herzustellen.

ECTS: 3

Learning Outcome:
Die Studierenden besitzen Kenntnisse von archäologischen Funden vom Frühmittelalter bis in die frühe Neuzeit im Kontext ihrer Fundumstände. Sie können Formenspektrum, Materialgruppen und Herstellungstechniken unterschiedlichster mittelalterlicher Funde erfassen, beschreiben, verstehen und den Bezug zu relevanten Befunden herstellen sowie spezifische Funde zeitlich und kulturell einordnen. Die Studierenden kennen einschlägige Funde und Publikationen und sind in der Lage, relevante Zeichnungen, Bilder, Fotos sowie Rekonstruktionen zu interpretieren. Sie sind vertraut mit dem Umgang grosser wie auch kleiner Datenmengen.

Module Switzerland 1917: World War, Political Revolution, Modern Literature
06SM440o009 / Module

Description:

General description:
"I learned three things in Zurich during the war... Firstly, you're either a revolutionary or you're not, and if you're not you might as well be an artist as anything else. Secondly, if you can't be an artist, you might as well be a revolutionary... I forgot the third thing."
Tom Stoppard, Travesties

1917: a year bookended by two revolutions in Russia, first in February and then in October. To the west, the Great War rages in Flanders, Italy suffers a catastrophic defeat at Caporetto, news of mutiny spreads, and the Americans enter the conflict. World history churns around Switzerland, which, though neutral, is yoked to the chaos by telegraph cable and train track. V.
I. Lenin, architect of the Bolshevik Revolution, learns of the Tzar's abdication from the pages of the March 15 NZZ. Three weeks later, at 15:10 on April
9, his sealed train leaves Zurich HB, headed for Saint Petersburg.

This course is about the political, cultural and artistic juncture of 1917, seen through the lives and works of writers, radicals, and refugees who found themselves in neutral Switzerland during the penultimate year of the Great War. This extraordinary confluence of political revolution and revolutionary art-the two wartime vocations that Henry Carr recalls in the above epigraph-will orient us as we examine the intersection the local and the global at this pivotal moment in world history. At the heart of our inquiry lies the productive tension between the specificity of the conditions that obtained in Switzerland and the tremendous scope of the internationalisms to which it was host.

ECTS: 3

Learning Outcome:
Students will be introduced to several key figures of literary modernism. They will learn to read these writers, to appreciate the ambition of their projects, and to situate the formal difficulty of their work in relation to its historical and political contexts. Students will develop their analytic skills by drawing parallels and charting differences between instances of political and aesthetic revolution-revolutions which, in our focus year, converged not only in their rhetoric but also in their critiques of liberalism.

In addition, students will acquire a familiarity with the history of Switzerland during the First World War, with a particular focus on how Swiss neutrality contributed to the versions of internationalism represented by the Red Cross, the League of Nations, and the Zimmerwald Conference. Moreover, students will develop an appreciation of the historical relationship between war and social revolution by comparing the Russian Revolution of 1917 with the Swiss Landesstreik of 1918.

Finally, students will apply their historical knowledge about of the culture and politics of 1917 to contemporary debates over political neutrality, asylum, and war in Europe. In the process, they will practice navigating the possibilities and pitfalls of historical analogy.

Module Advanced Studies in Anglophone Cultural Studies: Writing Skills in the Anthropocene
06SM440o517 / Module

Description:

General description:
The Anthropocene-a term introduced to describe the epoch-making effects of human activity on the earth system-poses a special challenge for thought. It overturns our most basic representations of the world, like the distinction between nature and culture, or between human history and the history of life and the Earth. Coming to terms with the collapse of these representations puts tremendous pressure not just on our vocabulary, but on our syntax and idioms. After all, if the Earth is not the stage of human activity but another actor in its drama, then shouldn't we follow Donna Haraway's usage and say thatwe don't live "in" the world-we live "with" it?

Writing-let alone thinking-this way induces a three-fold disorientation: first, in space (where are we?); then, in time (what is our past and what is our future?); and finally, in identity (who are we and what can we do?).
Answering such questions often means transgressing the boundaries of genre and discipline. This course takes up the challenge, examining literary and non-literary attempts to map this terra incognita. Its core text is Richard Powers' Playground, a novel which narrates the brief history of the Anthropocene from the perspective of a tiny island in the middle of the South Pacific.

ECTS: 3

Notes:
This LSC colloquium puts a strong emphasis on writing. A considerable portion of class time will be devoted to low-stakes, writing-to-learn exercises that encourage critical thinking about the course materials and develop skills central to argumentative and analytical writing.
The writing skills we will be honing in class are directly transferable to the long research paper that students are required to produce in the module Writing Skills for Research, which makes this colloquium an excellent precursor to that course.

Learning Outcome:
After having completed this module, students will have acquired (broken down according to Anne Beaufort's taxonomy):

- Subject matter knowledge: They will possess a nuanced understanding of the interlocking theoretical and practical challenges that are grouped under the term "Anthropocene."

- Genre knowledge: They will know how to embed their writing within specific academic genres (open & exploratory as well as closed & thesis-governed), how to address it toparticular audiences (specialists, fellow students, lay readers), and how to adapt it to serve different rhetorical purposes (to inform, to analyze, to persuade, to reflect).

- Writing process knowledge: They will know how to breakdown long writing projects into stages, sections, and drafts. They will have refined the writing skills needed for each of these components, including revision and metacognitive reflection.

- Rhetorical knowledge: They will have tightened their command of the rhetorical forms of academic writing. They will be able to develop, test, and refine thesis statements know how to forecast the structure of complex written arguments, and execute key moves of argumentative and analytical prose (the "for example move," the "division into parallel parts move", the "comparison/contrast move," etc.).

- Discourse community knowledge: They will understand the difficulties that the study of the Anthropocene produces for modern academic disciplines. They will have also examined efforts to institutionalize interdisciplinarity through the creation of forums that include both humanists and natural scientists.

Languages of Instruction:
Englisch

Merkmale:

Responsible instructor: Philip Gerard

Requirements:

Prerequisites: Students are required to have English language skills of at least C1 level and to have experience using English as a medium of academic discourse.

Assessment: A learning portfolio consisting of "open" (exploratory) and "closed" (argument-driven) writing. All writing will be done in class. The texts that the students produce will not be graded, but they will provide a basis for discussion of the course materials and writing skills.

To receive a passing grade for the module, students must complete a minimum number of writing tasks by the end of the semester. For example, if there are 10 written tasks over the course of the semester, then a student's learning portfolio must include at least 7 written responses by the end of the semester to earn a pass.

Module Creative Writing
06SM440o010 / Module

Description:

General description:
In the field of language learning, creative writing has long been advocated as a valuable exercise due to its "playful but rigorous work with language" and its ability to create "greater precision in expression" (British Council). It has also been shown to be an important emotional outlet and leads to greater self-awareness, self-confidence and improved mental health. In keeping with these notions, this supplement course allows students to discover the merits of creative writing for themselves. Using a variety of prompts, students will compose their own poetry, prose and drama and will engage critically with their own work and with that of others. Special emphasis will be placed on responding to writing prompts, as well as on the creative process, editing and rewriting. A selection of the students' output will be collected and performed at an end-of-semester reading. Students will first read and discuss a selection of shorter text types (e.g. poetry, flash fiction, ten-minute plays), before emulating those by producing their own work.

ECTS: 3

Learning Outcome:
After having completed this module, students will:

- be skilled at writing a variety of shorter text types
- be adept at identifying strengths and weaknesses in their own and other students' writing
- be able to suggest solutions to remedy those weaknesses

Module Displacement and (Im)Mobility: Contemporary Migrant Writing
06SM440o503 / Module

Description:

General description:
Global migration - particularly the forced migration of refugees - is often framed as a challenge from the perspective of potential receiving countries, which frequently engage in concerted, even violent, efforts to seal their borders against unwanted incomers. In an era of widening wealth inequality, escalating military conflicts, and accelerating climate change, the issue of human mobility is becoming increasingly prominent. Yet often lost in the alarmist rhetoric surrounding migration are the perspectives of migrants themselves.

This seminar examines recent literary works that centre the experiences of displaced individuals across a range of genres, including the essay, memoir, autobiographical poetry, short story, and novel. Texts to be discussed include "No Friend but the Mountains" (2018), originally composed via text messages by the Iranian-Kurdish journalist Behrouz Boochani during his five-year detention in an isolated refugee camp on Manus Island, off the coast of Australia.
This widely acclaimed book gives visibility to the brutal and deliberately under-represented practice of forced immobility. We will also read "Tell Me How It Ends: An Essay in 40 Questions" (2017) by Mexican writer Valeria Luiselli, which captures the voices of undocumented child refugees who "illegally" entered the United States. In addition, we will examine selected stories from Viet Thanh Nguyen's "The Refugees" (2017) as well as Mohsin Hamid's "Exit West" (2017), a captivating and formally experimental novel that reimagines the Syrian refugee crisis of the mid-2010s through the lens of speculative fiction. Hamid depicts a world in which magic portals enable large-scale population movements that transform the global landscape, provocatively conceptualizing the right to migration as a basic human right.

Throughout the semester, we will explore how the texts under discussion use various modes of representation to engage with the experience of displacement and to challenge dominant narratives.

ECTS: 9

Learning Outcome:
Students are able to: (a) draw on an in-depth knowledge of a specific research topic or area in the field of literary and/or cultural studies; (b) show familiarity with both the current state of research and contemporary debates and issues in the respective area; (c) articulate complex viewpoints concering the respective seminar topic in an appropriate academic register.

Languages of Instruction:

Merkmale:

Responsible instructor: Michael Clemens Frank

Requirements:

Prerequisites: Students are expected to be familiar with the core concepts of textual analysis and be experienced in the close reading of primary and secondary texts. They should have read a wide range of texts from all the literary periods from the Renaissance to the present, and they are also expected to have written term papers in (English) literature at Bachelor level. Students are required to have good (written) academic English language skills (Level C1). Students are expected to have taken the Reading Literary and Critical Theory Module or an equivalent Master-level course elsewhere.

Description:

General description:
Die Studierenden bewerben sich eigenständig bei einschlägigen Institutionen (z.B. Kantonsarchäologien, Grabungsfirmen, Denkmalpflege oder Museen) für ein "externes" Praktikum. Der Umfang des Praktikums umfasst wenigstens vier Wochen zu 100% Arbeitszeit. Nach Zusage der Praktikumsstelle vereinbaren die Studierenden mit dem Modulverantwortlichen ein Praktikumskonzept. Ziel des Praktikums ist der Einblick in die archäologische Arbeitspraxis ausserhalb der Universität. Es obliegt den Studierenden, nach Absolvierung die erforderlichen Unterlagen (schriftliche Bestätigung der anbietenden Organisation, Leistungsnachweise gemäss Praktikumskonzept) einzureichen.

ECTS: 6

Notes:
Vorgängig zur Modulbuchung ist eine schriftliche Vereinbarung einzureichen. Bitte kontaktieren Sie dazu die Studienfachberatung (studienberatung@archaeologie.uzh.ch).

Learning Outcome:
Die Studierenden beherrschen Methoden und praktische Anwendungen archäologischer Arbeit, wie sie an dem gewählten Praktikumsort zur beruflichen Praxis gehören. Die Studierenden sind mit den gängigen Arbeitsabläufen in mindestens einem der Bereiche Ausgrabung, Prospektion, Bauuntersuchung, Grabungsauswertung, Denkmalpflege oder Öffentlichkeitsarbeit der anbietenden Institution vertraut. Sie handeln eigenverantwortlich in den ihnen anvertrauten Aufgabenbereichen.

Module Youth, Political Participation and Decision-Making
06SM615o517 / Module

Description:

General description:
Das Modul fördert vertieftes Fachwissen in einem ausgewählten Forschungsfeld. Es vermittelt die Kompetenz, zu einem ausgewählten Thema Fragestellungen aus Sicht der Politikwissenschaft zu entwickeln und zu analysieren. Im Zentrum des Seminars stehen die politikwissenschaftliche und normative Analyse, das trennscharfe Analysieren der Begriffe in ihrer Anwendung auf empirische Studien und das Begründen politischer Sachverhalte. Die unterschiedlichen Themen werden theoretisch und empirisch vertieft.

ECTS: 6

Learning Outcome:
Fachkompetenzen: Verortung von Argumenten und empirischen Studien in den relevanten wissenschaftlichen Debatten zu einem ausgewählten Thema; Methodenkompetenzen: wissenschaftliches Schreiben und Argumentieren; Verfassen eines schriftlichen Beitrags (Policy Paper, wissenschaftliche Abhandlung, etc.) Selbstkompetenzen: Definition eigener inhaltlicher Schwerpunkte, Selbsteinschätzung, Planungsfähigkeit.

Languages of Instruction:
Deutsch/Englisch - siehe Sprache der Lehrveranstaltung(en)

Merkmale:

Responsible instructor:	Thomas Widmer

Requirements:

Assessment:	Portfolio --- Schriftliche Arbeit 60% / Referat 40% Analyse und mündliche Präsentation einer ausgewählten Konfliktbearbeitungsstrategie mit Fallbeispiel (40%) und individuelle schriftliche Arbeit (60%) Bitte beachten: Alle Elemente des Portfolios müssen absolviert werden. Wird ein Element nicht absolviert, gilt das gesamte Portfolio als nicht absolviert und das Modul damit als nicht bestanden. Please note: All elements of the portfolio must be completed. If an element is not completed, the entire portfolio is deemed not to have been completed and the module thus failed.

Module Legal History (BLaw), Part 2 (no exam registration)
02SM60PM4T2 / Module without Credits

Description:

General description:
Das Modul umfasst die Vorlesung "Rechtsgeschichte" im Herbstsemester sowie die "Übungen zur Rechtsgeschichte" im Frühjahr. Das Modul Rechtsgeschichte vermittelt grundlegende Kenntnisse über die historischen Grundlagen der mitteleuorpäischen Rechtsordnung. Es dient zugleich dazu, die Fähigkeit zur selbständigen Textinterpretation vor dem Hintergrund der Wandlungen in Gesellschaft, Wirtschaft und politischer Herrschaft sowie der kulturellen Grundlagen zu entwickeln. Der zeitliche Rahmen des Moduls reicht von der Spätantike bis ins 20.
Jahrhundert.

ECTS: 0

Notes:
Rechtsgeschichte (BLaw), 2. Teil (keine Prüfungsanmeldung) ist der zweite Teil des zweisemestrigen Pflichtmoduls Rechtsgeschichte (BLaw). Die Buchung von Rechtsgeschichte (BLaw), 2. Teil (keine Prüfungsanmeldung) gilt nicht als Anmeldung zur Prüfung. Für die Prüfung siehe Link unter "Leistungsnachweis".
Die Art der Durchführung der Lehrveranstaltung wird auf der Website der Dozierenden publiziert. Die Veranstaltungen des Moduls werden durch Podcasts begleitet.

Learning Outcome:
1. Wissens- und Verständniskompetenzen: Rechtsgeschichtliche Kenntnisse sowie Verständnis für Zusammenhänge in der Entwicklung der Rechtsordnung.
2. Analytische und hermeneutische Kompetenzen
- Fähigkeit zur Betrachtung der modernen Rechtsordnung aus der historisch vermittelten Distanz

- Fähigkeit zur verstehenden Auseinandersetzung mit unbekannten Texten

- Reflexionskompetenz: Einsicht in die Verflechtung von Recht, Gesellschaft, Wirtschaft, Herrschaft und Kultur.

Target Groups:
Das Modul wendet sich in erster Linie an Studienanfängerinnen und Studienanfänger der Rechtswissenschaften, ist aber auch für Minor-Studierende der philosophischen Fakultät geeignet.

Languages of Instruction:
Deutsch

Course Materials:	Unterrichtsmaterialien werden in den Veranstaltungen insbesondere über OLAT und LHA zur Verfügung gestellt.
Merkmale:	Target Group: Open to School Students
Responsible instructor:	Andreas Thier Johannes Liebrecht

Requirements:

Prerequisites:	Interesse an rechtlicher Normativität, Rechtswissen und der Frage nach ihren Voraussetzungen, Inhalten und Wandlungen.

Prior Knowledge:	Historische Vorkenntnisse wären von Vorteil, sind aber nicht erforderlich.
Assessment:	siehe Modul Rechtsgeschichte (BLaw) (02SM60PM4) -> schriftliche Prüfung Ende Frühjahrssemester oder im darauffolgenden Herbstsemester https://studentservices.uzh.ch/uzh/anonym/vvz/#/details/SM/51044364

Module Roman Civil Law, Part 2 (no exam registration)
02SM60PM5T2 / Module without Credits

Description:

General description:
Das Modul Römisches Privatrecht dient der Einführung in das Studium des Privatrechts. Entsprechend werden grundlegende Institute, wie Eigentum und Vertrag, Rechtsfiguren, wie Stellvertretung und Auftrag und Rechtsprinzipien, wie Formalismus und Typenzwang, am historischen Beispiel vorgestellt und analysiert. Das Römische Privatrecht bildet die gemeinsame Grundlage der europäischen Privatrechtsordnungen und war auch für die Entstehung des schweizerischen Obligationenrechts und Zivilgesetzbuchs massgeblich, weshalb diese Regelungen ebenfalls vergleichend vorgestellt und gewürdigt werden. Im Einzelnen erhalten die Studierenden Einblick in die Institute und Prinzipien des Personenrechts, des Sachenrechts und vor allem des Obligationenrechts in Form des Vertrags- wie des Haftpflichtrechts. Ein besonderer Schwerpunkt liegt dabei auf der Analyse von römischrechtlichen Quellentexten (in deutscher Übersetzung), die bestimmte Problemlagen und Fallgestaltungen veranschaulichen und es erlauben, Gemeinsamkeiten und Unterschiede zwischen dem antiken römischen Recht und der heutigen Rechtslage zu erfassen und herauszuarbeiten.

ECTS: 0

Notes:
Römisches Privatrecht, 2. Teil (keine Prüfungsanmeldung) ist der zweite Teil des zweisemestrigen Pflichtmoduls Römisches Privatrecht. Die Buchung von Römisches Privatrecht, 2. Teil (keine Prüfungsanmeldung) gilt nicht als Anmeldung zur Prüfung. Für die Prüfung siehe Link unter "Leistungsnachweis".
Bei mehrfach geführten Lehrveranstaltungen kann die Gruppe frei gewählt werden.

Learning Outcome:
Die Studierenden lernen zentrale Institute des Römischen Rechts sowie die Methode der Textexegese, d.h. der systematischen Interpretation römischrechtlicher Texte, kennen. Anhand dieser Grundlagen soll das eigene juristische Denken erprobt und geschärft werden - eine Fähigkeit, die auch für den verständigen Umgang mit dem geltenden schweizerischen Privatrecht unerlässlich ist.

Target Groups:
Studierende der Assessment-Stufe, Minor-Studierende und weitere Interessierte.

Die Vorlesung Allgemeines Verwaltungsrecht (mit Tutoraten) widmet sich den allgemeinen Lehrendes Verwaltungsrechts (Grundprinzipien des Verwaltungsrechts, Handlungsformen der Verwaltung, verwaltungsrechtliche Institute, Verwaltungsorganisation usw.).
Die Vorlesung Öffentliches Verfahrensrecht behandelt die Grundlagen desVerfahrensrechts, das Verwaltungsverfahren sowie das öffentliche Prozessrecht, insbesondere die Rechtsmittel auf Bundesebene. Die Übungen dienen der fallbezogenen Anwendung des Stoffs.

ECTS: 0

Notes:
Öffentliches Recht II, 2. Teil (keine Prüfungsanmeldung) ist der zweite Teil des zweisemestrigen Pflichtmoduls Öffentliches Recht II. Die Buchung von Öffentliches Recht II, 2. Teil (keine Prüfungsanmeldung) gilt nicht als Anmeldung zur Prüfung. Für die Prüfung siehe Link unter "Leistungsnachweis".
Die Art der Durchführung der Lehrveranstaltung wird auf der Website der Dozentin bzw. des Dozenten publiziert.

Learning Outcome:
Die Studierenden sind nach Absolvierung des Moduls in der Lage, verwaltungs- und verfahrensrechtliche Problemstellungen zu lokalisieren und diese fallbezogen einer dogmatisch abgestützten, plausiblen und überzeugenden Lösung zuzuführen.

Module Hands-on History of English
06SM440o511 / Module

Description:

General description:
This
2-term project seminar allows students to get hands-on experience with historical data analysis and to thereby actively contribute to a research project currently carried out under the lead of the instructor ('Who did what to whom: Strategies of argument disambiguation in Early English'; WWW-SArDEEn).

Specifically, in the first semester (FS26), students will receive an in-depth introduction to the background and main aims of the project, which are to use state-of-the-art computational methods (in particular NLP-tools/ LLMs) to unravel the way in which English changed from a predominantly synthetic language (with e.g. extensive case marking and flexible word order) to a more analytic language (with little or indeed no case marking, and strict subject-verb-object order) between Old and Middle English. Students will then choose a specific aspect of this broad topic (such as e.g. word order in main vs subordinate clauses, atypical subject or object marking, loss of verb inflections, case marking patterns with specific verbs, etc.) to focus on. Towards the end of the first semester, students will present synopses of previous work on these issues - highlighting open questions especially connected to methodology - both orally and in written form.

The second semester (HS26) will resolve around practical data work, with students carrying out small projects on their chosen topics. That is, students will apply their questions hands-on to datasets from the instructor, in particular annotating the data with regard to variables identified as relevant in the first semester. As an example, this could mean filtering datasets for verbs of robbing/removing and developing classification schemes for case marking patterns with this verb class. One outcome of this second term will be carefully annotated and deliberated datasets which will in turn be used to train LLMs in the context of WWW-SArDEEn, i.e. the results will directly feed into and aid the larger project.
On the other hand, students will again present their final results on the phenomena investigated in a student-conference set-up at the end of HS26, and will reflect on the research process - in particular methodological challenges and pitfalls - as well as the final results in written form. Students will be acknowledged for their contributions in the project in due form, with the possibility of being included in the devising of actual research articles on selected issues.

ECTS: 15

Notes:
Sessions for this module will take place weekly in the first semester and every second week in the second semester. In the second semester, a student-conference will take place on December 12,

Learning Outcome:
Students gain hands-on experience with an actual research project, including data collection, data analysis, and project management skills. They learn to collaborate on a joint project in the context of the larger research project, to develop their own research design on the basis of relevant theoretical and methodological literature, present this in class and develop their ideas and analyses in written format. Most importantly, students will get in-depth practice at critically reflecting on methodological choices and challenges when working on concrete questions and with concrete historical data.

Module Gender and Migration
06SM721o125 / Module

Description:

General description:
This course explores migration as a gendered process, examining how roles and expectations linked to gender shape-and are reshaped by-mobility across local, national, and transnational contexts. Gender is a central form of social differentiation that intersects with age, class, ethnicity, nationality, race, disability, and sexual orientation, shaping the experience of migration. The course also addresses how legal frameworks and migration policy influence migrants' opportunities and constraints in gender-specific ways.
Students will engage with both theoretical and ethnographic work to understand how gender analysis enriches our understanding of migration as a social, cultural, and political process.

ECTS: 6

Learning Outcome:
By the end of the course, students will be able to:

- Understand how gender shapes migration processes and experiences across different social and cultural contexts.
- Apply an intersectional perspective to analyze the interactions of gender with class, race, ethnicity, nationality, and legal status in migration.
- Critically engage with literature on gender and migration, including transnational and labor-related mobility.
- Assess how migration impacts gender relations, household roles, and identities
- Examine the role of policy frameworks in shaping gendered opportunities and constraints in migration.

Module Living in a Nuclear Zone: Disaster, Uncertainty and Resilience
06SM721o126 / Module

Description:

General description:
Nach dem Zusammenbruch der Sowjetunion mussten sich die verschiedenen Nachfolgestaaten mit zahlreichen und langfristigen "unerwarteten" Ergebnissen abfinden. Der abrupte Wandel vom ökonomischen und gesellschaftlichen System des Sozialismus übertraf die befürchteten Schwierigkeiten und führte von versprochener Sicherheit zu plötzlichem Niedergang und Unsicherheit. Die Nachfolgestaaten Ukraine und Kasachstan im Besonderen erbten nicht nur ökonomischen und industriellen Müll allerorten, sondern auch die Überreste zweier der am stärksten kontaminierten Landschaften der Welt, Chernobyl und Semipalatinsk, beides Orte, an denen Gesundheit und Wohlbefinden im Kontext des Militarismus des kalten Krieges ignoriert worden waren. Technische Errungenschaften wurden als "Gefühl von Sicherheit" eingesetzt, während sie eine grundlegende Bedrohung und Konsequenzen für das kollektive Leben und die natürliche Umwelt verursacht haben.
Fokus dieser Veranstaltung ist das Leben auf und von kontaminiertem Land und wie sich dieses bis heute in Boden, Wasser und Nahrungskette fortsetzt. Das Seminar legt dabei den Schwerpunkt darauf, wie Menschen mit Volatilität und Wandel als allgegenwärtiges Merkmal des Lebens und versuchen Resilienz zu erhalten oder wieder aufzubauen.

ECTS: 6

Learning Outcome:
Mit Hilfe einer intensiven Beschäftigung durch das Lesen von Monographien bekommen Studierende vielseitige Aspekte über das Thema und diskutieren diese kritisch. Im Seminar werden damit verschiedene Kompetenzen erweitert:

- Lesen, Verstehen und analysieren akademischer Texte
- Schreiben eigener Textpassagen und Texte
- Präsentieren und Diskutieren
- Literaturrecherche
- Quellenkritik

Module Anthropology of Europe
06SM721o200 / Module

Description:

General description:
In diesem Kurs untersuchen wir die Alpenregion als Ort für anthropologische Forschungen zu Klimawandel, Migration, Resourcen, Tourismus, Politik, kulturellem Erbe und nationaler Identität. Der Kurs umfasst zwar alle Alpenländer und vergleicht unterschiedliche nationale Kontexte, der Hauptfokus liegt jedoch auf der Schweiz. Wir verfolgen nicht nur die Entwicklung der Alpenregion, sondern auch den Wandel von der Volkskunde zur heutigen Anthropologie. Dabei richten die Studierenden einen kritischen Blick auf "doing anthropology at home" und wenden ihn auch praktisch an. Der Kurs untersucht, wie die politische Ökologie, das kulturelle Erbe, alpine Identitäten und das globale Image der Alpen die lokalen Lebenswelten prägen und von ihnen geprägt werden. Zudem werden wir im Kurs nationale Narrativen von Neutralität, Unabhängigkeit, Sicherheit und Aufrüstung hinterfragen.
Im Kurs versuchen wir, die Alpen als grenzenlose kulturelle und ökologische Zone zu betrachten. Aus ethnografischer und historischer Perspektive untersuchen wir, wie sich die Alpen Region angesichts globaler Veränderungen neu zu denken versucht.

ECTS: 6

Learning Outcome:
Anwendung und Forschungspraxis

- grundlegende ethnografische Methoden (Teilnehmende Beobachtung, Interviews, visuelle und digitale Methoden, Textanalyse) selbständig in einer mehrtägigen Feldforschung in der Alpenregion anzuwenden;
- auf Basis dieser Forschung einen multimodalen Praxisbericht (Text, Bild, Ton oder Videoelemente) zu erstellen, der Forschungsergebnisse, Reflexionen und methodische Zugänge integriert;
- die Bedeutung und Herausforderungen von "doing anthropology at home" (Anthropologie im eigenen oder vertrauten kulturellen Umfeld) in der Feldpraxis kritisch zu reflektieren;
- theoretische Konzepte aus der Fachliteratur auf die eigene empirische Arbeit anzuwenden und mit den beobachteten Realitäten in Beziehung zu setzen.

Module Care and the Museum
06SM721o128 / Module

Description:

General description:
Care in museums has classically been synonymous with care for collections - under a specific conservation regime. However, museums (and especially ethnographic museums) have also been called upon to think differently about the way they care for their collections, but also to care for and with local and distant communities in a variety of ways.
Feminist scholar Joan Tronto defines it, care is "everything that we do to maintain, continue and repair "our world" so that we can live in it as well as possible" (1993, 103).
In what ways can applying this analytical lens to the work museums do - from restauration to Kulturelle Vermittlung to participatory exhibition and the revision of narratives - help us understand the new roles these institutions are called upon to fulfill? Can they be "spaces of care" in the midst of a climate crisis, repeated political crises and current calls to rethink post-colonial relationships?

During the semester, students will meet a variety of museum professionals to discuss the ways they incorporate care in their practices, and will conduct mini-fieldwork on local museums.

ECTS: 6

Learning Outcome:
By the end of the semester, students will be able to:

- engage with and participate in contemporary debates on care and on museum practices
- critically analyse museum spaces and practices through the lens of care

Module Ethics of Heritage Management
06SM721o334 / Module

Description:

General description:
This seminar will explore the complex ethical issues surrounding the identification, preservation, interpretation and management of cultural heritage in both tangible and intangible forms. Ethical considerations such as stewardship, ownership, community rights and inclusion, access, and consent will be critically examined. The seminar will place special emphasis on colonial and post-colonial approaches, indigenous knowledge systems and narratives, the impacts of heritage tourism, the growing importance of sustainability in archaeological landscapes, and the ethical responsibilities of heritage professionals and organizations.

The seminar will navigate the ethical challenges in diverse heritage contexts - museums, archives, historic sites, and cultural and natural archaeological landscapes, allowing students to critically evaluate heritage practices.

ECTS: 6

Learning Outcome:
Identify and analyze key ethical principles guiding the preservation, interpretation, and management of tangible and intangible cultural heritage.

Critically evaluate how concepts such as stewardship, ownership, community rights, access, and consent shape contemporary heritage practices.

Compare and contrast colonial, post-colonial, and indigenous frameworks for understanding and managing heritage.

Assess the ethical implications of heritage tourism, globalization, and sustainability initiatives on local communities and cultural landscapes.

Apply ethical reasoning to real-world case studies involving museums, archives, archaeological sites, and heritage landscapes.

Reflect on the roles and responsibilities of heritage professionals, institutions, and international organizations in negotiating competing claims to cultural heritage.

Develop informed and inclusive approaches to heritage management that integrate community participation, indigenous knowledge systems, and equitable decision-making processes.

Module Nomadic Futures
06SM721o615 / Module

Description:

General description:
Pastoral nomadism defines a socio-economic existence based on livestock raising on natural grasslands. It has been the basis of livelihood for millions of people, and still is today. As such it is perfectly adapted to particular ecological environments, and often the only way to make use of its natural resources. In recent decades, nomads have experienced increasing pressure by state-designed development projects, expanding (industrialised) agriculture or mining activities. In addition, the on-going climate change has detrimental effects on the availability of necessary grazing lands.
In this seminar, we will discuss nomadic livelihoods in different parts of the world. We will look at individual case studies and general trends from a comparative perspective. As part of the seminar, students will take part in an international workshop, which units scholars, practitioners and activists searching for a sustainable livelihood for pastoral households.

ECTS: 6

Notes:
This module lasts two semesters. Classes only take place in the first semester, and the module can be completed after either one or two semesters. You can only complete the module after two semesters if you are also enrolled in the second semester.

Learning Outcome:
The objective of this seminar is to understand a livelihood very different from their own that is under increasing pressure for assimilation. Students will discuss case studies as well as general tendencies based on a critical reading of available sources. They will also get an insight in academic contestations and its practical impacts by participating in an international workshop in "Nomadic Futures".

Module Theoretical Encounters: Reading Anna L. Tsing
06SM721o542 / Module

Description:

General description:
This seminar explores the work of anthropologist Anna Tsing, focusing on her theoretical contributions to contemporary anthropology. Through readings of Friction: An Ethnography of Global Connection, The Mushroom at the End of the World, and selected articles, students will engage with key themes such as precarity, collaboration, capitalism, and more-than-human worlds. The course emphasizes Tsing's methodological innovations and her role in shaping debates on globalization, ecology, and ethnographic practice. Students will critically examine how Tsing's work challenges conventional boundaries of the discipline and offers new ways of thinking anthropologically in times of crisis and entanglement.

ECTS: 3

Learning Outcome:
Students critically engage with Anna Tsing's theoretical contributions and reflect on their relevance for contemporary anthropological research and practice.

Module Greek Lyric Poetry (Seminar Greek Linguistics)
06SM272o616 / Module

Description:

General description:
In diesem Seminar widmen wir uns altgriechischer Lyrik. Das Hauptaugenmerkt liegt auf Sappho und Alkaios aus Lesbos, aber je nach Zeit und Interesse lesen wir auch Fragmente weiterer Lyriker aus anderen Regionen des alten Griechenlands. Nach einer kurzen Einführung in den äolisch-lesbischen und, soweit notwendig, anderen Dialekten befassen wir uns mit den überlieferten Werken der Dichter, indem wir deren Texte gemeinsam lesen, grammatikalisch und inhaltlich analysieren sowie übersetzen.

Module CIS PhD Colloquium
06SMG94o002 / Module

Description:

General description:
The aim of this colloquium is that the presenters receive feedback on their research at an important stage (a stage at which significant changes of direction, methodology, etc. may still be undertaken; within the first 12 months of the PhD project) in the PhD process.

Students give two presentations:
1. in the first semester (4-7 months after starting the PhD), students present early ideas without their supervisors being present,
2. in the second semester (before the 12th month of the PhD), students present their PhD project to a committee consisting of their supervisor and two further members.

ECTS: 1

Notes:
Open for PhDs in Political Science at CIS institutions (ETHZ and UZH).

The colloquium takes place at ETHZ (usually IFW building) in the spring term. More information will be made available via OLAT in due time (please book the module or sign up manually).

Please communicate your intent to join the Colloquium as early as possible via studium@ipz.uzh.ch.

Learning Outcome:
To show that the candidate is able to present a reasonable research plan regarding the PhD project, including, theory, anvisaged methods, overall embedding in the research environment, timetable.

Module Publication Seminar
06SMG94o102 / Module

Description:

General description:
The publication seminar exposes PhD students to the research from more established researchers and shows them how the research and publication processes function in political science.

To earn ECTS, the idea is that you attend the seminar throughout the term exactly as everyone else but in addition fulfill two specific conditions in order to receive credits:
1. Regular attendance,
i.e., at least attendance in
2/3 of the sessions throughout the term.
2. Written feedback for three papers of your choice. The idea is here to write an at least 1-2 page review of each paper that also explicitly discusses a potential publication strategy. This is review has to be send to both Silja Häusermann and Karsten Donnay prior to the respective seminar session.

ECTS: 1

Notes:
Open for PhDs, Postdocs and Faculty.
Takes place at IPZ, AFL-E-003.

Learning Outcome:
To learn how research projects are organized and translated into publications. To learn how the publication process works and how to deal with reviews and rejections.

Module Workshop Scientific English Writing
06SMG90o101 / Module

Description:

General description:
This workshop (three half days) focuses on the structure and linguistic features of scientific publications with ample opportunities for practical application and feedback. The approach is hands-on and provides theoretical input and analysis, interactive knowledge transfer and discussion, as well as practical exercises and work on participants' own texts.

Issues covered include the textual strategies in writing introductions, discussions/conclusions and abstracts, as well as linguistic components of better writing, such as text flow, conciseness, sophistication in vocabulary use and variety in structure.

Participants should reserve some time before the course and between the course days to work on their own writing.

ECTS: 1

Notes:
Offered as part of the complementary methodological training for PhD candidates in the Social Sciences.

The course will take place online.

Registration via e-mail to Dr. Doreen Spörer-Wagner (doreen.spoerer-wagner@phil.uzh.ch) not later than 15 April
2026.

Learning Outcome:

Module Research Colloquium in Ethics
06SMG11o007 / Module

Description:

General description:
Dieses Forschungskolloquium bietet fortgeschrittenen Studierenden die Möglichkeit, ihre laufenden Arbeiten einer auf Ethik spezialisierten Forschungsgruppe vorzustellen.
Gleichzeitig stellt das Kolloquium eine Gelegenheit dar, Vorträge von Personen zu besuchen, die universitär im Bereich der Ethik und in angrenzenden Bereichen forschen. Es bietet damit einen Einblick in die aktuelle Forschung in der Ethik und in angrenzenden Bereichen und erlaubt es, sich mit der Arbeitsweise in der akademisch-philosophischen Forschung vertraut zu machen.

Module From Idea to Text – A Writing Seminar
06SMG11o101 / Module

Description:

General description:
Während des Schreibens einer Dissertation haben wir manchmal eine Idee, die gut klingt und sich auch gut erzählen lässt, die wir aber (zu) lange nicht im Schreiben konkretisieren. Aber wir alle wissen eigentlich, dass sich erst im Schreibprozess herausstellt, wie gut eine Idee funktioniert, ob sie trägt, ob sie genug hergibt, wie sie sich entwickeln lässt - und kennen auch die befreiende Erfahrung, dass sich eine gute Idee beim Schreiben wie von selbst weiterentwickelt.

Das Ziel dieses Seminars ist es, den Weg von einer Idee zu einem Text gemeinsam in einer kleinen Gruppe zu gehen. Alle beginnen damit, eine Idee für ein Kapitel, einen Aufsatz oder einen Antrag genauer zu formulieren. Diese diskutieren wir dann gemeinsam und erstellen aufbauend darauf einen konkreten Plan für die Umsetzung der Idee in einen Text. Der Schreibprozess - der Fortschritte, aber auch manchmal eine Rückkehr zum Anfang beinhalten wird - wird begleitet durch kurze wöchentliche Treffen online, durch individuelle Besprechungen während des Semesters, und durch vier längere Treffen im Semester, bei denen wir Ideen und Texte gemeinsam diskutieren.

Das Seminar ist für alle geeignet, die etwas Unterstützung und Struktur beim Umsetzen einer Idee in einen Text brauchen können, und die sich verpflichten möchten, eine erste Version eines Textes im Laufe des Herbstsemesters bis Ende Januar zu schreiben. Besonders geeignet ist der Kurs für Doktorierende ab dem zweiten Jahr.

Module The Body, an Ally in Research? Somatic & Theoretical Exploration
06SMG90o107 / Module

Description:

General description:
Despite the growing attention to the politics of bodies and their centrality in research, the researcher's body often remains denied, invisible, or sacrificed in the name of objectivity and efficiency. While anthropology and related fields have long challenged dualisms such as mind/body, cognition/emotion, or subjectivity/objectivity, embodied epistemologies still struggle to take root in actual research and in doctoral projects. This two-day seminar invites participants to (re)discover the simplicity and power of a conscious body - with its rhythms, limits, emotionality, and sensoriality - in the formulation of thought, the creation of ideas, and in understanding and interacting with the environment. Through theoretical discussions and body explorations, it offers space and time to reflect on and experiment with embodied inquiry and explore ways of integrating the body - our bodies - into the research process. The seminar expands the methodological toolbox of the social sciences and humanities through the collaboration with an artist who places bodily techniques at the heart of his research.

ECTS: 1

Notes:
Offered as part of the complementary methodological training for PhD candidates in the Social Sciences.

Registration via e-mail to Dr.
Doreen Spörer-Wagner (doreen.spoerer-wagner@phil.uzh.ch) not later than 1 February 2026.

No prior knowledge is required - just curiosity, interest, and perhaps a little courage to try something new and to collectively explore questions such as: What bodily states do we experience during a PhD, and how can we politicise their reflexive analysis? How can we recognise and feel the body as a generator of ideas, emotional states, connections, and analytical data?

Learning Outcome:
Acquire concrete tools and gain the confidence to experiment with approaches that challenge the modern episteme and its foundational division between body and consciousness.

Module Mixed Methods: Combining Qualitative and Quantitative Research
06SMG90o106 / Module

Description:

General description:
The use of mixed methods research designs, namely combining language- and number-based methods, is becoming increasingly common in the social sciences. This approach is particularly valuable in today's transdisciplinary and collaborative research environments. However, making analytically grounded decisions about how to select and combine research methods requires skill and knowledge-and many of us have been trained and socialized into an only limited range of research methods.
This workshop will train you to recognize the analytical potential of individual social science research methods (such as interviews, observations, focus groups, surveys, and experiments) and to productively combine these methods in specific mixed methods research designs.

The workshop will include trainer input, individual practical exercises, peer-to-peer group work, and class discussions. The workshop facilitator will contact you via Email beforehand to assign some individual preparatory readings. [If you would like to contact the course convenor, Dr. Maren Heibges, please use her TU Berlin Email address for correspondence: heibges@tu-berlin.de]

ECTS: 1

Notes:

Registration via e-mail to Dr.
Doreen Spörer-Wagner (doreen.spoerer-wagner@phil.uzh.ch) not later than 1 May 2026.

You should be trained in - some - social science research methods. We then explore how those methods you know well can be combined with those that are more unfamiliar to you.

Specifically, the workshop is designed for different groups:

- PhD researchers using qualitative methods who are considering adding a quantitative element to their research.
- PhD researchers specialized in quantitative methods who want to learn more about integrating qualitative methods into their research design.
- PhD researchers interested in selecting the right array of qualitative methods for their specific research interests.

Learning Outcome:
We will dedicate time to work on your individual research designs and existing data, discussing which approach might be most suitable for your research question and subject. Additionally, we will explore the theoretical implications of individual methods and method combinations, helping you navigate interdisciplinarity more effectively. The workshop includes practical exercises, concrete examples of mixed methods, and typical research designs. It has a strong collegial and interactive focus, drawing on the diverse methodological expertise of your peers.

Upon completing this workshop, you will be able to reflect on the analytical potential of individual qualitative and quantitative social science methods and the scientific paradigms they align with. You will be familiar with common mixed methods research designs-that is, designs that combine qualitative and quantitative research-and gain hands-on experience with combined data analysis. This foundation will enable you to make analytically grounded decisions on how to combine different qualitative and quantitative methods, or various qualitative methods.

Description:

General description:
Das Modul fördert vertieftes Fachwissen in einem ausgewählten Forschungsfeld. Es vermittelt die Kompetenz, zu einem ausgewählten Thema Fragestellungen aus Sicht der Politikwissenschaft zu entwickeln und zu analysieren. Im Zentrum des Seminars stehen die politikwissenschaftliche und normative Analyse, das trennscharfe Analysieren der Begriffe in ihrer Anwendung auf empirische Studien und das Begründen politischer Sachverhalte. Die unterschiedlichen Themen werden theoretisch und empirisch vertieft.

ECTS: 6

Learning Outcome:
Fachkompetenzen: Verortung von Argumenten und empirischen Studien in den relevanten wissenschaftlichen Debatten zu einem ausgewählten Thema; Methodenkompetenzen: wissenschaftliches Schreiben und Argumentieren; Verfassen eines schriftlichen Beitrags (Policy Paper, wissenschaftliche Abhandlung, etc.) Selbstkompetenzen: Definition eigener inhaltlicher Schwerpunkte, Selbsteinschätzung, Planungsfähigkeit.

Module Evidence-based Correctional Law
02SM90WM110 / Course

Description:

General description:
Was bedeutet es, ein Leben im strafrechtlichen Freiheitsentzug zu führen – und wer entscheidet über die Ausgestaltung des Alltags einer inhaftierten Person im Straf- oder Massnahmenvollzug? Die Vorlesung öffnet den Zugang zu jenem Teil des Rechts, der Antworten auf Fragen bereithält, die im Grundstudium meist nur am Rande behandelt werden, für das Leben inhaftierter Personen jedoch von zentraler Bedeutung sind – insbesondere angesichts der mit dem Vollzug verbundenen Eingriffe in verschiedene Menschenrechte.

Die Vorlesung vermittelt die Grundlagen des Straf- und Massnahmenvollzugsrechts und verknüpft dabei rechtliche und empirische Perspektiven. Bestehende Strukturen und Rechtsauslegungen werden kritisch hinterfragt und Entwicklungspotenziale identifiziert. Punktuell bringen Expert:innen aus der Praxis ihre Perspektiven in die Vorlesung ein. Im Rahmen der Veranstaltung ist ein (fakultativer) Besuch einer Haftanstalt eingeplant.

Inhalt der Vorlesung bilden folgende Themenblöcke:

- System- und Rechtsquellenverständnis des Justizvollzugsrechts auf allen Stufen (Völker- und Verfassungsrecht, Bundesrecht, (inter-)kantonales Recht, Soft-Law).
- Prinzip der Evidenzbasierung, d.h. Verwendung des besten verfügbaren empirischen Wissens aus der Psychologie, Psychiatrie und Kriminologie als Grundlage für die Rechtsetzung, Sachverhaltsfeststellung, Rechtsanwendung und rechtspolitische Diskussion.
- Individualisierung des Sanktionenvollzugs (Vollzugsform, Vollzugplanung, Spezialbedürfnisse aufgrund Geschlechts, Alter etc.)
- Risikoentscheidungen und Güterabwägungen bei drohenden Straftaten.
- Regulierung des Haftalltags und Regeldurchsetzung mittels präventiver Massnahmen und Disziplinarsanktionen.
- Gesundheitsfürsorge und das Ausmass von Autonomie von inhaftierten Personen in somatisch-psychischen Belangen (Stichworte: Hungerstreik, assistierter Suizid).
- Erhalt und Regulierung von Aussenkontakten und das Spannungsfeld zur Anstaltssicherheit.
- Notwendigkeit und Limitationen des Individualrechtsschutzes und Bedarf nach systemischer Qualitätskontrolle.
- Alternativen zum Freiheitsentzug (nicht-freiheitsentziehende Sanktionen, Abolitionismus etc.).

Weiterführende Informationen finden Sie auf der Webseite des Lehrstuhls Urwyler.

ECTS: 6

Notes:
Die Mastervorlesung zum Sanktionenrecht (durchgeführt von Felix Bommer) befasst sich mit dem übergeordneten Rechtsrahmen des Sanktionenrechts (Sanktionsarten, rechtliche Voraussetzung individueller Sanktionsformen, Strafzumessung etc.). Die vorliegende Masterveranstaltung weist einen anderen Schwerpunkt auf: Sie befasst sich mit den Rechtsfragen, die inhaftierte Personen in ihrem Alltag im strafrechtlichen Freiheitsentzug betreffen.

Learning Outcome:
Die Studierenden kennen die zentralen rechtlichen Spannungsfelder im Straf- und Massnahmenvollzug.
Sie können Rechtsschutzmöglichkeiten zielgerichtet nutzen.
Sie sind in der Lage, empirische Erkenntnisse in ihre juristische Argumentation einfliessen zu lassen und daraus fundierte rechtliche Argumente abzuleiten.

Module Masterclass in Comparative Law: Italy and Switzerland
02SM90WM111 / Course

Description:

General description:
Il corso offre agli studenti un approccio pratico e comparatistico per affrontare problematiche giuridiche transfrontaliere. Attraverso l'analisi parallela delle legislazioni, delle procedure e delle prassi forensi svizzere e italiane, il corso promuove lo sviluppo di competenze applicative e interdisciplinari. Gli studenti saranno coinvolti in casi concreti, esercitazioni pratiche e simulazioni giudiziarie mirate a comprendere similitudini e differenze tra i due ordinamenti. Saranno approfonditi settori chiave quali diritto civile, penale, amministrativo e procedure di risoluzione alternativa delle controversie. Durante il corso, interverranno anche figure professionali provenienti da entrambi i contesti legali (svizzero e italiano) per offrire testimonianze dirette e approfondimenti specialistici. L'obiettivo è fornire strumenti concreti per operare in un contesto transnazionale, valorizzando competenze professionali e analitiche.

ECTS: 6

Notes:
Il corso è aperto a coloro che parlano italiano, ma anche a coloro che hanno una conoscenza passiva della lingua italiana.

Learning Outcome:
•   Acquisire competenze pratiche nell’analisi comparata del diritto svizzero e italiano.
•   Sviluppare capacità di gestione e risoluzione di casi legali transfrontalieri.
•   Comprendere criticamente le specificità procedurali e sostanziali dei due sistemi giuridici.
•   Potenziare le abilità argomentative e forensi attraverso simulazioni pratiche.
•   Preparare gli studenti a operare professionalmente in contesti giuridici internazionali.

Target Groups:
Studenti del livello Master provenienti dalla Facoltà di Giurisprudenza.
Il corso è aperto anche a studenti provenienti da altre facoltà.

Module Lecture Series in Law & Equality (Crime, Punishment & Law)
02SM90WM112 / Course

Description:

General description:
Equality before the law and the equal application of law are fundamental principles of justice in constitutional democracies. These principles are of considerable importance in the context of crime and punishment. The power to attribute criminal liability and impose punishment is an essential aspect of the operation of the state. In the institution of punishment, the liberal state conveys a distinct form of authority which is defined not by power or faith but by law. The attribution of criminal liability and imposition of punishment is characterized by its institutional, limited, uniform, and universal character. Everyone is subject to the might of the penal state and punishment's legitimacy rests on the idea that all individuals could and should have refrained from committing criminal offences. At the same time, it is precisely this narrowness of focus on individual responsibility for an act or omission and the silencing of worries about other causes of, or reasons for, criminal behaviour (sociological, economic etc), that gives rises to concerns that to treat everyone equally might be to treat some people wrongly. Such concerns will be the focus of this course. It will also allow for consideration of the political dimension and the liberal assumption that the ideal state is a constitutional democracy which guarantees rights through law. Current political challenges to the political-legal order are of relevance here. When a US president can pardon his son or a tech billionaire close to Government feels able to brazenly assert that political decision making would best be served by replacing democratic government with a 'republic of high-status males', the importance of law and equality take on particular resonance.

The course will be made up of 4 reading seminars and 8 lectures by leading experts on crime, punishment and equality from law, philosophy, sociology and politics. The lectures will be based on papers which will be circulated to the students in advance.

ECTS: 6

Notes:
To apply for this module, please submit the following documents:
•   Motivation letter (english, pdf, maximum 200 words) explaining why you wish to participate in this module. Please note that the use of AI tools is not permitted.
•   Proof of transcript of records
The selection is not based on grades, but on your academic interests and motivation related to the module.

Learning Outcome:
Students will gain a comprehensive understanding of the relationship between law and equality.

Module Law and Development
02SM90WMG5 / Course

Description:

General description:
Law is widely thought of as a key ingredient, if not a prerequisite to economic development. “Good institutions lead to good economic outcome” is how the World Bank put it in one of its reports. In this rendering, economic development means growth, measured typically by GNP or GDP – the gross domestic product or the gross national product (the latter adding what nationals might have produced abroad). Only what is measurable in terms of pecuniary value is included, which excludes much of care work and the informal economy. This course will unpack the notion of development and growth in light of the costs (or externalities) for different peoples and society both historically and comparatively. It introduces students to recent debates on degrowth in light of climate change and their implications for less developed countries. Law and the state play a central role in most development narratives, if only by pointing to the central role of property rights and their enforceability in a court of law. There are, however, numerous other ways in which law affects development for different constituencies as well as for nature. This course will take a close look at the role of business organizations, labor, and money. The major goal of the course is to shed a critical light on conventional stories that emphasize the beneficial role of law to growth and growth to development.

Module Legal Anthropology of the Postcolonial World
02SM90WMG6 / Course

Description:

General description:
This course offers an introduction to a broadly-defined legal anthropology of the postcolonial world by way of focussing on the emergence, current present and potential future(s) of «transformative constitutionalism» in post-apartheid South Africa in light of persisting demands for profound societal change.

Combining both lectures and seminar sessions based on key readings, the course situates the contemporary constitutional framework within the colonial history of European settler expansion since the 17th century, persisting legal and normative pluralities (with only partial official recognition of customary laws) and expansive law-based racial discrimination against the non-white majority for most of the 20th century. Against this backdrop, students will engage with the potentials and pitfalls of law-driven change in the emotionally charged and politically contested field of land reform, including legal debates around «expropriation without compensation» (which, as one international repercussion, recently led President Donald Trump to provide for refugee status of white South African farmers in the US). Against this backdrop, the course will also discuss current proposals by both South African political actors and legal scholars to overcome liberal constitutionalism, seen as part of the problem of persisting (neo)coloniality, and replace it with some Africanist decolonial normativity. The potential resemblance of such decolonial projects with a growing legal-authoritarian backlash against liberal constitutionalism in many parts of the contemporary world will thereby form a broader comparative context, in which to discuss the potentials and pitfalls of law-driven change in general and of transformative constitutionalism in particular.

ECTS: 3

Notes:
Further details will be announced at the beginning of the semester

Learning Outcome:
Students will engage with the complexities of «law in books» and «law in action» through studying exemplary aspects of a mixed-legal system under conditions of highly contested normative pluralities, a pronounced legal history of colonial exploitation and discrimination, and persisting inequalities in need of transformation, possibly through legal means. They will also learn to «decenter» state law, viewing it as one of many normative systems that guide and shape human experience and is shaped by other normative commitments in society.

Description:

General description:
Das Modul «Erziehungswissenschaftliche Kindheitsforschung» ist inhaltlich breit angelegt und fragt nach Kindheiten und kindlichen Lebensweisen in formalen, nonformalen und informellen Bildungskontexten. Ausgehend von der erziehungs- und sozialwissenschaftlichen Kindheitsforschung wird in die zentralen Perspektiven Kindheit als Struktur, als Diskurs und als Lebensweise eingeführt. Am Beispiel von Forschungen zu Kindheit und Bildung in der Migrationsgesellschaft werden sowohl methodologische als auch forschungsethische Fragen diskutiert. Vor dem Hintergrund von Inputs der Referentinnen aus ihren Arbeiten zu Differenz, Ungleichheit und Migration, gemeinsamen Diskussionen am Beispiel empirischen Datenmaterials aus ihren ethnographischen Studien werden auch die Dissertationen der Teilnehmenden diskutiert. Angesprochen sind Dissertationen mit aktuellen und historischen Fragestellungen, die im Hinblick auf theoretische, methodische oder ethische Fragen eingebracht werden können.

Module Confident Argumentation in Controversial Discussions
06SMG00o005 / Module

Description:

General description:
Das Fachwissen von Geistes - und Sozialwissenschaftler:innen ist zur Einordung gesellschaftlicher Entwicklungen je länger je mehr gefragt. Die Öffentlichkeit und vor allem die Medien suchen vermehrt nach Erklärung und Einordung derselben. Fachleute werden demnach auch immer öfter in Sendungen von Radio und Fernsehen oder an Podien eingeladen, ihre wissenschaftlichen Erkenntnisse und Meinungen darzulegen.

Dies ist auch für die Geistes- und Sozialwissenschaften eine grosse Chance.

Unser Kurs beleuchtet folgende Fragen:

- Wie bereite ich mich auf einen solchen Auftritt vor?
- Wie argumentiere ich souverän?
- Wie formuliere ich meine Botschaft adressatengerecht?
- Wie gehe ich mit kontroversen Einwänden um?
In Theorie und Praxis gehen wir diesen Fragen nach und arbeiten mit der Kamera an Ihren Auftritten, Botschaften und Argumenten. Die Analyse erfolgt durch die Expertin Regula Späni und die anderen Teilnehmenden.

ECTS: 1

Notes:
Anmeldung bis zum 1. April 2026 per E-Mail an Doreen Spörer-Wagner (doreen.spoerer-wagner@phil.uzh.ch).
Die Teilnehmenden des Kurses werden in zwei Gruppen von je max. 7 Personen eingeteilt. Jede Gruppe wird jeweils einen halben Tag (3.5 h) am 18. und 22. Mai in Theorie und Praxis vor der Kamera unterrichtet. Auf Wunsch von insgesamt mindestens 5 Kursteilnehmenden kann ein dritter Kurstag (zu einem späteren Zeitpunkt) vereinbart werden, an dem erworbenes Wissen in Interviewsituationen praktisch geübt wird.

Grundlagen und Sicherheit für Auftritte in Medien und Öffentlichkeit

Module Research Colloquium Modern and Contemporary Art
06SMG31o004 / Module

Description:

General description:
Das Kolloquium soll Raum bieten für die Präsentation und Diskussion von Recherchevorhaben und Abschlussarbeiten. Darstellungs- und Forschungsfragen werden dabei ebenso besprochen wie Aufbau und Gliederung, die Archivarbeit und das Verfassen eines Forschungsstandes zu einer Recherche.
Das Kolloquium soll ebenfalls die Möglichkeit geben, theoretische Texte gemeinsam zu lesen und zu diskutieren oder auch gemeinsam Ausstellungen zu besuchen.
Die Teilnehmer:innen bringen dabei eigene Interessen ein.

ECTS: 4

Learning Outcome:
Die Etappen bei der Verfertigung einer Abschlussarbeit werden begleitet: Konzeption, Erstellen und Überarbeiten einer Gliederung, Verfassen eines Forschungsberichtes, Umstrukturierungen bei/nach Archivarbeit und Fragen, die sich aus dem Material ergeben, auch Kapitelentwürfe können diskutiert werden, etc. Gegenseitig lernen die Studierenden im Austausch untereinander von den formulierten Problemen und Herausforderungen sowie ihren möglichen Lösungen.

Module Research Colloquium in East Asian Art History
06SMG32o001 / Module

Description:

General description:
The Research Colloquium in East Asian Art History offers a platform for MA students, doctoral candidates and postdoctoral researchers to develop their individual research projects. Participants will engage in the process of formulating research questions, identifying pertinent research materials and methodologies, and exploring relevant theoretical frameworks. They will have the opportunity to present their works in progress and receive feedback from their peers.
Additionally, the colloquium will facilitate discussions on secondary sources relevant to both individual research projects and the broader field of East Asian Art History.

Module INI 510 Readings in Neuroinformatics 2
07SMINI510 / Seminar

Description:

General description:
Thirteen major areas of research have been selected, which cover the key concepts that have led to our current ideas of how the nervous system is built and functions. We will read both original papers and explore the conceptual the links between them and discuss the 'sociology' of science, the pursuit of basic science questions over a century of research.

Besides the formal course hour, the course work will also require additional time (ca. 2 hour per week) to complete.

ECTS: 3

Learning Outcome:
It is a commonplace that scientists rarely cite literature that is older than 10 years and when they do, they usually cite one paper that serves as the representative for a larger body of work that has long since been incorporated anonymously in textbooks. Worse than that, many authors have not even read the papers they cite in their own publications. This course, ‘Readings in Neuroinformatics’ is one antidote. Major areas of research have been selected, which cover the key concepts of Neuroinformatics. Unusually, we will explore these areas of research by reading the original publications, instead of reading someone else’s digested summary from a textbook or review. By doing this, we will learn how the discoveries were made, what instrumentation was used, how the scientists interpreted their own findings, and how their work, often over many decades and linked together with related findings from many different scientists, generate the current views of mechanism and structure of the nervous system. We will also explore the personalities of the scientists and the context in which they made their seminal discoveries. Students will be given original papers to read plus some additional assignments. We will then meet weekly with the course leader and an assistant for an interactive seminar. An intimate knowledge of the papers will be assumed so that the discussion does not center simply on an explication of the contents of the papers. Assessment will be in the form of assignments throughout the semester.

This course is reserved for NSC Masterstudents.
Students do NOT have to take Readings in Neuroinformatics 1 FIRST.

Module Politics from Below: Social Movements and the Struggle for Just Futures
06SM722o002 / Module

Description:

General description:
Social movements are key drivers of political contestation and visions of justice in today's world. This seminar introduces students to the main concepts and theories used to analyse social movements, with particular attention to environmental and agrarian struggles. We then turn to debates on environmental justice, agrarian reform, and the notion of a 'just transition', asking how risks, resources, and benefits are unevenly distributed across different social groups and regions. Finally, we apply these analytical tools to case studies from across the globe-including conflicts around land, mining, dams, energy, and climate justice-examining how collective action resists dispossession and articulates alternative futures.

ECTS: 6

Learning Outcome:
By the end of the course, students will be able to:
1. Synthesise and critically evaluate key theories of social movements and their relevance for understanding struggles over environment, land, and justice in diverse cultural and political contexts.
2. Conduct comparative analyses of historical and contemporary movements across world regions, identifying both cross-cutting patterns and local specificities in agrarian, environmental, and just transition struggles.
3. Interrogate the role of gender, intersectionality, and power relations in shaping the trajectories, strategies, and impacts of social movements.
4. Critically assess the practices and narratives of diverse movements-including feminist, Indigenous, anti-racist, environmental, agrarian, urban, and digital activism-in relation to broader struggles for social and environmental justice.
5. Formulate and present independent, evidence-based arguments about how social movements contribute to or challenge dominant models of development, resource extraction, and sustainability.
6. Communicate research and reflection in creative and dialogical forms, using the classroom as a safe environment for respectful exchange, and exploring artistic or media-based formats (e.g. blogs, podcasts, photo-essays, short films, zines, or visual storytelling) to present research and critical reflections

Module Workshop Cultural Analysis
06SM380o801 / Module

Description:

General description:
Im Modul «Kulturanalytische Werkstatt» geht es darum, die kulturanalytischen Kompetenzen und Fertigkeiten einzuüben und zu reflektieren, die für die Methoden und die Praktiken der Kulturanalyse grundlegend und unerlässlich sind:

"Kultur analysieren": Was heisst das und wie geht das? Was heisst «Kultur», was heisst «analysieren»?
Wie finde ich relevante kulturanalytische Theorie und Materialien, die ich analysieren möchte?
Wie analysiere ich Bilder, Filme, Serien, Fotographien, Alltagspraktiken, Social Media-Inhalte?
Wie lese ich herausfordernde theoretische Texte?
Was heisst Lesen, was heisst Text, was heisst Theorie?
Was sind Zeichen, Diskurse, Medien, Praktiken?
Wie bereite ich mich auf eine kulturanalytische Seminarsitzung, auf eine Schriftliche Arbeit, auf das Prüfungsgespräch vor?
Wie recherchiere ich (etwa für meine kulturanalytischen Leistungsnachweise)?
Wie verwende ich in der Kulturanalyse legal und gewinnbringend KI?

ECTS: 3

Learning Outcome:
Ziel der «Kulturanalytischen Werkstatt» ist es, den Studierenden die Fertigkeiten und Kompetenzen zu vermitteln, um am Leitfaden der in den Pflichtmodulen gelehrten Methoden und Praktiken Kultur in allen ihren möglichen Erscheinungs- und Gegebenheitsweisen analysieren zu können. Zudem geht es darum, die fachliche Orientierung und Sicherheit, die sich KA Studierende wünschen, sowie ausreichend Betreuung und Begleitung zu bieten, die es Ihnen ermöglicht, das Studium der Kulturanalyse mit all ihren Herausforderungen gelingend bestreiten zu können.

Module Legisprudence and Legislation: Theoretical and Comparative Perspectives
02SM90WMG7 / Course

Description:

General description:
Traditionally, in many countries, most legal education and scholarship tended to focus on courts and case-law, while legislatures and legislation have largely been neglected. This course, however, will shift focus to legisprudence – the legal field dedicated to studying the theory and practice and legislation – and to the legislative process. Rather than focusing on the legislative process of a specific country, it will discuss these subjects in theoretical and comparative perspectives.

We will learn about the stages of the legislative process. Then, we will study theories of the legislative process, such as public choice theory, procedural theories and institutional theories. We will then discuss the law of lawmaking - the laws and rules that regulate the legislative process. Among other things, we will discuss the conceptual and theoretical development from the traditional concept of supreme and sovereign legislature, according to which there could be no legal restrictions on the legislative process, towards the modern concept of the rule of law in the legislature. We will also discuss the purposes of the law of lawmaking. In addition, we will examine the court's role in judicial review of the legislative process. We will also deal with central and controversial developments in the legislative process: the rise of unorthodox lawmaking (and particularly omnibus legislation); and the rise of temporary legislation. Finally, subject to time limitations, we will also deal with legislative interpretation, focusing on legislative interpretation in light of insights on the legislative process. Additional possible subjects, time permitting, will include the operation of legislatures during emergencies and pandemics, and the future of legislatures in the age of artificial intelligence.

Learning Outcome:
Learning objectives:
The main general objective is to introduce students to the field of legisprudence and the world of legislation. Among other things, students would gain a grasp of the legislative process, and learn the various theoretical understanding of the main forces, institutions and motivations driving the process of lawmaking. They will also gain an understanding of both the classic “textbook” legislative process and to alternative unorthodox developments in lawmaking.

Another main objective is for students to learn the legal aspects related to the legislative process – the aspects that may be most relevant to the work of lawyers: the law of lawmaking, judicial review of the legislative process, and statutory interpretation.

Pedagogically, in addition to providing students knowledge on these important subjects, the objective is to let the students think critically by themselves about these subjects, and to have them present applications of the theoretical materials to real-world examples of lawmaking from their countries.

Module Lecture: Designing Japan: Architecture and Society from the Origins to the 21st century
06SM642o003 / Module

Description:

General description:
Jedes Semester wird eine Vorlesung zu einem kulturübergreifenden Thema der Kunstgeschichte Ostasiens angeboten. Die Vorlesungen vermitteln Überblickswissen zu Formen, Gattungen, Themen und den Entwicklungslinien ostasiatischer Kunst und stellen diese anhand ausgewählter Objekte und Gegenstände tiefgreifend dar.

ECTS: 3

Learning Outcome:
Die Studierenden erweitern und vertiefen ihren Wissenstand über die Kunstgeschichte Ostasiens und vertiefen ihre Theorie- und Methodenkompetenz. Sie sind vertraut mit historischen und besonders auch aktuellen Diskursen, Theorien und Methoden und werden dazu befähigt, die im Modul vorgestellten Gegenstände exemplarisch und systematisch ihrem jeweiligen kunsthistorischen Kontext zuzuordnen. Die Studierenden können die Entstehungs- und Rezeptionsgeschichte ostasiatischer Objekte in ihren eigenen als auch fremden Kulturen beschreiben und lernen diese Erkenntnisse mit aktuellen Theoriemodellen kritisch zu hinterfragen.

Module History of Monetary Macroeconomics (L)
03SM22BO0147 / Course

Description:

General description:
This course provides an introductory examination of the history of monetary macroeconomics. It investigates the evolving roles of the issuance and circulation of monetary instruments within the macroeconomy. The course employs an integrative approach, combining (i) basic conceptual frameworks for understanding, for example, how a central bank operates under a commodity standard, (ii) important historical examples like the gold standard, and (iii) core theoretical debates like the question of whether money is "neutral".
The curriculum begins with the fundamental principles of economic and financial accounting, including balance sheets and the functions of the financial sector. It then traces the evolution of monetary systems from IOU-based economies and early bills of exchange to the origins of (central) banking before 1800 (Bindseil). The course proceeds with an analysis of major historical monetary regimes, including the classical gold standard (1870-1914), the Bretton Woods system, and the post-1971 global dollar system.
A central component of the course is a critical examination of the key intellectual debates that have arisen alongside these historical regimes. This includes the Keynesian revolution, the neoclassical synthesis, the monetarist counter-revolution (Friedman), and Hyman Minsky's theories on financial instability and associated debates around market efficiency and prudential regulations. The final module connects this historical perspective to contemporary issues. Based on student interest, topics may include Central Bank Digital Currencies (CBDCs), stablecoins, today's Dollar system, and monetary sovereignty.
Course exercises will involve the discussion of academic papers or the use of simple Python simulations to model monetary arrangements.

ECTS: 3

Notes:
This lecture is held by an external lecturer: Dr. Richard Senner is a member of the Financial Stability Board (FSB).

Learning Outcome:
Upon successful completion of this course, students will be able to:

- Analyze the historical evolution of monetary systems, from commodity standards to modern fiat and digital currencies.
- Construct and interpret the balance sheets of central banks and commercial banks, as well as associated flow of funds, to understand real-world money creation and monetary operations.
- Critically evaluate major theoretical debates in monetary economics, including the neutrality of money, the causes of financial instability, and the role of central banking.
- Situate contemporary monetary issues-such as Central Bank Digital Currencies (CBDCs) or stablecoins-within their broader historical and theoretical context.
- Apply conceptual knowledge through practical exercises, including the critical analysis of seminal academic papers and the interpretation of simple economic simulations (Python)

Module Wertorientiertes Controlling (L)
03SM22BO0148 / Course

Description:

General description:
Die wertorientierte Lenkung eines Unternehmens - ob gewinnorientiertes oder Non-Profit-Unternehmen - gehört zu den wichtigsten Aufgaben von Führungsorganen. Es gilt, die Substanz eines Unternehmens zu halten, zu schützen und nach den definierten Zielsetzungen weiterzuentwickeln.
Dabei müssen die Erwartungen verschiedener Anspruchsgruppen aufeinander abgestimmt werden. Die Erfüllung dieser Erwartungen soll anhand von klar nachvollziehbaren Performance- und Kennzahlenmodellen dokumentiert werden können. Inhaltlich deckt die Veranstaltung ein weites Spektrum an Themen ab, darunter wertorientierte Führung, Budgetierung, Reporting, Kosten- und Leistungscontrolling, Investitionscontrolling und Projektcontrolling.

ECTS: 3

Learning Outcome:
Nach Abschluss der Veranstaltung sind Sie in der Lage,

- im Unternehmenskontext verschiedene Controllinginstrumente zu konzipieren und anzuwenden,
- betriebswirtschaftliche Zusammenhänge zu erkennen, zu analysieren und darauf aufbauend betriebswirtschaftliche Entscheidungen zu treffen.

Target Groups:
Studierende der Bachelorstufe

Module Financial Analysis and Valuation (L)
03SM22BO0149 / Course

Description:

General description:
This is a semester-long course that offers an introduction to corporate financial analysis and valuation at the undergraduate level.

ECTS: 3

Notes:
The course is held onsite.

Learning Outcome:
Students will develop an understanding of ratio analysis, financial risk analysis, fraud prediction, discounted cash flow (DCF) valuation, multiples-based valuation, the residual income model, forecasting, and the cost of capital.

Target Groups:
Bachelor students.

Languages of Instruction:
English

Course Materials:	Course material will be provided on OLAT.
Merkmale:	Target Group: Suitable for English Speakers
Responsible instructor:	Thomas Rauter

Requirements:

Prerequisites:	The course is intended for Business Administration students. Students should have taken an introductory or intermediate financial accounting course at the University of Zurich or an equivalent course elsewhere. In addition, basic familiarity with corporate finance is recommended.
Prior Knowledge:	The course is designed for students with a basic understanding of corporate finance and a solid foundation in accounting.
Assessment:	The examination for this module will take place on site and will consist of one final written exam (pen and paper). The exam is scheduled for Tuesday, June 2, 2026, from 12:15 to 13:45 p.m. (90 minutes).

Module Seminar: Advanced Human-Centered Artificial Intelligence (MSc)
03SM22MIS106 / Seminar

Description:

General description:
This seminar will explore research in Human-Centered Artificial Intelligence. Students will learn about the challenges in developing human-centric, ethical, and responsible artificial intelligence systems, and the design and research methods to address them. Students will engage with both seminal and forefront research articles through role-playing as peer reviewers, hackers, researchers, practitioners, and future archeologists.

ECTS: 3

Notes:
The duration of the last two sessions are longer.
For this course, you will be asked to read research papers, actively participate in the online and in-class discussions.
This seminar is held on-site, and the complete attendance of all slots-except of extenuating circumstances-is required to pass the course.
The allocation of students to this seminar will be done through the department via the new module booking tool. If there is a shortage of seats, we will give preference to students that are majoring in informatics and have not yet attended a seminar and are already far in their studies. Please note that we cannot guarantee a spot.
More information on the process can be found on our website: https://www.ifi.uzh.ch/en/studies/seminar.html.
Application for this seminar is via the module booking tool: https://studentservices.uzh.ch/uzh/launchpad

Learning Outcome:
At the end of this course, students should be able to:
1. understand ethical considerations and methods for incorporating human perspectives in AI systems and technologies.
2. evaluate the human-centered aspects of AI technologies.
3. explain methods to study HCI in AI-powered systems, formulate sound and valid arguments in written form, and orally prepare and orally present and discuss scientific work

Module Growth and Development of China (S)
03SM22MO0266 / Seminar

Description:

General description:
This course will introduce some basic economic growth and development theories and use the theoretical framework to quantitatively examine economic growth and development over time and across space. The topics covered will include basic facts about economic growth and development, structural change, factor misallocation, trade, migration, institutional change, aggregate productivity and income inequality. Throughout the course, the growth and development of the Chinese economy will be used as an important case study

ECTS: 3

Notes:
The seminar takes place at SOF-E-09. Attendance is mandatory at all sessions.
This seminar is limited to 20 participants and requires an application. Allocation is handled via the module booking tool.
If demand exceeds capacity, priority is given to Economics majors.
Important: Seminar booking periods differ from regular lecture module booking periods.
More information on the process can be found on our website: https://www.econ.uzh.ch/en/study/undergraduate/ma/seminar.html

Application for this seminar is the module booking tool:https://studentservices.uzh.ch/uzh/launchpad

Learning Outcome:
- Understanding the basic theory of economic growth and development
- Familiar with data sources useful for analysis of economic growth and development
- Familiar with basic facts about economic growth and development
- Better understanding of China's economic growth and development
- Being able to use theory and quantitative methods to examine policy issues related to economic growth and development for China and other developing countries

Module Probability Theory (L)
03SM22MO0268 / Course

Description:

General description:
This is a graduate-level course in probability theory requiring previous exposure to a first course in real analysis, but not measure theory. We will cover the measure-theoretic underpinnings of probability spaces and random variables, the use of characteristic function inversion, more general random variables suitable for modeling financial asset returns, and non-trivial discrete random variables for modeling runs and occupancy distributions.

ECTS: 6

Learning Outcome:
The material covered is essential for doing graduate level econometrics, as well as mathematical finance and financial engineering, as well as graduate level machine learning.

Target Groups:
Masters students in Data Science, Economics, and Finance

Languages of Instruction:
English

Course Materials:	We will follow my set of notes, namely sections 9.1 and 9.2, with the link to the pdf file: https://u.pcloud.link/publink/show?code=XZ9CRJ0Zb8zoIpXjhLVQzYC1tEE9GJ2IxH7V
Merkmale:	Target Group: Suitable for English Speakers
Responsible instructor:	Marc Paolella

Requirements:

Prerequisites:	Course Real Analysis I
Prior Knowledge:	In addition to requiring a first course in real analysis, a prior exposure to basic (bachelor level) probability theory is useful, but not formally necessary.
Assessment:	Final written exam 26.05.2026 10:15-12:00
Grading Scale:	1-6 Quarter Grades Given

Module Analytics in Mobility (S)
03SM22MO0269 / Seminar

Description:

General description:
This course provides an overview of the fundamental methods in descriptive, predictive and prescriptive analytics as well as their application to managerial problems in urban mobility. The first set of classes are lectures providing a general introduction and an overview of potential topics. The latter set of classes are student presentations discussing recent academic publications in the field.

ECTS: 3

Notes:
The seminar is limited to a maximum of 20 students. To apply, please send a short motivation letter and a current Leistungsausweis to uta.mohring@business.uzh.ch by January 15th. Later applications might be considered if there are empty slots available.

Learning Outcome:
Students are able to describe and explain fundamental methods of descriptive, pre-dictive and prescriptive analytics.
Students are able to discuss and evaluate the benefits and limitations of analytics to control, optimize, and redesign urban mobility.

Module Stochastic Models for Production Management (L+E)
03SM22MO0270 / Lecture with Practical Exercises

Description:

General description:
This course provides an introduction into production management and applies models from queueing theory to solve managerial problems in production management.

ECTS: 3

Notes:
The module takes place on-site.

Learning Outcome:
Students are able to describe and explain the fundamental concepts of production management and the types of variability in production.
Students are able to formalize and analyze production management problems using queueing models and queueing networks.
Students are able to apply queueing theory to analyze, discuss, and evaluate the interplay of variability and key performance indicators in various production settings and design measures for variability reduction.

Module fMRI Analysis (L)
03SMDOEC1252 / Course

Description:

General description:
This course covers the planning and subsequent analysis of functional magnetic resonance imaging (fMRI) data. Students will learn how to

1. evaluate and select fMRI acquisition sequences that are best suited to their experimental design,
2. use fMRI prep to preprocess fMRI data prior to statistical analysis,
3. conduct univariate, multivariate, and functional connectivity analyses in Python.

ECTS: 3

Notes:
Venue: BLU-003
MSc students may also take the course with prior approval.

Learning Outcome:
Students will be able to independently conduct state-of-the-art statistical analyses on fMRI data that are suitable for publication in academic journals.

Target Groups:
PhD students. MSc students may also take the course with prior approval.

Languages of Instruction:
English

Course Materials:	Python code will be provided.
Merkmale:	Target Group: Suitable for English Speakers
Responsible instructor:	Todd Anthony Hare

Requirements:

Prerequisites:	None
Prior Knowledge:	Proficiency in using Python is advantageous. Proficiency in other high-level programing languages should suffice too, but the course is based on Python.
Assessment:	Grades will be based on problem sets (100%)
Grading Scale:	Pass/Fail
Repeatability:	Can be repeated once

Module PhD Course: Behavioral Development
03SMDOEC1253 / Course

Description:

General description:
This course will combine insights from development and behavioral economics to be able tackle policy-relevant questions in development. The objective of the course is to develop the skillset and training through in-depth discussions of recent innovative papers at the intersection of the two fields.

ECTS: 2

Notes:
Venue: Monday: tba.
Tuesday: SOF-E-09

Learning Outcome:
Goals of the course: (i) learn to read, understand and synthesize frontier papers (ii) learn how to combine theory and empirics to answer questions in behavioral development (iii) learn key research skills and develop your own research project proposal

Module Methodological Foundations PhD
06SMG94o104 / Module

Description:

General description:
This PhD course delivers the essential building blocks for rigorous quantitative training by blending foundational theory with practical application. Starting from first principles, we focus on the core concepts that drive modern data science, equipping you with both analytical depth and hands-on skills.

The course begins with a concise refresher on key mathematical statistics concepts, setting the stage for our first major topic: Maximum Likelihood Estimation (MLE). Here, you'll explore MLE theory in depth, discover how specific models are derived from general principles, and also see how these models are estimated in practice (hill-climbing algorithms). Building on this foundation, the second half of the course introduces Bayesian statistics, offering a balanced mix of conceptual understanding and real-world implementation.

By the end, you will not only master the foundational theories but also gain the ability to more easily advance your knowledge and understanding on your own as you are now familiar with many of the foundational elements in data science.

ECTS: 1

Notes:
Registration via e-mail to Dr. Doreen Spörer-Wagner (doreen.spoerer-wagner@phil.uzh.ch) not later than 17 January 2026.

Takes place Tuesdays 10.15-12.00 h, room BIN-0-B.11

Learning Outcome:
Master foundational concepts in mathematical statistics and apply them to analyze data with confidence.
Develop and optimize Maximum Likelihood Estimation (MLE) models.
Design and implement Bayesian statistical models, integrating conceptual understanding with hands-on computational skills.
Synthesize quantitative methods to address complex research challenges, demonstrating both analytical rigor and practical problem-solving.

Module Crafting your Writing Process: PhD Writing Workshop for Qualitative Researchers
06SMG90o108 / Module

Description:

General description:
Writing is a process-just like fieldwork. How might creativity help us rethink that process? This two-day workshop supports PhD candidates in the qualitative social sciences in developing a productive, sustainable, and more enjoyable writing practice. It offers a space for reflection and exchange about the challenges of thesis writing, including organizational hurdles and emotional barriers. Through research-based inputs and practical exercises inspired by creative writing, participants will explore their individual writing processes and experiment with creative strategies for different writing stages.
Group discussions, hands-on exercises based on participants' own fieldnotes or interview transcripts, and feedback sessions will support deeper engagement with their projects. The aim is to help participants find strategies that work for them, avoid common pitfalls in thesis writing, and move forward with confidence.

ECTS: 1

Notes:
Offered as part of the complementary methodological training for PhD candidates in the Social Sciences.

Registration via e-mail to Dr.
1,
2026.

Learning Outcome:
- Know about different writing strategies and be able to apply them for different tasks
- Start exploring one's own writing process in order to be more efficient (with or without AI tools)
- Know common pitfalls and writing difficulties in thesis writing and how to overcome them

Module Introduction to Probabilistic Programming Languages
06SM274o702 / Module

Description:

General description:
This course offers an introduction to probabilistic programming languages for modeling and inference in statistical and machine learning contexts. Students will explore the principles behind PPLs, with a particular focus on Stan, a state-of-the-art platform for Bayesian modeling. Using RStan, the R interface to Stan, participants will learn to specify, implement, and analyze the output of probabilistic models effectively.

The course will cover key concepts in probability theory, computational modeling, and statistical inference, building a strong foundation for understanding how probabilistic programming languages automate and enhance statistical analysis. By the end of the course, participants will be able to write and apply probabilistic models to address diverse topics related to evolutionary language science.

Key Topics Include:
Overview of probabilistic programming and its applications.
Core concepts of Bayesian statistics and modeling.
Practical implementation of models in Stan using RStan.
Debugging, validating, and interpreting probabilistic models.

ECTS: 3

Learning Outcome:
Gain proficiency in the Stan probabilistic programming language (PPL), focusing on its R interface, RStan.

Module Masterclass: Cultures of Crisis with Prof. Dr. Fatima Naqvi
06SM360o505 / Module

Description:

General description:
This seminar looks at European works dealing with various crises in the post-war period. The aftereffects of fascism, the rise of domestic and international terrorism (in the 1960s and
1970s as well as after
9/11), nuclear proliferation, the vast migrations of peoples, an increase in precarity, racism, and populism, the critique of capitalism, and the degradation of the environment-all of these crises are represented in literary texts and films created during the social ferment of the 1960s and afterward. These works find unique ways to address them, not only on a thematic but also on a stylistic level.
Some of the questions that will guide our inquiry are: How does a 'crisis mode' come to inflect the way in which problems are perceived and represented? When does violence seem like a legitimate answer to political, economic, and social pressures or the legacies of fascism and colonialism? Where and how do environmental issues come to the fore in an increasingly globalized Europe? How do literature and film depict today's multicultural societies in conflict? How do gender issues inflect the precarious economic conditions that are represented? Does the rise of digital technology inflect the way in which films portray history and memory in an era determined by "presentism" and the immediacy of the 'crisis mode'? Finally: does therhetoric about ongoing crises hide some of the problems it seeks to shed light on?
This course seeks to define key words of cultural study such as crisis, public sphere, populism, precarity, neoliberalism, Anthropocene. It also seeks to give students insight into central concepts of film and literary analysis. We take our visual case studies largely from Germany, Austria, France, and Italy. Films by Wolfgang Staudte, Alain Resnais, Alexander Kluge, Jean-Marie Straub, Volker Schlöndorff, Chris Marker, Werner Herzog, Rainer Werner Fassbinder, Harun Farocki, Michael Haneke, Christian Petzold, Jessica Hausner, Nikolaus Geyrhalter, Julian Radlmaier, Hubert Sauper, Sudabeh Mortezai, Ruth Beckermann, may serve as starting points for discussion. Literature may include Thomas Bernhard, Peter Handke, Uwe Johnson, Ingeborg Bachmann, Christa Wolf, F.C. Delius, Clemens Setz among others.

ECTS: 3

Learning Outcome:
Die Studierenden verfügen über vertiefte Kenntnisse in einem spezifischen Teilgebiet der Neueren deutschen Literaturwissenschaft.
Basierend auf dem aktuellen Stand der Forschung können sie eigene literaturgeschichtliche und -wissenschaftliche Fragestellungen bearbeiten und/oder in einem praxisbezogenen Zusammenhang darstellen.

Im Forschungskolloquium Neuere deutsche Literaturwissenschaft ist jede Person willkommen, die ein ausgeprägtes Interesse an historischer und theoretischer Grundlagenforschung hat. Ein solches Kolloquium ist eine Veranstaltung, in der Doktorierende ihre eigenen Projekte auf verschiedenen Stufen der Bewältigung vorstellen: Gliederung, Exposé, Kapitel (Entwürfe sowie fortgeschrittene Versionen); dafür stehen - je nach angemeldeten Projekten - ein oder mehrere Sitzungen zur Verfügung. In der exemplarischen Behandlung der verschiedenen Projekte soll der Diskurs der Neueren deutschen Literaturwissenschaft und ihres anspruchsvollen theoretischen Spektrums eingeübt werden. Das Kolloquium ist eine Veranstaltung, in der alle Beteiligtenvoneinander lernen und sich miteinander weiterentwickeln.

Das Modul fördert vertieftes Fachwissen in einem ausgewählten Forschungsfeld. Es vermittelt die Kompetenz, zu einem ausgewählten Thema Fragestellungen aus Sicht der Politikwissenschaft zu entwickeln und zu analysieren. Im Zentrum des Seminars stehen die politikwissenschaftliche und normative Analyse, das trennscharfe Analysieren der Begriffe in ihrer Anwendung auf empirische Studien und das Begründen politischer Sachverhalte. Die unterschiedlichen Themen werden theoretisch und empirisch vertieft.

ECTS: 6

Notes:
This seminar starts at 8:30. For further information, please check the syllabus.

Learning Outcome:
Fachkompetenzen: Verortung von Argumenten und empirischen Studien in den relevanten wissenschaftlichen Debatten zu einem ausgewählten Thema; Methodenkompetenzen: wissenschaftliches Schreiben und Argumentieren; Verfassen eines schriftlichen Beitrags (Policy Paper, wissenschaftliche Abhandlung, etc.) Selbstkompetenzen: Definition eigener inhaltlicher Schwerpunkte, Selbsteinschätzung, Planungsfähigkeit.

Module Research Ethics
06SMG70o111 / Module

Description:

General description:
This workshop will be structured in two parts. In the first one, the aim will be to introduce the main ethical principles in conducting research with human participants. Topics such as the social value of science, informed consent, the selection of participants, working with vulnerable persons and communities, legal bases and ethics codes, will be reviewed. In the second part, we will explore research integrity, and why it is essential to produce research that is not only ethical, but also reliable and trustworthy. We will discuss the main ethical principles of research integrity and topics like scientific fraud and questionable research practices, authorship and credits, conflicts of interest, and supervision.

Module Sample Size Planning in Psychology
06SMG70o116 / Module

Description:

General description:
This course give an introduction to the fundamental concepts of power analysis and sample size planning in the context of psychology. After a brief review of the theoretical foundations, we discuss some software packages in R that allow sample size estimation for a wide range of statistical models. Although some of these methods are based on simulation, the class does only require basic knowledge of R at its functions, comparable to that of a Master student of Psychology.

Module Practices of cultural analysis
06SM380o802 / Module

Description:

General description:
In diesem Modul geht es darum, anhand von wechselnden Seminarthemen in die Praktiken der Kulturanalyse einzuführen und diese zu erproben. Zum einen stehen die verschiedenen theoretischen Umgangsweisen mit Kultur im Blick (Lesen, Schreiben, Reflektieren, Kritisieren, Problematisieren, Positionieren, Debattieren etc.). Zum anderen gilt es, diese Praktiken im Umgang mit dem kulturellen Material selbst auf ihre Tauglichkeit und auf ihre aktuelle Verwendbarkeit hin zu überprüfen. Dies geschieht nicht zuletzt anhand von interdisziplinären Auseinandersetzungen sowie durch die kritischen Gegenüberstellung der verschiedenen kulturanalytischen Praktiken.

ECTS: 9

Learning Outcome:
Die Studierenden lernen und erproben spezifische Praktiken der Kulturanalyse, um eigenständig und in theoretischer wie in interdisziplinärer Weise denkend, sprechend und schreibend mit Kultur umgehen zu können.

Module Creative Writing II. Novel & Life
06SM360o014 / Module

Description:

General description:
An den flimmernden Orten, an denen Literaturwissenschaft studiert wird, entsteht nicht selten auch das Interesse, sich selbst im Schreiben eines Romans zu versuchen. Diesem Interesse - ob im konkreten Vorhaben, mitten im Schreibprozess befindlich oder im intensiven Überarbeitungswunsch (...) - will sich dieses praxisnahe Seminar widmen, um den Schreibprozess individuell zu fördern, das Schreiben überhaupt auf den Weg zu bringen, zu reflektieren, und dabei zudem eine Sensibilisierung für das Literarische allgemein und somit auch das Lesen und Erforschen von Literatur zu unternehmen. Nicht zuletzt geht es so um die Erkundung der eigenen Kreativität.

In je zwei Blöcken á zwei Tage stehen die Texte der Studierenden im Zentrum, aus denen eine Textprobe gelesen und besprochen wird. Die Texte der Studierenden, noch lose skizziert oder bereits weit fortgeschritten, werden dann im Sinne eines kollektiven Lektorats konstruktiv diskutiert. Parallel stehen Aspekte hinsichtlich der Arbeit um den Roman herum zur Debatte, etwa das Schreiben in der Recherche, das Organisieren und Annähern durch die Arbeit im Notizbuch oder in einer Materialsammlung, das Finden von Stoffen, Figuren, Atmosphären, Erzählstrukturen - wobei auch Elemente wie das Exposé, der Klappentext oder etwaige Ideen zu Titel und zur Gestaltung des Umschlags in experimentellen Übungen erforscht und besprochen werden.

Vorbereitend zu den Sitzungen werden von allen Studierenden Textauszüge und Exposés (s.u.) gelesen und dann im Kurs besprochen, wobei den Verfasserinnen selbst überlassen wird, was sie von diesen Impulsen aufnehmen. Bewertet wird dabei die Teilnahme am Kurs und nicht der jeweils vorliegende Text. Ziel ist es, im Modus des kollektiven Lektorats den Texten fernab einer Bewertungsskala Angebote zu schaffen, die der literarischen Idee, dem Schreiben und Textverständnis weiterhelfen.

ECTS: 3

Notes:
Der Kurs wird angeboten von Hendrik Otremba; die vorrausgehende Teilnahme an seinem Kurs 'Kreatives Schreiben' wird empfohlen.

Voraussetzung für die Teilnahme ist die Abgabe eines Exposés und einer Textprobe, beides max. eine Din A4-Seite lang als PDF (Times New Roman, 12pt, Zeilenabstand 1.15, Blocksatz), an hendrik.otremba@uzh.ch; Betreff: Roman & Leben 2026 (bitte Fristen des Bewerbungsmoduls beachten).

Für Exposé und Textprobe gilt: Auch eine lose Skizze oder erste Gehversuche sind ausreichend, es muss kein ausgegorener literarischer Text eingereicht werden. Wichtig ist nur, dass eine Vorstellung Ihres Vorhabens vermittelt wird und Sie Ambitionen hegen, daran weiterzuarbeiten. Sollten diesbezüglich Fragen bestehen, melden Sie sich gern per Mail bei mir.

Learning Outcome:
Am Ende des Seminars liegt Textmaterial vor, das neue Erfahrungen dokumentiert
- und gleichzeitig Rückschlüsse auf das eigene Schreiben und die literarische Praxis an sich erlaubt. Der Text selbst kann dabei letztlich alles Mögliche bedeuten: Er kann das bloße Ergebnis einer angeleiteten kreativen Schreibübung sein, kann Auftakt oder Element eines Romans werden, ein Langgedicht entwerfen, eine Kurzgeschichte umfassen. Er kann aber auch Vehikel sein, sich durch das Kreative Schreiben neue Perspektiven und Horizonte zu erschließen, um das Denken und Schreiben in neue Bahnen zu lenken, Routinen zu hinterfragen, Blockaden zu überwinden (oder gleich zu verhindern) und den eigenen Stil zu erweitern. So kann die Schreibpraxis in diesem Kurs zudem Impulse liefern für das Wissenschaftliche Arbeiten, für essayistische oder journalistische Texte, für musikalische Kontexte oder ein dramaturgisches, szenisches Schreiben (etwa im Bereich Theater). Ein Mehrwert des Seminars also besteht in der Möglichkeit des Transfers der erschlossenen Ansätze, der gemachten Erfahrungen und ausgebildeten Verfahren.

Module Lecture Series in Social Anthropology Spring Semester 2026
06SM721o513 / Module

Description:

General description:
The Lecture Series in Social Anthropology (Ethnokolloquium) is at once a series of lectures and a module for students at Bachelor's and Master's level. Participation in our Lecture Series offers insights into current socio-anthropological research, facilitates exchange with professionals about their research, and may help to extend your academic network.

Five of the sessions consist of public lectures with an invited guest speaker. Guest speakers may be either external academics or members of the ISEK-Social Anthropology. These sessions are composed as a 45'-long lecture, followed by a lively discussion between guest speaker and members of ISEK, including students. Afterwards, we usually go for a drink or a meal in the neighbourhood. Everyone pays themselves; students are welcome!
In addition, there are five sessions to prepare the lectures through in-depth text discussions with departmental academic staff.

In four sessions students meet their teacher (i.e. co-ordinator of the lecture series) and participate in additional events to further a culture of exchange between all members of the ISEK such as Semester Welcome, Ethno-Forum, Talk at the Library, or an exchange about teaching.

ECTS: 3

Learning Outcome:
Students are able to discuss and present their findings on a variety of anthropologically relevant topics.
Students are confident in introducing a guest speaker and in formulating questions related to their research project.
Students are able to produce a publishable product about the material presented by a lecturer in one of the following formats: written essay, podcast, interview or blog post.

Languages of Instruction:
Englisch

Merkmale:	Target Group: Suitable for English Speakers
Responsible instructor:	Juliane Neuhaus

Requirements:

Prerequisites:	It is recommended that all modules of the introduction to Social Anthropology be taken first.
Assessment:	Portfolio: active participation in class (20%), presentation (20%) and written works (podcast/interview/blog, 25%) and essay (25%). All elements are completed during semester, except the essay that is due in June. All elements of the portfolio must be completed. If an element is not completed, the entire portfolio is considered not completed and the module is therefore failed. ---

Module Retrieval-Augmented Generation
06SM521o504 / Module

Description:

General description:
This module introduces Retrieval-Augmented Generation (RAG), a generative AI paradigm that integrates information retrieval (IR) with large language models (LLM) to produce context-aware, knowledge-grounded text generation. Students will gain both conceptual understanding and practical skills for building and deploying their own RAG systems.

ECTS: 6

Notes:
This is a Master-level advanced lecture. Pre-knowledge in machine learning and computational linguistics is needed.

Learning Outcome:
After successful completion of this module, students will be able to:

- Explain the key principles of retrieval-augmented generation and its role in generative AI systems.
- Understand and apply core methods in information retrieval (indexing, embedding, ranking) and language modeling (prompting, in-context learning, efficient decoding).
- Design and implement a complete RAG pipeline, including front-end design, back-end retrieval and generation, and system integration.
- Deploy and evaluate RAG applications using modern frameworks (e.g., Hugging Face, FAISS, FastAPI, React.js).
- Collaborate effectively in small teams to plan, prototype, and beta-test an AI-based information system.

Module The neural foundation of speech
06SM521o006 / Module

Description:

General description:
This lecture series provides an introduction into the fundamentals of speech communication and its neurobiological foundation. It introduces the most important theories and research methods on how the brain processes speech.

ECTS: 3

Learning Outcome:
(a) General understanding of the speech and language network in the brain and its relationship with other neural systems (e.g. cognition)
(b) Understanding of the most important processes underlying speech processing in the brain
(c) Knowledge of research methods that allow to study speech processing in the brain

Module M3L 522 Quantum Machine Learning
07SMM3L522 / Lecture with Practical Exercises

Description:

General description:
Quantum computing is supposed to solve problems that were previously intractable with potential applications in machine learning, optimization, or drug design. Large companies such as Google, Microsoft or IBM are in the race to build the most powerful quantum computers. However, most questions concerning the potential of machine learning on quantum computers are still unanswered. Typical open questions are: How do we design and implement machine learning algorithms on a quantum computer? How well do current quantum machine learning algorithms work in practice? How do they compare with classical counterparts? This seminar will tackle some of these open questions and will give the students a hands-on experience in quantum machine learning.

Content:

- Introduction to quantum computing (qubits, superposition, entanglement)
- Quantum gates and quantum circuits – the building blocks of quantum algorithms
- Quantum algorithms (Shor's and Gover's algorithm)
- Quantum machine learning
Hybrid quantum classical machine learning algorithms

Course structure:

- Part I – Lectures and Exercises:
The first part of the seminar consists of lectures and exercises to get practical experience with quantum computing in general and quantum machine learning in particular.

- Part II – Paper Session:
In the second part, the students will read and present current papers on quantum machine learning.

- Part III - Project:
In the final part, the students will perform a hands-on project and apply state-of-the-art quantum machine learning algorithms to particular problems. The goal is to demonstrate the advantage of quantum machine learning over classical counterparts and to discuss limitations of current approaches.

ECTS: 3

Notes:
In the second part of the semester some of the lecture dates will be dedicated to independent project work.

Target Groups:
Master and PhD students in Computer Science, Data Science, Computational Science or related fields.

Module Writing Research Articles in Psychology
06SMG70o101 / Module

Description:

General description:
This course provides a practical introduction to the process of writing research articles (RA) in psychology. Topics addressed include the writing and submission processes, structure and components of a psychology RA, text organization and the reader, English grammar in a psychology RA, and editing and revising papers prior to publication. The course incorporates inputs from applied linguistics, collaborative text analyses and writing tasks, and peer-feedback exercises.

ECTS: 2

Notes:
This module is designed for PhD students who are beginning to write their own research articles.

Participants complete five short writing tasks, which may later be incorporated into a paper, during the course. They receive feedback on these and compile five second drafts of these assignments as a writing portfolio. This portfolio is graded at the end of the course.

Module M3L 322 Optimization Algorithms for Large-scale Distributed Machine Learning
07SMM3L322 / Lecture with Practical Exercises

Description:

General description:
This course explores state-of-the-art algorithms for large-scale machine learning and distributed optimization. With the growing size of training data and AI models, it is often infeasible to train models on a single machine or GPU. As a result, designing efficient distributed machine learning algorithms has become crucial.

 In this course, we will study a range of optimization algorithms for large-scale machine learning, analyze their theoretical convergence properties, and discuss techniques to make them computationally efficient without compromising convergence speed.

The course will study
1. the fundamentals of optimization theory and analysis of machine learning algorithms,
2. distributed stochastic gradient descent (SGD) with an emphasis on mini-batch SGD,
3. communication efficiency techniques, such as communication compression, and decentralized communication.
4. federated learning, introducing the federated averaging algorithm.
5. advanced optimizers, such as Adam and momentum-SGD

ECTS: 3

Notes:
The module only takes place in the 2nd half of the semester after the spring break.

Mathematical Fields: Numerics and Stochastics

Learning Outcome:
Understanding the basic concepts of designing efficient algorithms for distributed learning, and give an overview of key algorithms for distributed learning.

Module Writing the Doctoral Thesis without Pain
06SMG31o102 / Module

Description:

General description:
Dieser Kurs richtet sich an Doktorierende, die sich vertieft mit ihrer Schreibpraxis auseinandersetzen und neue Textbausteine für ihre Doktorarbeit produzieren wollen.
An sieben Präsenztagen beschäftigen wir uns mit folgenden Themen:

- Schreibtyp bestimmen
- Arbeitspraxis evaluieren
- SMARTE Ziele setzen
- Ressourcen-Management
- Umgang mit den «Inneren Kritiker*innen»
- Motivation

Teilnehmende lernen dasPotenzial von moderierten Schreibgruppen und Text-Feedback-Gruppen kennen.
Vorausgesetzt wird die Teilnahme an den praxisorientierten Präsenztagen und die aktive Beteiligung im Rahmen von Text-Feedback-Gruppen. Der Leistungsnachweis umfasst die schriftliche Dokumentation des eigenen Lernprozesses im Zusammenhang mit der eigenen wissenschaftlichen Schreibpraxis.

ECTS: 2

Notes:
Unterrichtssprache ist Deutsch. Wer in anderen Sprachen schreibt und Deutsch versteht, kann gern teilnehmen.

Um die Kursteilnahme anzufragen, melden Sie sich bitte mit Ihrem Namen und Matrikelnummer per E-Mail bis 15. Januar 2026 bei miriam.volmert@phil.uzh.ch (begrenzte Teilnehmendenzahl, first come, first served).

Learning Outcome:
Die Teilnehmenden kennen ihren Schreibtypen und wissen, welche Massnahmen ihre Produktivität fördern.
Sie pflegen Schreib- und Arbeitspartnerschaften und sind motiviert(er), an ihrer Dissertation weiterzuarbeiten.
Die Teilnehmenden kennen diverse Angebote der UZH und wissen, wo sie sich Hilfe holen können.
Sie begreifen das Abfassen ihrer Qualifikationsschrift als Lernprozess.
Das Bewusstsein für den eigenen Schreibprozess wird gefördert.

Module Dorothy Parker's sharp tongue - on New York, Jazz and working women
06SM160o508 / Module

Description:

General description:
This online seminar is taught in English; therefore, students should be aware that excellent knowledge of English is required to keep up with the reading assignments.
New York in the golden twenties was a cool place: we shall delve into the world of journalism, literature, art and the intellectuals and artists who were creating the culture, pulse and reputation of what one could call American modernity.
Dorothy Parker, née Rothschild, was a journalist, writer and poetess, as famous for her elegant essays as infamous for her acerbic literary criticism and witty poems.
This seminar addresses students of art history, modern American/Western history, American literature and gender studies. What did the life of an American intellectual look like in the 1920s and how political were these intellectuals in the interwar period? Did American women enjoy more liberty in society than European women? Those and more questions shall be addressed.

ECTS: 6

Notes:
Studierende der Philosophie, die eine Seminararbeit verfassen wollen, buchen nach Absprache mit der Dozentin oder dem Dozenten ein entsprechendes Wahlpflichtmodul ohne Veranstaltung, in dessen Rahmen die Arbeit verfasst wird (vergl. programmspezifische Wegleitung): «Politische Philosophie (Vertiefung)».

Learning Outcome:

06SMG33o001 / Module

Description:

General description:
Im Forschungskolloquium stellen einerseits Doktorierende ihre Projekte zur Diskussion. Andererseits werden internationale Wissenschaftler*innen, die im Themenbereich der Forschungsschwerpunkte des Seminars für Filmwissenschaft arbeiten, zu Gastreferaten eingeladen. Am Forschungskolloquium sind auch MA-Studierende im Hauptfach herzlich eingeladen teilzunehmen (ohne ETCS Credits).

ECTS: 2

Learning Outcome:
Befähigung der Doktorierenden zur methodologisch reflektierten Präsentation und Verteidigung der eigenen Forschungsergebnisse sowie zur kritischen Positionierung in der internationalen Forschungsdiskussion.

Module Introduction to Programming in Python
06SMG70o110 / Module

Description:

General description:
Python is one of the most widely used programming languages and has become a standard in scientific computing thanks to its flexibility and ease of use. This course aims to introduce students to programming with Python from scratch so that they can start writing simple programs to automate tasks and perform data analyses. No previous programming experience is required.

The main focus will be on scientific applications and the sessions will be mostly hands-on. Students will be encouraged to work on problems which are relevant to them, with support from the instructor.

The course will cover:

- how to create and run programs
- variables and data structures
- fundamental coding instructions
- defining functions
- reading and writing files
- working with packages
- working with tabular data
- basic visualization
- coding best practices

Module 4-Week Writing Marathon for Doctoral Students
06SMG00o104 / Module

Description:

General description:
Der begleitete Schreibmarathon bündelt den Fokus auf das "intensive Vorankommen" mit dem Schreibprojekt. An vier Montagen finden von
10:15 bis
12:00 Uhr Präsenzveranstaltungen statt. Es werden SMARTe Ziele gesetzt und Strategien besprochen, wie diese erreicht werden können. Während der Präsenztage machen wir Schreibübungen und holen Feedback zu unseren Zielen und Plänen ein. Am Freitag findet jeweils zwischen
19:00 und
20:00 Uhr ein Wochenrückblick via Teams statt. Bis Samstagmittag ist jeweils eine Reflexion von
200 bis
500 Wörtern abzugeben.

Während des Schreibmarathons wird ein «Schreibnest» eingerichtet, das täglich von 8:00 bis
18:00 Uhr für die Teilnehmenden des Schreibmarathons reserviert ist und von diesen optional zum Schreiben besucht werden kann.

Gemeinsame Abschlussfeier (optional): Sonntag,
28. Juni,
14 Uhr im Ziegel oh Lac

ECTS: 2

Notes:
Unterrichtssprache ist Deutsch (wer in anderen Sprachen schreibt und Deutsch versteht, kann gern teilnehmen).

Um die Teilnahme anzufragen, kontaktieren Sie bitte bis
30. April
2026 unter Nennung Ihrer Matrikelnummer Miriam Volmert (begrenzte Teilnehmendenzahl, first come, first served): miriam.volmert@phil.uzh.ch

Learning Outcome:
Du bringst dein Schreibprojekt intensiv voran. Du baust einen gesunden Arbeitsrhythmus auf und lernst mehr über dich und deine Möglichkeiten. Am Ende des Marathons kennst du dich besser.

Languages of Instruction:

Module Qualitative and Ethnographic Data Analysis with MAXQDA
06SMG90o109 / Module

Description:

General description:
This workshop will provide PhD researchers with a hands-on introduction to qualitative and ethnographic data analysis with the software MAXQDA. While the software can be used for a wide range of data analysis methods (e.g. qualitative content analysis and mixed methods), this workshop will focus specifically on exploratory and inductive coding styles based on Grounded Theory Methodology (GTM) and tailored for ethnographic research. Thus, the workshop offers PhD researchers a comprehensive overview of the coding process for ethnographic projects, while also providing valuable insights for those using other methods and wish to enhance their research designs through exploratory and inductive coding. The workshop includes a two-hour online preparation session, preparatory assignments and two full days of on-site workshops.

Module Structural change, identities, and polarization in globalized knowledge societies
06SM615o545 / Module

Description:

General description:
Das Modul fördert vertieftes Fachwissen in einem ausgewählten Forschungsfeld. Es vermittelt die Kompetenz, zu einem ausgewählten Thema Fragestellungen aus Sicht der Politikwissenschaft zu entwickeln und zu analysieren. Im Zentrum des Seminars stehen die politikwissenschaftliche und normative Analyse, das trennscharfe Analysieren der Begriffe in ihrer Anwendung auf empirische Studien und das Begründen politischer Sachverhalte. Die unterschiedlichen Themen werden theoretisch und empirisch vertieft.

ECTS: 6

Learning Outcome:
Fachkompetenzen: Verortung von Argumenten und empirischen Studien in den relevanten wissenschaftlichen Debatten zu einem ausgewählten Thema; Methodenkompetenzen: wissenschaftliches Schreiben und Argumentieren; Verfassen eines schriftlichen Beitrags (Policy Paper, wissenschaftliche Abhandlung, etc.) Selbstkompetenzen: Definition eigener inhaltlicher Schwerpunkte, Selbsteinschätzung, Planungsfähigkeit.

Module Brain, Language, Experiments
06SM272-613o / Module

Description:

General description:
To study the brain-language relationships a lot of different measurement techniques (electroencephaolgraphy, structural and functional neuroimaging, non-invasive neuromodulation, brain lesion mapping, functional near-infrared spectroscopy etc.) have meanwhile been established. The course is meant to theoretically introduce the various approaches. When possible hands on training will be included in the classes. The goal is to acquire a solid theoretical and practical knowledge about the pros and cons of the various techniques and to learn which imaging approach should be used to answer specific questions when running experimental studies in neurolinguistics.

Module Atelier Ost: Archive, Language, Resistance, Imagination. The Surveillance and Persecution of Communists and (.
06SM480o003 / Module

Description:

General description:
Im Frühjahr 2026 ist die ungarisch-schweizerische Schriftstellerin Melinda Nadj Abonji zu Gast auf der «Atelier Ost: Dozentur für Kulturschaffende aus Ost-, Ostmittel- und Südosteuropa», die das Slavische Seminar in Zusammenarbeit mit der Landis & Gyr Stiftung realisiert.
1968 in Becsej (Vojvodina, Serbien) geboren, kam Melinda Nadj Abonji Anfang der 1970er-Jahre mit ihrer Familie in die Schweiz. In Zürich, wo sie Germanistik und Geschichte studierte, lebt sie heute als Autorin und Musikerin. Für ihren Roman "Tauben fliegen auf" erhielt sie 2010 sowohl den Deutschen als auch den Schweizer Buchpreis. Im Rahmen des "Atelier Ost" begibt sich Melinda Nadj Abonji im Frühlingssemester 2026 gemeinsam mit den Studierenden ins Archiv auf "forensische Sprachanalyse". Ausgehend vom genauen Lesen und Analysieren historischer Quellen über die Bespitzelung von (jüdischen) Menschen vornehmlich aus Osteuropa im Zuge des ab 1917 in der Schweiz Fahrt aufnehmenden Anti-Kommunismus geht es um die Frage, wie sich aus Archivmaterial eigene literarische oder essayistische Texte entwickeln lassen. Melinda Nadj Abonji gewährt dabei Einblicke in ihr eigenes schriftstellerisches Schaffen, ihre Arbeit mit Quellen, Sprache und Text.

ECTS: 3

Learning Outcome:
Die Studierenden erhalten Einblick in schriftstellerische Arbeitsweisen und lernen, historische Quellen genau und kritisch zu lesen, sprachlich zu analysieren und daraus eigene literarische oder essayistische Texte zu entwickeln.

Module BIO 215 Evolution of Human Life History
07SMBIO215 / Course

Description:

General description:
This course examines the evolution of human development and reproduction through the lens of life history theory. We will begin by outlining the key components of mammalian and primate life histories and identifying the distinctive features of the human pattern, including prolonged childhood, delayed reproduction and extended lifespan. A central focus of the course will be on hominin fossil evidence: for each major hominin species, we will explore what is currently known about its life history profile and integrate this with archaeological and morphological evidence related to diet, behavior, and ecology. Special attention will be given to the role of cooperative breeding in shaping the human life history strategy and its deep connections to the evolution of our uniquely social cognition and complex cooperative behavior.

ECTS: 3

Learning Outcome:
By the end of the course, students will be able to:

- Describe the key elements of life history theory and compare life history traits across mammals, great apes, and humans
- Critically evaluate the evidence used to reconstruct life history profiles in extinct hominines, including dental development, skeletal growth, and other fossil indicators
- Integrate fossil, archaeological, and comparative data to infer patterns of diet, behavior, and morphology in extinct hominin species
- Explain how cooperative breeding and extended juvenile dependency are linked to the evolution of human sociality and cognition
- Assess major hypotheses about the evolution of the human life history strategy and evaluate them in light of empirical evidence
- Apply life history theory and comparative data to broader questions about human evolution and adaptive niche

Learning Outcome:
The overall objectives of this course are to understand how aid is allocated and whether it is effective in achieving its goals, as well as the potential economic and political unintended consequences of aid. From a methodological point of view, the objective is to understand the difficulties to capture these relationships empirically, and the solutions that have been found in the literature. After this course, students will be able to compare and to comment complex research papers, and to assess the quality of the different approaches, e.g. through a variety of robustness checks.

Module Managing AI- and Blockchain-based Services (S)
03SM22MO0271 / Seminar

Description:

General description:
Artificial intelligence (AI) and public blockchains are transforming the way we create value, organize work, and deliver digital services. From AI-powered applications and autonomous systems to blockchain-based financial and governance platforms, these technologies are reshaping how businesses and institutions operate.

This seminar examines how organizations can design, manage, and innovate services that build on AI and/or blockchain technologies. We discuss current developments in areas such as machine learning, generative AI, decentralized finance, and token-based ecosystems, considering their implications for business models, strategy, and society.

By the end of the seminar, participants will have the tools to understand, evaluate, and manage services that leverage emerging technologies like AI and public blockchain—skills that are increasingly essential in today's digital economy.

ECTS: 6

Notes:
- Apply until: December 31, 2025 via https://forms.gle/HvE1sEvnD8RwpCR29
- Notification of acceptance: by January 20, 2026.

Learning Outcome:
After the seminar, students understand …
•   the economic development and technological foundations of AI and public blockchain ecosystems (e.g., Bitcoin, Ethereum, Solana)
•   the potential of AI and blockchain technologies for service innovation and new business models
•   the competitive dynamics shaping AI- and blockchain-based industries
•   how these technologies may disrupt existing service sectors and transform organizational processes
•   how to identify and develop innovative business or startup ideas in the context of AI and blockchain technologies

Module HSF Competition Law Moot Court
02SM90MC8 / Seminar

Description:

General description:
The “HSF Competition Law Moot” is organized by King’s College London and offers students from across the world the opportunity to participate in the Herbert Smith Freehills Competition Law Moot dealing with a case in the field of competition law. Teams are invited to submit memoranda which will be marked by competition law academics and practitioners. The 12 teams with the highest marked memoranda will be invited to the oral rounds. The competition provides an excellent opportunity for students to practise and improve advocacy skills in front of a judging panel drawn from international competition law specialists.

ECTS: 12

Notes:
Participation in the Moot Court requires high engagement, availability and resilience

For further information and registration please go to the chair's website:

https://www.ius.uzh.ch/de/staff/professorships/alphabetical/heinemann/HSF-Competition-Law-Moot-Court-.html

This moot court counts as an elective module at master level (12 ECTS Credits).

Module Self-organized colloquium
06SM600o018 / Module

Description:

General description:
Im Rahmen dieses von Studierenden selbst organisierten Kolloquiums untersuchen wir das Konzept des Fortschritts aus historischer Perspektive. Im Zentrum steht die Frage, warum die Vorstellung "Früher war alles besser" immer wieder an Bedeutung gewinnt - und was dies über das jeweilige Verständnis von Geschichte und Fortschritt aussagt.
Ausgehend von historischen Beispielen untersuchen wir, wie sich im 19. Jahrhundert Fortschrittsoptimismus und Kulturkritik gegenseitig bedingten: Während die Industrialisierung als Zeichen menschlichen Fortschritts gefeiert wurde, beklagten zugleich viele den Verlust von Natur, Gemeinschaft und Tradition. Auch im 20. Jahrhundert prägte die Erfahrung von Krieg, technischer Zerstörung und Beschleunigung neue Skepsis gegenüber der Idee des Fortschritts. Wir diskutieren, wie diese Haltung bis in die Gegenwart reicht - in wissenschaftlichen oder politischen Diskursen, die mit Vergangenheitsbildern arbeiten. Ziel des Kolloquiums ist es, zu verstehen, wie historische Fortschritts- und Verfallserzählungen miteinander verflochten sind und welche gesellschaftlichen Bedürfnisse sie widerspiegeln. Durch gemeinsame Diskussionen, Lektüre und selbstorganisierte Projekte nähern wir uns der Frage, ob Fortschritt tatsächlich einen Verlust bedeutet - oder ob gerade die Auseinandersetzung mit Vergangenheitsnostalgie neue Perspektiven auf die Zukunft eröffnen kann.
Ziel des Kolloquiums ist es, durch gemeinsame Lektüre, Diskussion und selbstorganisierte Projekte ein tieferes Verständnis dafür zu entwickeln, wie historische Fortschrittsvorstellungen Gesellschaftsbilder, politische Handlungslogiken und Geschichtsschreibung selbst geprägt haben. Das Format bietet den Teilnehmenden die Möglichkeit, eigenständig Forschungsschwerpunkte zu wählen und aktiv zur inhaltlichen Gestaltung des Kolloquiums beizutragen.

06SM615o548 / Module

Description:

General description:
Das Modul fördert vertieftes Fachwissen in einem ausgewählten Forschungsfeld.
Es vermittelt die Kompetenz, zu einem ausgewählten Thema Fragestellungen aus Sicht der Politikwissenschaft zu entwickeln und zu analysieren. Im Zentrum des Seminars stehen die politikwissenschaftliche und normative Analyse, das trennscharfe Analysieren der Begriffe in ihrer Anwendung auf empirische Studien und das Begründen politischer Sachverhalte. Die unterschiedlichen Themen werden theoretisch und empirisch vertieft.

ECTS: 6

Learning Outcome:
Fachkompetenzen: Verortung von Argumenten und empirischen Studien in den relevanten wissenschaftlichen Debatten zu einem ausgewählten Thema; Methodenkompetenzen: wissenschaftliches Schreiben und Argumentieren; Verfassen eines schriftlichen Beitrags (Policy Paper, wissenschaftliche Abhandlung, etc.) Selbstkompetenzen: Definition eigener inhaltlicher Schwerpunkte, Selbsteinschätzung, Planungsfähigkeit.

Module Short Internship
06SM683o004 / Module

Description:

General description:
Das Feldpraktikum wird durch das Institut für Archäologie in Form von mindestens einwöchigen Kursen organisiert. Diese Einheiten finden im In- oder Ausland statt und führen die Studierenden an die Praxis der archäologischen Arbeit im Kontext interdisziplinärer Forschung heran. Aufgrund der begrenzten Teilnehmerzahl wird auf das Modul "Externes Berufspraktikum" als Alternative hingewiesen.

ECTS: 3

Notes:
Application:
Interested students should contact igor.medaric@uzh.ch
Information should include name, study program and a short motivation letter (2-3 sentences).

Learning Outcome:
Die Studierenden beherrschen die Methoden und praktische Anwendungen interdisziplinärer Feld- und Laborarbeit. Je nach Kampagne werden Grundlagen der Ausgrabung, der Prospektion im Feld und der Bauuntersuchung respektive Grundlagen der Museums- und Laborarbeit vermittelt. Die Studierenden kennen gängige Abläufe für Feld-, Museums-, und Laborprojekte und können diese umsetzen. Sie erlernen den Umgang mit Werkzeug, technischer Ausrüstung und Dokumentationsstandards. Die Studierenden erfassen mittels naturwissenschaftlicher Methoden wie der Geophysik oder Geodäsie archäologische Befunde. Sie sind mit den erforderlichen Schritten und Tools für die Vorbereitung, Durchführung und Auswertung des Projektes in Feld, Museum und Labor vertraut.

Module CAS Virtopsy Basic Course
04SM25VBC / Module

Description:

General description:
The CAS Forensic Imaging and Virtopsy provides theoretical knowledge and practical skills in forensic imaging, notably post-mortem CT, reporting cases, post-mortem angiography, post mortem MRI as well as surface scanning and 3D-photogrammetry, robot-guided biopsy, and clinical forensic imaging. It also relates new and visionary ideas.
Module 1: Virtopsy Basic Course (theoretical aspects)

ECTS: 2

Learning Outcome:
The major aim is to equip participants with in-depth theoretical and practical knowledge of indications, provision, diagnosis and assessment of a variety of imaging methods in postmortem radiology and forensic imaging.

Target Groups:
Students have a master's degree in medicine and certification as a specialist in forensic medicine or radiology. Persons with a bachelor ' s degree or with an equivalent qualification may be admitted to the program.

Module Everything Open Access?! Practices, Strategies, and Hurdles in Academic Publishing
06SMG33o101 / Module

Description:

General description:
Der Workshop strebt an, Nachwuchswissenschaftler*innen für die Thematik des wissenschaftlichen Publizierens in den Geisteswissenschaften im Allgemeinen und Open Access im Besonderen zu sensibilisieren. Ausgehend von den Erfahrungswerten und Fragen der Teilnehmenden aus ihren jeweiligen Disziplinen und Kontexten werden wir in verschiedenen thematischen Blöcken erarbeiten, welche Strategien, Formate, Prozesse und Unterstützungen für das Veröffentlichen wissenschaftlicher Beiträge auf nationaler und internationaler Ebene zur Verfügung stehen. Ziel des Workshops ist der Austausch mit anderen Doktorierenden aus der Fachbereichsgruppe und die Erarbeitung individueller Publikationsstrategien anstelle einer übergreifenden Universallösung.

Module PhD Research Colloquium Cultural Analysis
06SMG35o001 / Module

Description:

General description:
Das kulturanalytische Forschungskolloquium Doktorat bietet Promotionsstudierenden des Doktoratsfachs Kulturanalyse die Gelegenheit, Themen und Thesen des Dissertationsprojekts vor- und zur Diskussion zu stellen. Ergänzend werden Einblicke in aktuelle kulturanalytische Forschungstendenzen, gegenwärtige Debatten wie auch in den öffentlichen und wissenschaftlichen Diskurs über Kultur gewährt.

ECTS: 3

Learning Outcome:
Das Modul gibt den Doktorierenden die Möglichkeit, die Konzeption und Durchführung ihrer Forschungsarbeit zu präsentieren und diese mit ihren Kolleg*innen und Dozierenden zu diskutieren. Dabei werden auch aktuelle Positionen kulturanalytischer Forschung sowie über die Aktualität und Relevanz kulturanalytischer Forschung diskutiert.

Module An Introduction to Bayesian Analysis with R
06SMG80o114 / Module

Description:

General description:
In a broad range of scientific disciplines, Bayesian statistics are gaining popularity. Yet the basic training of most researchers only introduces the frequentist framework for statistical inference. This workshop aims to introduce Bayesian statistics in a practical way, laying a foundation for crucial concepts in the Bayesian realm.
Participants will be introduced to a workflow for Bayesian analyses in the open-source environment R. The starting point will be the linear model (aka regression model) and we can extend this to linear mixed models. The central piece of software will be the brms package in R, that bridges the typical R modelling language with Stan, which is a probabilistic programming language built to estimate models within the Bayesian framework. Given that a workflow in R will be introduced, it is advised that participants have some experience working with R. Moreover, packages will be used from the tidyverse (e.g., dplyr, ggplot2, ...). Therefore, we advise participants to acknowledge themselves with these packages.

Module Research with Qualitative Content Analysis: Basics, Practice, Software and AI
06SMG80o116 / Module

Description:

General description:
Qualitative Inhaltsanalyse ist ein Verfahren zur methodisch kontrollierten Auswertung qualitativer Daten wie Interviews, Dokumente und Reports. Im Workshop fokussieren wir die inhaltlich-strukturierende Form der qualitativen Inhaltsanalyse, die in der Forschungspraxis am häufigsten angewendet wird. Wir durchlaufen Schritt für Schritt einen typischen Analyseablauf:

1. Datenexploration
2. Kategorien für die Basiscodierung entwickeln
3. Material codieren ("Basiscodierung")
4. Weiterentwicklung der Kategorien ("Feincodierung")
5. Analyse der codierten Daten
6. Berichterstellung, Dokumentation, Gütekriterien

Anhand der Projekte von Teilnehmenden diskutieren wir praktische Vorgehensweisen und Herausforderungen.

Hinweise und Übungen zur Umsetzung der qualitativen Inhaltsanalyse mit der Software MAXQDA sowie zur Verwendung von KI zur Unterstützung der Analyse runden den Workshop ab.

Teilnehmende erhalten nach Anmeldung Informationen zur Einreichung von Projekten.

ECTS: 2

Learning Outcome:
Nach Abschluss des Workshops können die Teilnehmenden

- verschiedene Arten von Kategorien unterscheiden und grundlegende Verfahren der Kategorienbildung anwenden,
- die Qualität und Eignung von Kategoriensystemen beurteilen,
- Daten systematisch codieren.

Außerdem kennen sie den grundlegenden Ablauf qualitativer Inhaltsanalyse, typische Herausforderungen und die Möglichkeiten der Umsetzung mit Software und KI.

Module Academic Writing in Qualitative and Historical Research (in Education)
06SMG80o115 / Module

Description:

General description:
Doktorierende, die eine Arbeit mit historischem oder qualitativem Fokus verfassen, stehen immer wieder vor der Frage, wie mit den Quellen bzw. mit dem Material eine 'Geschichte erzählt' werden kann. Welche Interpretationen sind zulässig und wie stark kann / darf verallgemeinert werden? Es stellen sich aber auch Fragen nach der Relevanz des konkreten Beispiels bzw. danach, wie der eigene «Fall» zu einer Theoriebildung beitragen kann. Auf der Basis ausgewählter Literatur werden diese Fragen von Relevanz, Erzählstruktur und Anschlussfähigkeit an die Theoriebildung diskutiert. Zudem werden eigene Texte der Doktorierenden einer kritischen Reflexion unterzogen.

Beginn 23. Februar, Mo 16-18 Uhr. Die weiteren (max. 6) Termine werden in der ersten Sitzung festgelegt.

Module Critical Diversity Literacy and Research Identity
06SMG80o118 / Module

Description:

General description:
Dieses Modul bietet eine vertiefte Auseinandersetzung mit dem Konzept der Critical Diversity Literacy (CDL) und seiner Relevanz für die Professionalisierung wissenschaftlicher Mitarbeitender. Studierende setzen sich kritisch mit Diversitäts- und Machtdiskursen auseinander und reflektieren deren Bedeutung für die Wissensproduktion sowie deren Zusammenhänge mit der Entwicklung der eigenen beruflichen Identität als Forschende.

Dozentinnen:
Dr. Julia Ha (Leiterin Fachstelle Gender & Diversity PHSG)
Dr. Olivia Rütti-Joy (WissenschaftlicheReferentin, PHSG/ Habilitandin am Lehrstuhl DaF/DaZ des Departements für Mehrsprachigkeitsforschung und Fremdsprachendidaktik, Université de Fribourg)

ECTS: 2

Learning Outcome:
Nach Abschluss des Moduls sind die Studierenden in der Lage:

- die theoretischen Grundlagen der Critical Diversity Literacy zu verstehen und zu analysieren,
- Diversitätsaspekte in der Wissensproduktion, im Bildungssystem, in Bildungsprozessen und in Lehr- und Lernmaterialien kritisch zu reflektieren,
- die Bedeutung von Diversitätsaspekten von Critical Diversity Literacy für die Entwicklung von (der eigenen) Forschungsidentität zu erkennen,
- die eigenen Positionierungen im Kontext von Diversität und Machtverhältnissen zu erkennen und zu reflektieren,
- sowie Strategien zur Förderung von Inklusion und diversitätsbewusster Praxis in der Wissensproduktion zu berücksichtigen

Module ECO 304 Decoding Animal Behavior Using Step-SelectionFunctions. Conservation Applications & Methodol
07SMECO304 / Block Course

Description:

General description:
Movement ecology is a rapidly growing field that studies how animals move through landscapes in response to changing environmental conditions – knowledge that's becoming increasingly crucial in our era of global change. The field has advanced dramatically thanks to new tracking technologies and equally innovative analytical methods. Among these, step-selection functions (SSFs) have evolved to be a widely used tool to effectively identify the environmental and anthropogenic factors influencing animal movement decisions. More recently, the development of integrated step-selection functions (iSSFs) has further enhanced this approach by allowing researchers to separately analyse movement constraints and habitat preferences, providing deeper understanding of animal behaviour. This workshop focuses on SSF and iSSF and all the topics upon which SSFs are built, offering participants an in-depth, practical learning experience. Unlike broader movement ecology courses that cover many topics superficially, we concentrate on SSF methods and applications. The program includes extensive hands-on sessions and dedicates a full day to case studies demonstrating real-world applications and emerging uses of SSFs. Participants will work with provided GPS datasets and are also encouraged to bring their own data. Time will be allocated specifically to allow participants to apply these methods directly to their research questions with guidance and support from the lecturers and institute staff.

DAY 1 09.03.2026 Introduction to movement data, data cleaning and spatial data processing. Lecturers: Drs. Benedetta Catitti, Louis Hunninck, Jérôme Guélat (Swiss Ornithological Institute)

DAY 2 10.03.2026 Behavioral states identification using HMMs. Lecturer: Prof. Marie Auger-Méthé (University of British Columbia)

DAY 3 11.03.2026 Step-selection functions: Concepts, mathematical foundation, implementation in R and emerging applications. Lecturer: Prof. John Fieberg (University of Minnesota)

DAY 4 12.03.2026 Application of SSFs: Connectivity, social interactions, non-linear and random effects. Lecturers: Drs. Johannes Signer (University of Göttingen), Natasha Klappstein (Dalhousie University), Gabriele Cozzi & David Hofmann (University of Zurich, Botswana Predator Conservation)

DAY 5 13.03.2026 BYOD - Bring your own data. Guided hands-on work session.

Module LSZ 102 Self-organization during a PhD
07SMLSZ102 / Doktorandenseminar

Description:

General description:
In this workshop you will get to know multiple different methods for timemanagement. You'll learn how self-organization can also be a question of setting boundaries and how to positively influence your dependencies on other people. Be prepared for being engaged in the discussion and to share your personal experiences with the other participants as the aim is to develop the content together in a guided manner. Struggles with time-management and self-organization are often not talked about, but overall, often very similar for other people.

In order to obtain a more targeted self-organization, we will discuss goal setting principles related to different timescales as well as the prioritization of tasks and how to keep the overview in times of a high workload. Furthermore, we will work out individual reasons for procrastination and how to get started on things.

The course includes both theoretical knowledge of various methods and techniques and you will be practically challenged to apply the different approaches to your own goals and to-do lists. This way, you will learn to match the methods with your personal challenges without becoming overwhelmed by your workload and thus increase your productivity. In the sessions we will have open discussions about everything concerned with the topic and develop strategies based on the participants personal experiences.

As many tasks during the PhD are requirements from the PhD-program or expectations from the boss/supervisor, self-organization with respect to the plans of other people plays an important role. This contains delegation of tasks, the setting of boundaries, expectation management and successful management of the legwork of other people.
Additionally, we will discuss with the group the importance of decision-making abilities, appropriate ways of self-criticism and what role self-confidence plays in our personal time-management.

ECTS: 1

Learning Outcome:
What you learn in the workshop
• Goal setting
• Prioritization and keeping the overview
• Self-motivational techniques
• Managing tasks involving other people
• Self-review of productivity and efficiency/effectivity
• Digital tools for self-organisation
• Dealing with time thieves
• Role of self-confidence in time-management/self-organization

Module Collaborative Research
06SM721o410 / Module

Description:

General description:
In dieser Übung werden Methoden des kollaborativen, partizipativen Forschens besprochen und praktisch angewandt. Wir betrachten den gesamten Forschungsprozess - von der Formulierung des Thema zum Forschungsdesign; von der Datenaufnahme zur Datenauswertung, von der Formulierung von Zielen zu Outputs.

ECTS: 3

Notes:
Die Veranstaltung wird in Doppelstunden angeboten. Wir werden teils ins Zürcher Oberland fahren.

Learning Outcome:
Ziel dieses Moduls ist es eine vertiefte und erweiterte Auseinandersetzung mit
Methoden des kollaborativen Forschens.
Teilnehmende kennen verschiedene Methoden, sie wissen um die Herausforderungen und die Vorteile dieses methodologischen Ansatzes. Das Modul dient als Vorbereitung für die Lehrforschung im Sommer 2026 und kann auch als Vorbereitung für eine eigene Forschung oder einer entsprechenden Tätigkeit in der Museumspraxis dienen.

Module Collaborative Research on Integration in the Zurich Oberland
06SM721o447 / Module

Description:

General description:
Studierende werden in dieser Lehrforschung Teil eines co-kreativen und partizipativen Forschungsprojektes in direkter Nähe zu Zürich. Das Projekt «Wir sind Wetzikon. Zusammen.» erforscht lokal bestehende Angebote zu Integration und gemeinsamem Stadtleben sowie darüberhinausgehende Bedürfnisse verschiedenster Bevölkerungs- und Akteursgruppen.
Wir wollen in einem partizipativen Prozess Lücken aufzeigen und Vorschläge für ein noch integrativeres / inklusiveres Stadtleben erarbeiten. Die Studierenden und Stadtbewohner:innen werden zu Mit-Forschenden und erkunden einzelne Themen vor Ort gemeinsam mit einzelnen communities / zivilgesellschaftlichen Akteursgruppen. Diese Themen werden in der vorbereitenden Methodvertiefung während des FS26 partizipativ erarbeitet werden.

ECTS: 6

Notes:
Bewerbung: Interessierte Studierende bewerben sich bitte mit einem Motivationsschreiben, CV und Studienfortschritt bis
27. Januar 2026 direkt bei juliane.neuhaus@uzh.ch.
Dauer der Lehrforschung: 08. Juni bis 05. Juli 2026.
Dieses Modul ist zweisemestrig. Der Unterricht findet in beiden Semestern statt. Sie können das Modul nur abschliessen, wenn Sie im zweiten Semester ebenfalls immatrikuliert sind. Der Lehrforschung findet im Sommer statt, und die kollaborative Datenauswertung findet in Absprache mit den Teilnehmenden an einigen Blockterminen im HS26 statt.

Learning Outcome:
Studierende lernen in diesem Modul, eine kollaborative Forschungsidee zu entwickeln, umzusetzen und auszuwerten. Dies geschieht im Rahmen einer geleiteten Exkursion. Dies dient zugleich der Einarbeitung in ethnologische Methoden in der Praxis. Die Daten können Grundlage einer späteren Abschlussarbeit sein. Ziel dieses Moduls ist es Studierende dabei zu begleiten, im Rahmen durch Dozierende geleitete Exkursionen eigene Forschungsideen zu entwickeln, umzusetzen und auszuwerten.
Verbunden damit ist ein mindestens vierwöchiger Aufenthalt im Feld.

Module Swiss Summer School in Democracy Studies
06SMG90o110 / Module

Description:

General description:
The Swiss Summer School in Democracy Studies (S3DS) brings together internationally renowned researchers and junior scholars for a week of lectures and intensive discussions. After morning lectures by international experts, the afternoons are dedicated to participants' presentations, and group discussions with the experts, moderators and participants. The Summer School is an ideal setting for qualified doctoral students, advanced master students and postdocs in the social sciences and in related disciplines who would like to:

- gain theoretical, empirical, and methodological know-how on democratic innovations in various contexts;
- receive feedback on their own work from both experts and peers in their field of research;
- and meet and exchange with international experts and peers working on similar topics.

ECTS: 2

Notes:
Offered as part of "Democracy Studies" in the Social Sciences subject group.

Further information can be found on: https://www.ipz.uzh.ch/en/s3ds or via e-mail to democracyschool@ipz.uzh.ch.

Learning Outcome:
The Swiss Summer School in Democracy Studies gives young scholars in the social sciences, including political science, political philosophy, media and communication science, sociology, cultural studies, anthropology, economics, and related disciplines the unique opportunity to discuss their research projects with renowned experts in their field in an accessible and collegial environment and to establish valuable contacts for their academic future.

Module Collaboration Engineering for Human and Hybrid Teamwork (L&E)
03SM22MI0050 / Lecture with Practical Exercises

Description:

General description:
This course addresses the characteristics, challenges, and potentials of collaboration as joint effort toward a group goal. Students will be introduced to Collaboration Engineering (CE) methods and tools for the socio-technical design and support of high-value, recurring collaborative work practices. CE aims to design and deploy collaboration processes in such ways that they can be executed by practitioners without ongoing support, as established facilitation knowledge is packaged in reusable procedures and technologies. The course will cover collaboration in human teams as well as human-AI teams in hybrid intelligence settings. Students will be guided to apply the CE approach to identify and analyze collaboration scenarios; and to develop, instantiate and evaluate reusable collaboration process designs for current challenges in realistic case studies, including e.g., human-AI collaboration and the configuration of “AI thinkLets”.

ECTS: 6

Notes:
About 50% of the course will be lectures; the other 50% will be exercises, including group exercises. This module is intended for students who are enrolled in an Informatics degree program at the Faculty of Business, Economics and Informatics. It can be credited towards the Master's level.
Some exercise sessions will be mandatory - to be announced in the first lecture.

For students who have taken the “CSCW” module, this module is a suitable continuation. However, CSCW is no prerequisite for this module and it can be completed as a standalone course.

Learning Outcome:
Students will gain insight into the development of the research area of Collaboration Engineering (CE), also in relation to related fields like computer-supported cooperative work. They will acquire a sound understanding of the central theories, methods and tools used in CE and develop the ability to apply these competently in practical cases. Students will be introduced to issues currently being discussed in CE research. They will learn and apply methods and principles for the analysis, ICT-supported design, and evaluation of reusable collaborative work practices. Through exercises, class discussions and group work, students will advance their own collaboration, facilitation and reflection skills.

Target Groups:
MA students

Course Materials:	Lecture materials including slides and further literature (but no full script) will be provided via OLAT. The course partially follows the (German) coursebook: Leimeister, J. M. (2014). Collaboration Engineering: IT-gestützte Zusammenarbeitsprozesse systematisch entwickeln und durchführen. Springer-Verlag.
Merkmale:	Target Group: Suitable for English Speakers
Responsible instructor:	Eva Bittner

Requirements:

Assessment:	Half the grade will be determined by about five assignments (including points for attendance in lectures and exercises); the other half by a written exam. Both need to be passed in order to pass the course.

The examination of the module will take place onsite. The written exam is scheduled for June 10th 2026 (08:00-10:00 am).

In case of a low number of participants an oral exam might be scheduled instead of a written exam.

Module Exercise: Curating East Asian Art: Approaches and Practices
06SM642o004 / Module

Description:

General description:
How do curatorial decisions about selection, arrangement, interpretation, and display of objects create meaning and construct narratives? In what ways do exhibitions function as both aesthetic experiences and sites of knowledge production? What are the ethical responsibilities involved in exhibiting objects from cultures different from one's own?
This course addresses these questions by exploring different curatorial practices with a focus on East Asian art and transcultural curating strategies. Through case studies ranging from key past exhibitions of East Asian art to contemporary examples (e.g. participatory and community-based exhibitions, digital and interactive displays, seasonal and relational installations), students examine diverse concepts, methods, and theoretical frameworks that shape how objects are collected, interpreted, and displayed. The course also investigates the multifaceted role of the curator, as caretaker, storyteller, mediator, and producer of knowledge. Drawing on critical theories from semiotics to postcolonial studies, students critically engage with both established conventions and innovative approaches to curating East Asian art.
The course combines theoretical readings and case study analysis with hands-on examination of exhibitions during small excursions to nearby exhibition venues. Through discussions, presentations, and exercises, students will develop skills to critically analyze curatorial processes and gain practical competencies for ethically informed curatorial practice in a transcultural context.

Module LSZ103 Effective Visual Communication of Science
07SMLSZ103 / Doktorandenseminar

Description:

General description:
Effective Visual Communication of Science (flyer)

Learn to visualize your complex research ideas and findings so your messages stand out and are more easily understood by scientists or non-scientists.

The SEYENS METHODTM is a strategic design process for visualizing scientific information. Straightforward, intuitive and easy to apply. You can immediately apply it to improve your publications and presentations, make them resonate with your audiences and help your research make an impact.

You will learn to visually communicate your complex research ideas and results so your messages are effortlessly understood by any specific audience (scientists or non-scientists). We will not focus on aesthetics but on how knowledge on human visual perception can help you create effective scientific images, slides, and posters.
You will design a graphical abstract of your research, discuss it with peer scientists in a group exercise, and get actionable advice and feedback on your own images and slides. It is an immersive workshop, comprehensive, structured, memorable, easy to follow, useful and fun.

ECTS: 1

Learning Outcome:
Fundamentals of visual communication that underlie all scientific communication. Includes knowledge of visual perception, layout, eye flow, colours, and typography.
Approaches to different science communication types including slide presentations and posters.
Draw a graphical abstract that visually presents your research. Use visual communication terminology to give and receive feedback from other scientists.
Give and receive feedback on posters, slides, and figures

Module Theories in the Social Sciences: An Advanced Course
06SMG90o111 / Module

Description:

General description:
This seminar is aimed at doctoral students in social science disciplines, including sociology, political science, communication and media studies, cultural studies, and ethnology. Together, we will develop an overview of influential theoretical approaches and traditions within these disciplines. These approaches differ in their epistemological goals and focus on the micro, meso, or macro level. The seminar will also help participants reflect on the role of theories and theory formation in their dissertation projects and identify and leverage their potential.

ECTS: 1

Notes:
Offered as part of the complementary training for PhD candidates in the Social Sciences.

Registration via e-mail to Dr. Doreen Spörer-Wagner (doreen.spoerer-wagner@phil.uzh.ch) not later than 1 March 2026.

Room: AND 5.03

Learning Outcome:
Understanding of the diversity of social science theories and the ability to critically evaluate and contribute to their formation and application.

Module Intermediate R for Doctoral Students
06SMG70o112 / Module

Description:

General description:
This workshop covers intermediate topics regarding the freely available R system for statistical computing (https://www.r-project.org). It is intended for PhD students with basic R knowledge who want to deepen their understanding of R and improve their practical skills.

The workshop focuses on characteristics of R, its core data structures, and different approaches to data wrangling (data manipulation and transformation) in base R and widely used add-on packages. Participants learn how to create a variety of sophisticated graphics in R using different approaches to graphical representation and how to use fundamental programming concepts to write their own functions. The workshop concentrates on language aspects rather than advanced statistical methods.

A set of self-directed, hands-on exercises with solutions enables participants to practice the discussed techniques at different levels of difficulty and to transfer them to their own projects.

Module Documenting an endangered Romance minority variety. Linguistic fieldwork with the Aromanians of North Maced
06SM430o052 / Module

Description:

General description:
Aromanian is recognised by the EU as one of the largest endangered Romance varieties due to a dwindling number of native speakers, the difficulty of transmitting the language to younger generations, and a lack of official recognition and/or institutional support in different countries in the Balkans.
The aim of this course and excursion is to provide the students insights into and gather first-hand experiences in the methods and approaches of language documentation, dialectology, sociolinguistics, sociology of language, and linguistic landscape research in the multi-lingual settings of Aromanian with Albanian, Greek, and Macedonian (no prior linguistic knowledge is needed). The course is divided into two blocks:
First, in the preparatory block sessions, students will be introduced to Aromanian (its history, linguistic system, sociolinguistic context), its speakers as well as to the general difficulties faced by linguistic minorities in Europe (and particularly in the Balkans). Participants will also learn different approaches used in linguistic fieldwork (dialectology, sociolinguistics, and linguistic landscape) to understand and to study the complex multilingual settings of the region.
Second, the knowledge and skills from the preparatory block sessions will then be applied during a linguistic fieldwork trip to the Republic of North Macedonia (23.06.2026-28.06.2026). During the excursion, the students are guided and supported by scholars and local experts to gather experience in linguistic fieldwork and to conduct their own linguistic research (research questions will be prepared prior to the fieldwork in consultation with Olivier Winistörfer).

ECTS: 6

Notes:
The excursion takes place from the 23.06.2026-28.06.2026. A valid ID or passport (Swiss/EU citizens do not need any visa) is necessary.

Please note that this is an application module (Bewerbungsmodul) with a special booking period (from 14.01.2026 until 27.01.2026).
Students are therefore required to submit with their application a motivation letter outlining their research interests, the linguistic fields in which they wish to deepen their knowledge, and potential research questions. The letter should also describe any relevant experience in linguistic fieldwork or research (if applicable), as well as the student's language skills. The document should not exceed one A4 page.

Learning Outcome:
The goal of this course is to get an insight into the different methods and approaches used in linguistic fieldwork and the study of linguistic minorities as well as to acquire the ability to independently conduct linguistic research.

Languages of Instruction:
English

Merkmale:

Responsible instructor: Elisabeth Stark

Requirements:

Assessment: Portfolio: 1. Elaborating research questions for small individual/group projects during linguistic fieldwork. 2. Summing up the findings after the excursion. Both elements of the Portfolio must be successfully completed.

The résumé of the findings must be submitted by July 19th 2026.

Module BIO 649 Introductory Course in Neuroscience II
07SMBIO649 / Course

Description:

General description:
This course discusses behavioral aspects in neuroscience. Modern brain imaging methods are described. Clinical issues including diseases of the nervous system are studied. Sleep research and neuroimmunology are discussed. Finally, the course deals with the basic concepts in psychiatry.

Part one - Cognitive Neuroscience (@ Campus Irchel): Methods, Attention, Emotion, Decision Making, Memory & Neural Basis of Language.
Part two - Clinical Neuroscience (takes place at various clinics): Neurology, Spinal Cord Injury, Epilepsy, Neurosurgery, Addiction, Schizophrenia and Depression

ECTS: 2

Notes:
Lectures are usually held on Mondays from 16:00 to 18:00. Exceptions may occur. Please always verify the exact dates and times on the ZNZ webpage (https://www.neuroscience.uzh.ch/en/education/courses/introductory-Course-in-Neuroscience.html).

Module MAT 551 Seminar: Analytic Number Theory
07SMMAT551 / Seminar

Description:

General description:
In this course we will learn how to use analytic methods to study various arithmetic functions. Highlights include Dirichlet's theorem on primes in arithmetic progressions, and the proof of the prime number theorem. Time permitting, we may also explore the world of modular forms.

ECTS: 3

Notes:
Mathematical Field: Analysis, Algebra

Learning Outcome:
Gain an appreciation for the role of analytical methods in number theory. Broadly understand the proofs of some classical results in analytic number number theory.
You will learn how to present a topic interestingly to an audience, how to give constructive peer feedback etc.

Target Groups:
Math BSc students from 3rd semester

Course Materials:	The Seminar will follow: Apostol's "Introduction to Analytic Number Theory".
Merkmale:	Target Group: Suitable for English Speakers
Responsible instructor:	Claire Burrin

Requirements:

Prior Knowledge:	First year linear algebra and analysis, and elementary number theory. A basic knowledge of complex analysis is useful for some topics.
Assessment:	- Prepare a talk and present it in class. - Hand in a typed (LaTeX) version of the talk - Be present throughout the semester and participate actively in discussions - Language of Assessment: English

Module GEO 717 Google Earth Engine
07SMGEO717 / Block Course

Description:

General description:
The Google Earth Engine course will present Earth Engine as a tool for remote sensing data analysis. This course will introduce the Earth Engine user interface and application programming interface by walking through the development of several algorithms covering common remote sensing techniques including: image compositing, spectral indices extraction, supervised classification, time-series analysis, change detection and more. Participants will learn how to find and use data sets, apply basic functions, and perform extensive data processing.

Throughout the course, students take on small project assignments to experiment and consolidate the skills they have learned.

ECTS: 2

Notes:
Basic programming skills are highly recommended!

Learning Outcome:
The aim of the module is to give students an understanding of the techniques of processing large scale remote sensing data in the Earth Engine environment, with an emphasis on being able to apply those techniques to future analysis. Students will be able to carry out typical workflows in data processing and product generation.

Target Groups:
Students in Geography and Earth System Science (GEO/ESS, HF & NF).

Module Master Seminar Political Economy & Philosophy
06SM615o549 / Module

Description:

General description:
Das Modul fördert vertieftes Fachwissen in einem ausgewählten Forschungsfeld. Es vermittelt die Kompetenz, zu einem ausgewählten Thema Fragestellungen aus Sicht der Politikwissenschaft zu entwickeln und zu analysieren. Im Zentrum des Seminars stehen die politikwissenschaftliche und normative Analyse, das trennscharfe Analysieren der Begriffe in ihrer Anwendung auf empirische Studien und das Begründen politischer Sachverhalte. Die unterschiedlichen Themen werden theoretisch und empirisch vertieft.

ECTS: 6

Learning Outcome:
Fachkompetenzen: Verortung von Argumenten und empirischen Studien in den relevanten wissenschaftlichen Debatten zu einem ausgewählten Thema; Methodenkompetenzen: wissenschaftliches Schreiben und Argumentieren; Verfassen eines schriftlichen Beitrags (Policy Paper, wissenschaftliche Abhandlung, etc.) Selbstkompetenzen: Definition eigener inhaltlicher Schwerpunkte, Selbsteinschätzung, Planungsfähigkeit.

Module Study Week
06SM521o505 / Module

Description:

General description:
Study week with international exchange, usually in the form of excursion abroad.

Depending on the possibilities, the following elements are part of the program:

- Visiting universities and research centres
- Exchange with students, doctoral students and lecturers
- Presentation of own projects
- Company visits
- Participation in a conference or summer school.

The study week usually takes place at the end of the spring semester.

ECTS: 6

Notes:
During the current semester, we will attend the Language Resources and Evaluation Conference (LREC), which will take place in Palma de Mallorca, Spain, from 11 to 16 May 2026. More details here: https://www.elra.info/lrec2026/

The following documents must be handed in with the application:

- Current CV
- Academic Record with grades

We will inform about the details and concrete plans at an information event in January.

Learning Outcome:
The learning outcome of the Study Week depend on the program. Some of the following learning outcome can be achieved:

The students (1) gain insight into language technology companies and university or non-university research departments (2) get to know the theory and practice of computational linguistics in a concrete example (3) find or develop one's own specific interests (4) gain the ability to get insight into practical problems and methods through interviews with practitioners (5) get in contact with potential employers (6) learn how conferences work and how to participate in them effectively.

Module policy evaluation
06SM615o550 / Module

Description:

General description:
Das Modul fördert vertieftes Fachwissen in einem ausgewählten Forschungsfeld. Es vermittelt die Kompetenz, zu einem ausgewählten Thema Fragestellungen aus Sicht der Politikwissenschaft zu entwickeln und zu analysieren. Im Zentrum des Seminars stehen die politikwissenschaftliche und normative Analyse, das trennscharfe Analysieren der Begriffe in ihrer Anwendung auf empirische Studien und das Begründen politischer Sachverhalte. Die unterschiedlichen Themen werden theoretisch und empirisch vertieft.

ECTS: 6

Learning Outcome:
Die Studierenden kennen die grundlegenden Konzepte und Begriffe der Evaluation.
Die Studierenden sind vertraut mit der Evaluationspraxis in der Schweiz.
Die Studierenden erwerben erste Erfahrungen in der Konzeption einer Evaluationsstudie.

Module A Psychologist’s Guide to Machine Learning
06SMG70o115 / Module

Description:

General description:
Computational Social Science, i.e. the application of computational methods to social science questions, has gained strong momentum in the past few years. Machine learning, in particular, enables social scientists to access new data sources and realize new research designs providing a complimentary angle to already established methods. In this course, participants will learn the basics of machine learning and how to implement them in Python.

The five day course is divided into two independent parts:
(1) Introduction to Programming: On days 1 and 2, participants will learn the fundamentals of programming in Python.
(2) Introduction to Machine Learning: On days 3 and 4, participants will familiarize themselves with basic machine learning concepts and algorithms. Day 5 is reserved for project work, where participants can either bring their own work or can deepen their practice with a provided application case.

The parts on programming and machine learning can be attended independently depending on participants' prior knowledge and needs. After finishing the course, participants will (1) be able to understand basic machine learning concepts, (2) have enhanced their ability for interdisciplinary exchange, and (3) be able to implement basic machine learning projects in their respective fields.

Specifically, the course will cover:

Introduction to Python (Days 1-2)

- The programming environment: Anaconda, Google Colab, Jupyter Notebooks
- Data types and variables
- Operators and functions
- For and while loops
- Conditions
- Modules and packages
- Reading, analyzing, and visualizing data
- Virtual environments

Introduction to Machine Learning (Days 3-5)

- General introduction to machine learning: supervised learning, unsupervised learning, deep learning, reinforcement learning, machine learning vocabulary
- Traditional machine learning algorithms: logistic regression, support vector machines, decision trees and random forests, k-means, kNN
- Neural networks and transformer models
- The data science pipeline: data cleaning, model choice, model fitting, fine tuning, model evaluation, cross-validation, predictions for statistical analysis

ECTS: 3

Notes:
The course is directed at non-technical researchers interested in machine learning as a data analysis tool in general or within their own work.

Module Summer School: Healthy Longevity
06SM200o599 / Module

Description:

General description:
This immersive summer school offers a rare blend of and unique insights into cutting-edge research and hands-on experience in healthy longevity, delivered by an interdisciplinary team of experts from UZH and top global institutions. With its unique geographical position in the heart of Europe and near innovation pioneers in various public and private sectors, the program includes unique opportunities for site visits and on-site interactions with different healthy ageing and longevity stakeholders. What you will gain: 1) Interdisciplinary Insights: Learn about the latest theoretical, empirical and practical knowledge on healthy aging and longevity. 2) Real-World Applications: Gain an understanding of how ageing affects both individual and societal health and explore emerging trends shaping the longevity sector. 3) Market-Ready Skills: Learn about the opportunities and challenges in translating longevity research into impactful market applications.The Summer School will take place from June 30 to July 21, 2026, with a total of 56 taught lessons and an innovathon, supplemented by self-study and a social program. Please note this is an intensive full-time program. International students from around the world will join this summer school as well. UZH students participating in the module will be asked to actively engage with their international peers and to provide some support (i.e. group management on academic trips and social activities). For UZH students there are no participation fees. If you have any questions related to this, get in touch with summer@int.uzh.ch or directly with your course leader christina.roecke@uzh.ch

ECTS: 6

Notes:
To participate in this module, students need to apply as soon as possible, not later than March 29, 2026, via email to summer@int.uzh.ch, submitting a letter of motivation and current transcript of records. Admission status will be communicated as soon as possible. The number of participants is limited to 30-40 students in total (for UZH students 10 places are available). In case too few international participants register for the Summer School, the module will not be offered.
https://www.summerschools.uzh.ch/en/courses-on-offer/healthy-longevity A mandatory information event for all UZH students participating in the module will take place at the beginning of June. The exact date will be communicated to enrolled students at the end of April 2026.

Learning Outcome:
1. Gain a solid grounding in general lifespan psychological theory to ageing and longevity.
2. Gain expertise related to the field of healthy ageing and longevity from the viewpoint of various disciplines, including clinical psychology, gerontology, medical sciences (internal medicine & geriatrics), geography and GIScience, nutrition science, mind-body medicine and data science.
3. Build knowledge on and understand the relevance of both individual and structural dynamics for healthy ageing and longevity.
4. Gain knowledge on mechanisms and counter measures facilitating a nuanced view on ageing and against ageism.

Module MAT 892 Applied Bayesian Modeling and Computation
07SMMAT892 / Lecture with Practical Exercises

Description:

General description:
This course provides an applied introduction to Bayesian modeling with probabilistic programming tools. We will begin by describing the Bayesian workflow of model construction, inference, and model criticism. Our models will be built compositionally with Bayesian networks that combine discrete and continuous variables. Students will then implement these models as probabilistic programs, and perform inference using methods such as:
    1. Importance sampling and sequential Monte Carlo (in JAX)
    2. Markov chain Monte Carlo (with Stan and NumPyro)
    3. Variational inference (with NumPyro)
The strengths and limitations of each approach will be illustrated through examples, including multilevel regression, hidden Markov/state-space models, and topic models. Emphasis will be placed on practical aspects rather than theoretical details.

ECTS: 5

Notes:
Mathematical Field: Stochastics

Learning Outcome:
By the end of the course, students will be able to:
    1. Model systems of interest using Bayesian networks and probabilistic programming.
    2. Use these models to answer scientific questions.
    3. Evaluate and refine their models based on empirical data.

Target Groups:
Math BSc from 3rd Semester and Math MSc students.
Anyone interested in Bayesian modeling is welcome (see prior knowledge).

PhD Students are welcome and will be expected to attend regularly and submit a given number of exercises.

Course Materials:	Lecture notes will be provided

Module Neurophysiological Experimentation: Implementation and Analysis
06SM200o800e / Module

Description:

General description:
In diesem Blockkurs werden Daten einfacher neurophysiologischer EEG-Experimente erhoben und ausgewertet. Die praktische Arbeit der Datenerhebung im Labor, sowie die Signalvorverarbeitung, statistische Auswertung und Datenvisualisierung soll den Teilnehmenden eine Einführung in den Ablauf einer experimentellen Studie gewähren. Die Veranstaltung richtet sich daher insbesondere an Studierende, die eine Masterarbeit im Bereich eines neurophysiologischen Experiments anstreben. Da ein Teil des Leistungsnachweises darin besteht, eigene Analyseskripte zu programmieren, werden die Studierenden vor und während des Kurses in die Programmiersprache MATLAB eingeführt. Voraussetzung für die Teilnahme am Kurs ist daher das Absolvieren eines kurzen Online-Vorbereitungskurses (ca. 2h), in dem die Studierenden mit den Grundlagen des Programmierens in MATLAB und digitaler Signalverarbeitung eingeführt werden.

ECTS: 4

Notes:
Dieses Modul steht nur Studierenden des Master of Science in Psychologie (RVO19) offen. This module is only open to students of Master of Science in Psychology (RVO19).

Learning Outcome:
1. Durchführung eines Experiments (Datenerhebung).
2. Vorverarbeitung von neurophysiologischen Daten.
3. Extraktion neurophysiologischer Messwerte (z.B. Ereigniskorrelierte potentiale, Spektrogramme, Zeit-Frequenz Analysen) - Datenvisualisierung - Statistische Analyse von neurophysiologischen Daten.

Module Historical Psychology: Studying Psychological Change Across Centuries
06SM200o303b / Module

Description:

General description:
Psychology is not static but changes over time within populations through processes of cultural change. This seminar examines how psychological phenomena such as cognition, emotion, values, and behavior have evolved historically within and across societies. We will explore how histories and psychologies mutually constitute each other, examining temporal psychological variation over decades, centuries, and millennia. The course addresses fundamental questions about why and how psychological patterns change over time, what historical processes drive these changes, and how we can study past minds through the psychological fossil record they left behind. Topics include theoretical frameworks for understanding psychological change, natural language processing methods for analyzing historical texts, the historical origins of contemporary psychological differences, and the validation of historical psychological measures. Students will engage with historical texts and artifacts, examining examples such as changes in individualism, moral values, social norms, conformity, and stereotypes across historical periods.

ECTS: 4

Learning Outcome:
After completing the seminar, students will: 1) Understand theoretical frameworks for studying psychology as a historical science. 2) Become familiar with computational methods for extracting psychological information from historical texts including dictionary-based, distributed-representational, and human-annotation-based approaches. 3) Learn how to validate historical psychological measures against temporal and geographic ground truth. 4) Critically evaluate empirical research examining psychological change over time, and 5) Recognize the importance of historical context for understanding contemporary psychological phenomena.

Students should be engaged in group discussion, as demonstrated by active listening and direct contributions in the seminar (i.e.,talking) (50%). 2) Weekly questions. Students should submit two questions or discussion prompts via OLAT prior to each class period: one related to methods and one related to substantive concepts. These questions will form the basis of group discussion. (50%). All pieces of assessment need to be fulfilled to pass the course.

Module Network Analysis in Psychology: Theory, Methods, and Applications
06SM200o800c / Module

Description:

General description:
This course provides a comprehensive introduction to network analysis methods in psychology and their implementation in R. Network approaches conceptualize psychological phenomena as systems of interconnected elements rather than latent variables. Students will learn to construct, analyze, and interpret networks from various psychological data types through lectures, readings, and hands-on exercises. The course covers: 1) Introduction to network theory and graph fundamentals 2) Network estimation methods (correlation, partial correlation, regularized networks) 3) Centrality measures and network structure 4) Network stability and accuracy assessment 5) Network comparison and temporal networks 6) Applications to psychopathology, personality, and social psychology. Special emphasis is placed on best practices for network analysis, including appropriate model selection, validation procedures, and avoiding common pitfalls in interpretation.

ECTS: 4

Learning Outcome:
At the end of the course, students are able to estimate, visualize, and interpret psychological networks using R (primarily qgraph, bootnet, mgm, and NetworkComparisonTest packages). They can select appropriate network models for different data types and research questions. Students will be able to assess network stability and accuracy through bootstrapping procedures, compare networks across groups or time points, and identify central nodes and network communities. They can critically evaluate the advantages and limitations of network approaches versus traditional methods, interpret network parameters in psychological terms, and communicate network findings effectively. Students will master best practices for reproducible network analysis and be able to apply these methods to their own research domains.

Requirements:

Assessment: Portfolio
1. Students will create a comprehensive R tutorial for one advanced network analysis technique not covered in depth during class. The tutorial should include annotated code, example data, interpretation guidelines, and common pitfalls. These tutorials will be compiled into a course resource for future students. Regular attendance in the seminar and active engagement with course discussions are essential for understanding how the tutorial should be positioned within the broader network analysis framework, what conceptual questions it needs to address for clarity, and what practical challenges students commonly face when applying these methods. The assignment demonstrates deep understanding through the ability to teach others and contributes to open science practices (50%). 2) Final project Students will conduct a comprehensive network analysis on either a dataset of their choosing (subject to instructor approval) or a provided dataset. The analysis should include network construction, calculation of key network metrics, and visualization of network structure. Students must prepare a written report (8-12 pages) that includes: (1) an introduction describing the network and research questions, (2) a detailed methodology section explaining data preparation and analytical techniques, (3) results presenting findings with appropriate visualizations and statistical summaries, (4) a discussion interpreting results in the context of network theory and real-world implications, and (5) a conclusion with limitations and future research directions. The report should demonstrate mastery of network analysis concepts covered throughout the course, critical thinking about network properties, and clear communication of technical findings. Code and datasets should be submitted as supplementary materials. This project serves as the capstone assessment, integrating theoretical knowledge with practical analytical skills. (50%). All pieces of assessment need to be fulfilled to pass the course.

Module MAT 606 Introduction to PDE
07SMMAT606 / Lecture with Practical Exercises

Description:

General description:
Partial Differential Equations are essential for describing how quantities such as heat, waves, or fluid flows evolve over space and time, making them a cornerstone of applied mathematics and engineering, while also driving deep developments in pure mathematics and analysis.
This course offers an introduction to some prototypical, mostly linear, partial differential equations. We will discuss key features of solutions to transport, Poisson/Laplace, heat and wave equations. The focus hereby will be on a rigorous understanding of different behaviors, without appealing to or developing functional analytic tools.

ECTS: 6

Notes:
Mathematical Field: Analysis

Learning Outcome:
Understand the typical behavior of solutions to some of the foundational (linear) partial differential equation: the transport, Poisson/Laplace, heat and wave equations. Relevant techniques include the method of characteristics, fundamental solutions and Green's function, mean-value formulas, energy methods and Huygens' principle.

Target Groups:
Math BSc students from 4th semester and MSc students

Course Materials:	Books: - W. Strauss: Partial Differential Equations – an Introduction - P. Olver: An Introduction to Partial Differential Equations - L.C. Evans: Partial Differential Equations

Module What's in a Name? Identity, Power, Practice
06SM721o614 / Module

Description:

General description:
The Völkerkundemuseum is looking for a new name. As part of this process, this course will explore the cultural and political power of naming practices.

Anthropologists have studied names, traditionally for what they reveal about wider social structures, and more recently as cultural objects in their own right. Ethnographic accounts from around the world show how names communicate belonging, history, and identity. They show how names may be given, chosen, imposed, erased, or resisted.

In this course participants will partake actively in the museum's renaming process. We will explore how these debates take shape in museum spaces, and what happens to names in ethnographic collections. We will also research more broadly how place names and personal names are contested, and how the processes of renaming reflect broader debates over identity, representation, and authority.

ECTS: 6

Notes:
In addition to readings and discussions, the students will work on an upcoming exhibition on names (vernissage July 2026) at the museum and collaborate with ZHDK students who are also working on renaming process.

Learning Outcome:
Over the course of the semester students will learn to :

Analyze how naming and renaming practices reflect cultural identity, power, and social relations in anthropological contexts.

Evaluate contested naming debates in ethnographic collections with attention to representation and authority.

Contribute research and collaborative work to the museum's renaming process and upcoming exhibition on re-naming

Communicate insights on naming practices through written, oral, and exhibition formats

Module Smart Cities: Digital Technologies and Public Life
06SM615o014 / Module

Description:

General description:
As cities worldwide evolve into "smart cities," this bachelor seminar offers a comprehensive look at how smart city technologies-from ICT and sensors to CCTV systems-shape the urban environments of tomorrow. The module introduces students to the concept of smart cities by exploring how these tools transform city infrastructure, from crisis management and public transportation to democratic participation. Balancing theoretical frameworks with real-world case studies and guest lectures, the course examines both the promises and challenges of smart cities, including ethical considerations such as privacy, inclusivity, and the digital divide. Assessment will include a presentation and an end-of-term case-study paper that requires students to critically interrogate a chosen smart city initiative, with a focus on ethical dimensions.

Module Introduction to Surveillance Studies
06SM615o551 / Module

Description:

General description:
Das Modul fördert vertieftes Fachwissen in einem ausgewählten Forschungsfeld. Es vermittelt die Kompetenz, zu einem ausgewählten Thema Fragestellungen aus Sicht der Politikwissenschaft zu entwickeln und zu analysieren. Im Zentrum des Seminars stehen die politikwissenschaftliche und normative Analyse, das trennscharfe Analysieren der Begriffe in ihrer Anwendung auf empirische Studien und das Begründen politischer Sachverhalte. Die unterschiedlichen Themen werden theoretisch und empirisch vertieft.

ECTS: 6

Learning Outcome:
Fachkompetenzen: Verortung von Argumenten und empirischen Studien in den relevanten wissenschaftlichen Debatten zu einem ausgewählten Thema; Methodenkompetenzen: wissenschaftliches Schreiben und Argumentieren; Verfassen eines schriftlichen Beitrags (Policy Paper, wissenschaftliche Abhandlung, etc.) Selbstkompetenzen: Definition eigener inhaltlicher Schwerpunkte, Selbsteinschätzung, Planungsfähigkeit.

Module GEO 839 Health Geographies
07SMGEO839 / Seminar

Description:

General description:
This course introduces students to the geographies of health and wellbe-ing. It will discuss different spatialities and temporalities as well as embod-ied experiences of health and wellbeing, how these are embedded in broader socio-economic, cultural and political structures at multiple scales, and the overarching inequalities. We ask, for example, who produces knowledge about health, whose voices and experiences are heard, included or excluded in knowledge-making, and the different forms of resistance that individuals and communities (e.g. patients, caregivers, residents, healthcare workers, non-governmental organisations) use to respond to such challenges. The students will engage with core themes in health geog-raphies, including illness narratives, environmental justice, spaces of care, and reproductive health. The examples will mainly draw on qualitative and mixed-methods research and will discuss ethical questions in doing re-search around health and wellbeing. In addition to geography, we will draw on interdisciplinary concepts and debates from medical anthropology, medical sociology and public health. By the end of the course, students will be able to critically reflect on space, place, time, power and ethics in health geographies.

ECTS: 3

Notes:
The Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs (https://sdgs.un.org/goals)) are a collection of 17 global goals interacting with each other, which are designed to be the blueprint to achieve a better and more sustainable future for all. The 2030 Agenda for SDGs is adopted by all United Nations Member States.

This module addresses the following Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs): 3, 10 & 13.

- The session on 4 March will take place in room Y25-K-22.

Learning Outcome:
At the end of the course, the students will be able to define and discuss key themes in health geographies and outline how they help understand social phenomena related to health, wellbeing and the environment; use exam-ples of current social phenomena to critically evaluate why individuals and communities experience and (have the possibility to) respond to challenges of health and wellbeing differently.

Module Unconventional Topics in Economic Research (S)
03SM22BO0150 / Seminar

Description:

General description:
This seminar explores how economic research can help understand surprising, strange, and even absurd aspects of human behavior and society. We study papers that sound unbelievable at first glance – on cheating sumo wrestlers, medieval priests, fighter pilots, names, beauty, and even Hitler's highways – but that all use serious economic reasoning and modern empirical methods. The goal is twofold: to provide students with an entryway into thinking about research – learning to critically read, present, and evaluate academic papers – and to explore the range and creativity of contemporary and historical economics. Each student presents one paper and leads the discussion on its research question, identification strategy, and contribution. Students either pick a paper from the list of suggested references or select a different paper that needs to be approved by the instructor. Following an introduction session, the seminar presentations take place in two half-day block sessions.

ECTS: 3

Notes:
Students have to submit a short letter to the professor by email (thomas.graeber@econ.uzh.ch) (about half a page) outlining their motivation to join the course. Deadline for application is February 17.

Important: Attendance is mandatory at all sessions.

The seminar takes place at Blümlisalpstrasse 10, seminar room BLU-003.

Learning Outcome:
Learn to critically analyze and evaluate a set of different data-driven approaches for answering practical questions in economics.

Module MAT 547 Historical Foundations of Category Theory: Concepts and Contexts
07SMMAT547 / Course

Description:

General description:
This course explores the historical and philosophical evolution of category theory, following its path from a technical tool in algebraic topology to a central conceptual framework of twentieth-century mathematics. We will examine how category theory emerged in the 1940s through the collaboration of Eilenberg and Mac Lane, how it evolved through its roles in homological algebra, algebraic geometry, and foundational studies, and how it gradually transformed from a language of expression into an autonomous theory and even a proposed foundation of mathematics. Special emphasis will be placed on the interaction between mathematical practice and epistemology, in particular how categorical concepts such as functor, natural transformation, adjunction, and topos arose from concrete problems yet reshaped the very understanding of mathematical objects and structures. We will also discuss the work of Grothendieck, Lawvere, and others who extended the categorical viewpoint into geometry, logic, and the philosophy of mathematics, questioning the traditional set-theoretic conception of foundations.

Students will engage with both primary historical texts and philosophical analysis, combining historical research with reflective inquiry. Each participant will select a topic for a research essay and presentation. The use of AI tools for research and idea development is encouraged under ethical guidance, and assignments will be prepared in LaTeX to ensure professional mathematical presentation. Outstanding essays may contribute to a future collective publication on the history of category theory.

This course is intended for students in mathematics who wish to understand the conceptual transformations that shaped modern mathematical thought. It is particularly suitable for those pursuing the teaching diploma in mathematics, as well as for students interested in the philosophical and historical foundations of mathematical ideas.

ECTS: 4

Notes:
Mathematical Fields:

    • Algebra
    • Geometry/Topology

How to apply for this module: Please upload 2-3 sentences (not more necessary!) about your motivation for this module until the deadline specified under "organization".

In case of questions please contact the lecturer PD Dr. Nima Moshayedi: nima.moshayedi@math.uzh.ch

Learning Outcome:
By the end of the course, students will be able to critically analyze key developments in the history of category theory, explain the origins and evolution of central categorical concepts such as categories, functors, natural transformations, adjunctions, and toposes, and contextualize these ideas within broader mathematical, philosophical, and historical frameworks.
Students will also demonstrate the ability to conduct independent research on a historical or conceptual topic, present their findings clearly in both written and oral form using LaTeX and appropriate presentation tools, and engage responsibly with AI-supported methods for exploring and developing historical and mathematical content.

Module MAT 915 Random Matrix Theory
07SMMAT915 / Lecture with Practical Exercises

Description:

General description:
Random Matrix Theory has developed tremendously in the 21st century, at the intersection of several branches of mathematics and mathematical physics. This lecture presents the basic random matrix models (Gaussian Unitary Ensemble, Circular Unitary ensemble), exposing the classical techniques for the study of their spectrum. Connections with analytic number theory will also be explored.

Module MAT 665 Advanced Topics in Functional Analysis
07SMMAT665 / Lecture with Practical Exercises

Description:

General description:
The goal of this course is to introduce the foundations of differential calculus in Banach spaces, generalizing the most common theorems from finite-dimensional spaces (e.g., Taylor's formula, the Implicit Function Theorem, and the Inverse Function Theorem). These tools will then be applied to the study of nonlinear problems. In particular, we will discuss results in bifurcation theory (e.g., the Crandall–Rabinowitz Theorem) and degree theory (e.g., the Leray–Schauder mapping degree), as well as their direct applications to fluid equations (the water waves equation and the stationary Navier–Stokes equations).

ECTS: 6

Notes:
Mathematical Field: Analysis

Learning Outcome:
Understanding the basic concepts of differentiability for operators between Banach spaces, bifurcation, and degree theory, as well as the main theorems built upon these notions. Developing the ability to apply these results both to simple examples and to more complex, specific scenarios.

Target Groups:
Math BSc students from 6th semester and Math MSc students.

Module Citizen Science as a Research Approach. An E-learning Course
06SM721o477 / Module

Description:

General description:
«Citizen Science» (CS) ist ein umbrella term. Dieser beschreibt Forschungsansätze, in denen nicht-Wissenschaftler:innen (sogenannte citizen scientists) als Mitforschende in wissenschaftliche Forschungsprojekte einbezogen werden.
Die Spannbreite von CS-Projekten ist gross. Sie reicht von punktuellem Einbezug zur Datenerhebung bis hin zur partizipativen Ko-Kreation von Projekten und Ko-Produktion von Wissen. Das Modul bietet eine Einführung in den Forschungsansatz Citizen Science mittels konkreter Projektbeispiele aus unterschiedlichen Disziplinen. Der Schwerpunkt liegt im Selbstlernen per E-Learning; es gibt zwei Blockveranstaltungen vor Ort.
Interaktiv diskutieren wir Ziele und Funktionen, Art und Intensität sowie Herausforderungen der praktischen Umsetzung im Feld.
Darüber hinaus setzen wir Citizen Science in Bezug zu Kommunikation im Allgemeinen sowie Wissenschaftskommunikation im Besonderen, sowie Open Science und transdisziplinärer Forschung. Das Modul soll zur Reflexion darüber anregen, wie eine Wissensproduktion aussehen könnte, die sich durch grössere Offenheit und Teilhabemöglichkeiten von nicht-Wissenschaftler:innen auszeichnet.

ECTS: 1

Notes:
Die Veranstaltung findet als blended-learning Veranstaltung statt. Sie besteht aus E-learning Einheiten, zwei halbtägigen Präsenzveranstaltungen und praktischen Übungen.

Learning Outcome:
Die Teilnehmenden können grundlegende Konzepte und Fragen im Bereich Citizen Science nennen, erkennen Citizen Science Projekte und können sie in Bezug auf ihren Grad an Partizipation charakterisieren.
Sie kennen Chancen und Herausforderungen von Citizen Science Projekten und können verschiedene Typen von Citizen Science Projekten in Bezug auf ihren Nutzen für Forschende und Bürger*innen reflektieren.
Sie haben eine erste Vorstellung davon, wie Forschung und die Lösung gesellschaftlicher Probleme miteinander verbunden werden können.

Zudem können sie die Zusammenhänge zu Wissenschaftskommunikation, Open Science und transdiziplinärer Forschung herstellen und können Theorie und Praxis von Citizen Science einem weiteren Umfeld erklären.

Module MAT 731 Seminar Knots, Braids and Quantum Symmetries
07SMMAT731 / Seminar

Description:

General description:
Over the past 40 years, knots and braids have emerged as central mathematical structures, providing a bridge between the physics of quantum computing, statistical mechanics, and field theory, and the mathematics of topology, algebra, and category theory. Students will explore these connections from both perspectives.
We will study the mathematical theory of braid groups, their representations, and how these gives rise to the notion of "quantum symmetries". From there, we will explore topological models and their connections with knot theory, including quantum invariants like the Jones polynomial. In the second half of the seminar, we will discuss physical applications, focusing on topological quantum computing and quantum information. We will emphasize concrete examples and computations, drawing mainly from basic linear algebra and group theory.

ECTS: 3

Notes:
Mathematical Fields:

Algebra & Topology/Geometry

Learning Outcome:
By the end of the seminar, students will be able to:
    • Rigorously explain the topological notions of knots and braids
    • Compute simple knot invariants like the Jones polynomial from a knot diagram
    • Understand the structure and properties of braid group representations
    • Describe the core principles of topological quantum computation using anyons
    • Analyze simple error-protection systems in quantum computation
    • Connect algebraic and topological structures to modern quantum information theory
    • Give a compelling mathematical presentation and give constructive peer feedback

Target Groups:
Math BSc and minor students from 3rd semester

Course Materials:	For the mathematics of knots and braids, the seminar will follow these two works:
	    • Colin C. Adams, “The Knot Book: An Elementary introduction to the Mathematical Theory of Knots”, American Mathematical Society, 2004 (freely available from the author’s website)
	    • Joan S. Birman, “Braids, Links and Mapping Class Groups”, Annals of Mathematics Studies, Princeton University Press, 1975
	For an introduction to quantum computing, the seminar will follow the first work below as a core resource and the second as an optional resource for extra mathematical exposure:
	    • Jiannis K. Pachos, “Introduction to Topological Quantum Computation”, Cambridge University Press, 2012 (freely available from the author’s website)
	    • Michael K. Freedman, Alexei Kitaev, Michael J. Larsen, and Zhenghan Wang, “Topological Quantum Computation”, Bulletin of the AMS, Vol. 40, No. 1, pages 31-38, 2002 (freely available as arXiv:quant-ph/0101025v2)

Module MAT 744 Seminar Coarse Geometry
07SMMAT744 / Seminar

Description:

General description:
Coarse Geometry is a branch of mathematics that studies the large-scale structure of metric spaces, focusing on properties that are independent of small, localized details. Instead of using the Analysis I epsilon-delta arguments, we focus on concepts that become meaningful only when you look from “a distance”
At the end of this course, you will learn how to re-examine familiar spaces, like the Euclidean R^2 or its subgroup Z^2 (or other more complicated groups like free groups on 2 generators, or even “fundamental groups of surfaces”, (if you know what they are from Topology)
As a potential topic (and if students are interested), we may discuss Random Walks on Gromov Hyperbolic groups. (This needs basic measure theory, covered in Analysis III)
To follow the lectures, one only needs to know what is an abstract group, and what is a metric space (thought in Algebra 1 and Analysis respectively) familiarity with words like 'hyperbolic metric' and 'geodesics' are all helpful to gain the most out of the lectures, but are not necessary.

ECTS: 3

Notes:
Mathematical Fields:

Geometry/Topology/Algebra

Learning Outcome:
    1. Understanding what a Cayley graph is for a (possibly infinite) group Gamma
    2. Understanding what it means for a group to be Gromov Hyperbolic. This might take a while since there are a few equivalent definitions, all of them pointing to the same geometric intuition: “Triangles are thin”!
    3. Understanding the (Gromov-) boundary for a (Gromov-) hyperbolic group

Target Groups:
2nd and 3rd year B.Sc. and M.Sc. Math students

Course Materials:	Our main reference is “On hyperbolic groups after Gromov”, Chapters 2, 4, 5, 7, see here for an online version (which is an English translation of some of the chapters of the French book ‘Sur les Groupes Hyperboliques d’après Mikhael Gromov’ by E. Ghys & P. de la Harpe) If there is interest from the class, I (or any other student who’s familiar with measure theory) can cover a few of G. Tiozzo’s lecture-notes on Random Walks on Hyperbolic Groups

Module Language Immersion: Slavic Languages Translation Workshop
06SM480o014 / Module

Description:

General description:
In jeder Sitzung wird ein Übersetzungsprojekt - entweder selbst mitgebracht oder gemeinsam mit der Kursleiterin ausgewählt - vorgestellt und besprochen. Anhand der konkreten Übersetzungsarbeit werden Strategien für unterschiedliche Arbeitsetappen erprobt: übersetzungsrelevante Textanalyse, Recherche, Herstellung der ersten Fassung, Selbstlektorat, Lektorat von fremden Texten, Einarbeitung von Änderungsvorschlägen, Begründung von Übersetzungsentscheidungen, Verfremdungsmethoden, Herstellung der Endfassung. Ausserdem werden grundlegende Fragen behandelt, wie Figuren- und Stimmenanalyse, Rhythmus des Textes, das Spannungsfeld zwischen Treue, Freiheit und Äquivalenz, der Umgang mit Mündlichkeit und Schriftlichkeit, (Un-)Übersetzbarkeit, gattungsspezifische Herausforderungen, Erzählperspektive, Körperlichkeit von Figuren, die Übertragung von Dialekten und Soziolekten usw.

ECTS: 3

Notes:
Das Modul ist offen für Studierende aller am Slavischen Seminar / ISOS angebotenen slavischen Sprachen. Die Studierenden wählen für ihr eigenes Übersetzungsprojekt jeweils eine slavische Sprache, in die oder aus der sie übersetzen. Die Zielsprache der Übersetzung sollte auf muttersprachlichem Niveau sein.

Learning Outcome:
Die Studierenden können Strategien für unterschiedliche Arbeitsetappen des Übersetzens anwenden und begründete Übersetzungsentscheidungen treffen. Durch die Analyse komplexer sprachlicher Strukturen und deren Übertragung vertiefen die Studierenden den aktiven Wortschatz, die Kenntnis verschiedener sprachlicher Register sowie stilistischer Nuancen.

Module Seminar: IBM watsonx Agentic AI Challenge (MSc)
03SM22MIS107 / Seminar

Description:

General description:
In this course, students will learn how to solve real-world business problems with agentic AI. The course project involves group work, where each group of 4 to 5 members will select a real use case from a list provided by various companies. They will then prepare and present a solution for their use case. Students will gain practical experience with business-ready agentic AI tools and cloud services through this project. They will explore and experiment with potential solutions and integrate them into a system to solve the problems posed by their use case. The will report on their results experiences following scientific standards.

ECTS: 6

Notes:
The allocation of students to this seminar will be done through the department via the new module booking tool. If there is a shortage of seats, we will give preference to students that are majoring in informatics and have not yet attended a seminar and are already far in their studies. Please note that we cannot guarantee a spot.

More information on the process can be found on our website: https://www.ifi.uzh.ch/en/studies/seminar.html.

Application for this seminar is via the new module booking tool: https://studentservices.uzh.ch/uzh/launchpad

Lectures: Tuesdays, 18:15-20:00, recorded, held online. The students need to come to the IBM office for the kick-off event and the final presentations. The kick-off event, where industry partners will present use cases, will take place on February 17.

Learning Outcome:
-    Understand agentic AI applications in business, agentic architectures/paradigms, and select the right approach for context.
-    Design and implement solutions that leverage functionalities such as RAG or tool calling to improve accuracy, capability, and performance.
-    Build prototypes using IBM AI products
-    Reflect on their results and experiences in systematic manner and convincingly present results to real clients

Target Groups:
Masterstudents

Course Materials:	Technical Scripts (Labs) and Presentations.
Merkmale:	Target Group: Suitable for English Speakers

Module M3L 622 Practical Scientific Computing
07SMM3L622 / Block Course

Description:

General description:
This two-day block course is designed for doctoral students who want to improve their practical skills in large-scale CPU and GPU-based computations.

The course is divided into four parts:
1. Provides essential knowledge to navigate the landscape of hardware and tools commonly used in resource-intensive scientific tasks, with a focus on the infrastructure available at UZH.
2. Offers a practical introduction to best practices for project structure and coding style to facilitate the use of the previously introduced tools and improve code quality in general.
3. Presents an in-depth guide to efficiently working with SLURM and related services at UZH, including data management and considerations for effective job sizing and scheduling.
4. Introduces cloud-based computational approaches and how to use the existing OpenStack cloud at UZH efficiently in computational projects.

Each section includes hands-on examples and exercises, providing practical experience and ensuring that students can effectively apply their new skills in real-world scenarios.

A maximum of 25 PhD students can participate.

ECTS: 1

Learning Outcome:
By the end of this two-day block course, participants will be equipped with the skills to effectively utilize the hardware and tools available at UZH for large-scale CPU and GPU-based computations. They will understand how to navigate the infrastructure at UZH, implement best practices for project structure and coding style, efficiently work with SLURM and related services, and leverage cloud-based computational approaches. These skills will enable participants to efficiently use available resources, enhancing their ability to manage and execute resource-intensive computational projects.

Module Der Wohlstand der Nationen (S) (The Wealth of Nations)
03SM22BO0151 / Seminar

Description:

General description:
Im Zentrum des Seminars steht die Auseinandersetzung mit dem Buch «Der Wohlstand der Nationen» («The Wealth of Nations») von Adam Smith, das im Laufe des Semesters von allen Studierenden im Detail gelesen und diskutiert wird. Jede Woche präsentiert ein*e Teilnehmer*in einen Abschnitt des Buchs. Es wird erwartet, dass die Vorträge über eine reine Wiedergabe des Inhalts des Buchs hinausgehen. Insbesondere soll geklärt werden, inwieweit die Einsichten des Buchs auf heutige Volkswirtschaften anwendbar sind. Ausserdem wird zu diskutieren sein, inwieweit moderne Theorien ein verbessertes Verständnis ökonomischer Zusammenhänge liefern als die klassischen Vorgänger.

ECTS: 3

Notes:
Das Seminar ist auf eine Teilnehmerzahl von 12 begrenzt.

Persönliche Teilnahme an allen Sitzungen ist verpflichtend.

Bitte beachten Sie die unterschiedlichen Modulbuchungsfristen (Möglichkeit zur Seminaranmeldung endet vor Semesterstart).

Die Zuteilung der Studierenden zu diesem Seminar erfolgt über das Modulbuchungstool. Sollten die Plätze nicht ausreichen, werden Studierende mit dem Hauptfach Volkswirtschaftslehre, die noch kein Seminar besucht haben und bereits weit im Studium sind, bevorzugt. Bitte beachten Sie, dass wir keinen Platz garantieren können.

Die Anmeldung zu diesem Seminar erfolgt über das Modulbuchungstool https://studentservices.uzh.ch/uzh/launchpad

Das Seminar findet im Raum SOF-G-21, Schönberggasse 1 statt (ausser am 7.5.26 / 21.5.26).

Module Programming Projects in Computational Science and Engineering (L&E)
03SM22MI0051 / Lecture with Practical Exercises

Description:

General description:
This course provides an understanding of a wide range of computational problems and implementation of mathematical algorithms in C. The emphasis is on problem solving, and the course offers multiple projects concerning applications in science and engineering.

ECTS: 3

Learning Outcome:
-    Students will develop an understanding of formulating engineering problems and the numerical methods used to solve them. For example: deformation of trusses, image analysis and compression, applying neural networks to solve differential equations.
-    Students will gain experience in implementing algorithms for software development.
-    Students will explore a variety of software libraries and tools for interactive 2D/3D viewing and manipulation, mesh generation, solving systems of large sparse systems.

Target Groups:
MSc Students

Course Materials:	The textbook of the course is “Programming Projects in C for Students of Engineering, Science and Mathematics” by Rouben Rostamian.
Merkmale:	Target Group: Suitable for English Speakers
Responsible instructor:	Renato Pajarola

Requirements:

Prerequisites:	Basic programming in C or completion of Informatics II
Assessment:	The performance assessments will be based on the projects related to the students’ research interest. The students plan and design a project, write and test code, prepare technical documentation and share code and results. - 20% plan a project, 13.03.2026 - 80% written technical report (max 10 page) and final presentation
Grading Scale:	1-6 Quarter Grades Given

Module Decarbonization Data Lab (S)
03SM22MO0272 / Seminar

Description:

General description:
This introductory course familiarizes students with data-driven methodologies for decarbonization, primarily randomized controlled trials for causal inference. By combining theoretical knowledge and practical application, students learn how evidence-based sustainability solutions can be developed, tested and evaluated, and gain an understanding of the fundamentals of climate neutrality for the University of Zurich.

ECTS: 3

Notes:
The topics for potential research projects can be found on OLAT. Kindly apply for the course with a succinct application message indicating your motivation and knowledge for the topic you apply for (unless you want to develop your own topic yourself), your CV and what you seek to learn in the course.

Applications via e-mail to nils.handler@uzh.ch by February 10, 2026. This seminar is limited to 20 participants.

Learning Outcome:
Upon completion of the module, students will be able to:
•   Independently plan, conduct and evaluate randomised controlled trials (RCTs) for creating causal evidence fields such as campus decarbonization, energy, climate and development
•   Make evidence-based decisions in the field of sustainable energy use.
•   Develop practice-oriented solutions for the decarbonisation of organisations.
•   Clearly communicate scientific findings and formulate methodologically sound recommendations for action.

Target Groups:
MA students in the Economics, Business and Sustainability programmes.

Course Materials:	• Lecture notes and multimedia learning materials via OLAT • Recommended literature will be made available online. • We will invite external speakers to present their research in-person or virtually to enhance the student learning process • The course students will have exclusive access to the behavioral economics AI tool «BEATRIX» developed by FehrAdvice, building on the research of Ernst Fehr
Merkmale:	Target Group: Suitable for English Speakers
Responsible instructor:	David Hémous

Requirements:

Prior Knowledge:	Basic knowledge of economic experiments, statistics and data analysis constitute strong assets for the course, but are not required
Assessment:	• Final Project (80%), in groups or individually - Final assessment due May 27th • In class participation, including peer review of classmate projects (20%) • Please note that attendance is mandatory and unexcused absence requires formal excuse in writing

Module Topics in Contract Economics (S)
03SM22MO0273 / Seminar

Description:

General description:
Contracts are where economics meets real life because they show how people try to protect investment when the future is uncertain. They are central to economic exchange since they shape incentives and define who bears which risks. Standard contract theory gives us a clear benchmark for how agreements should be designed when effort cannot be observed or information is private. Real-world contracts often depart from this benchmark. They remain brief when key actions are hard to verify or when formal enforcement is costly or unreliable. This gap between theory and practice motivates the core questions of the course. We ask when incompleteness is a constraint imposed by information and enforcement limits, and when it is an intentional choice because trust, reputation, or fairness norms can discipline behavior.
This seminar introduces students to the economic analysis of contracts with a focus on three connected literatures. We begin with core models of incentives and incomplete contracting. We then examine how behavioral motives such as fairness, reciprocity, and control aversion can change both contractual design and contractual performance. We finally study relational contracts and informal enforcement, paying special attention to settings where legal institutions are weak and repeated interaction or community-based mechanisms help sustain cooperation.

ECTS: 3

Notes:
This seminar is limited to 12 participants and requires an application. Allocation is handled via the module booking tool.
If demand exceeds capacity, priority is given to Economics majors.

Important: Seminar booking periods differ from regular lecture module booking periods. Attendance is mandatory at all sessions.

More information on the process can be found on our website:
https://www.econ.uzh.ch/en/study/undergraduate/ma/seminar.html

Application for this seminar is the module booking tool:https://studentservices.uzh.ch/uzh/launchpad

Learning Outcome:
This seminar has two goals. The first is to familiarize students with central concepts and methods in contract theory and related applied literatures. The second is to strengthen students' ability to extract and communicate insights from original research papers in economics. Students will learn how to summarize a paper's main question, explain the approach used to answer it, and interpret results with an eye toward what they imply for contract design in practice.

Module Simulation of Negotiations: Integrating Science and Diplomacy
06SM615o552 / Module

Description:

General description:
Das Modul fördert vertieftes Fachwissen in einem ausgewählten Forschungsfeld. Es vermittelt die Kompetenz, zu einem ausgewählten Thema Fragestellungen aus Sicht der Politikwissenschaft zu entwickeln und zu analysieren. Im Zentrum des Seminars stehen die politikwissenschaftliche und normative Analyse, das trennscharfe Analysieren der Begriffe in ihrer Anwendung auf empirische Studien und das Begründen politischer Sachverhalte. Die unterschiedlichen Themen werden theoretisch und empirisch vertieft.

ECTS: 6

Learning Outcome:
Fachkompetenzen: Verortung von Argumenten und empirischen Studien in den relevanten wissenschaftlichen Debatten zu einem ausgewählten Thema; Methodenkompetenzen: wissenschaftliches Schreiben und Argumentieren; Verfassen eines schriftlichen Beitrags (Policy Paper, wissenschaftliche Abhandlung, etc.) Selbstkompetenzen: Definition eigener inhaltlicher Schwerpunkte, Selbsteinschätzung, Planungsfähigkeit.

Languages of Instruction:
Deutsch/Englisch - siehe Sprache der Lehrveranstaltung(en)

Merkmale:	Target Group: Suitable for English Speakers
Responsible instructor:	Simon Bornschier

Requirements:

Assessment:	Portfolio --- To obtain the 6 ECTS credits for this course, students must meet the following conditions: I. Active participation in class (60%) 1. Attend all seminar sessions either in person or via videoconference and actively participate in discussions. If you cannot attend a session, please notify the teaching assistant in advance. Excessive absences will be penalized. 2. Participate in person in the two-day simulation exercise. 3. Do the required readings. II. Texts to be submitted before and after the simulation (40%) 1. In preparation for the simulation, students will prepare a half-page summary of their negotiating mandate and draft brief statements, if possible, in collaboration with the representatives of the respective countries. 2. After the simulation, a report (1500 words) and a press release are to be submitted. Bitte beachten: Alle Elemente des Portfolios müssen absolviert werden. Wird ein Element nicht absolviert, gilt das gesamte Portfolio als nicht absolviert und das Modul damit als nicht bestanden. Please note: All elements of the portfolio must be completed. If an element is not completed, the entire portfolio is deemed not to have been completed and the module thus failed.

Module BME 321 Project design, workflow management and causal inference
07SMBME321 / Block Course

Description:

General description:
Sound biological research relies on workflows that are transparent, reproducible, and robust. This module trains students to design and implement such workflows using freely available software tools. Participants will learn core principal of i) structured project organisation, ii) version control and remote collaboration (Git and GitHub), iii) literate programming with a markdown-based authoring system (Quarto), and iv) basic causal reasoning using Directed Acyclic Graphs (DAGs). All tools will be taught within the integrated development environment of RStudio.

ECTS: 6

Learning Outcome:
By the end of the module, students can design, document, and publish a fully reproducible and collaborative research project from research question and raw data to final report.

Module Computer Vision for Automated Driving (L)
03SM22MI0052 / Course

Description:

General description:
This course introduces the core computer vision techniques and algorithms that autonomous vehicles use to perceive the semantics and geometry of their driving environment, localize themselves in it, and predict its dynamic evolution. Emphasis is placed on techniques tailored for real-world settings, such as multi-modal fusion, domain-adaptive and outlier-aware architectures, and multi-agent methods.

ECTS: 3

Learning Outcome:
Students will learn about the fundamentals of autonomous vehicles and of the computer vision models and methods these vehicles use to analyze their environment and navigate themselves in it. Students will be presented with state-of-the-art representations and algorithms for semantic, geometric and temporal visual reasoning in automated driving.

After completing this course, students will be able to:
1. understand the operating principles of visual sensors in autonomous cars
2. differentiate between the core architectural paradigms and components of modern visual perception models and describe their logic and the role of their parameters
3. systematically categorize the main visual tasks related to automated driving and understand the primary representations and algorithms which are used for solving them
4. critically analyze and evaluate current research in the area of computer vision for autonomous cars

Target Groups:
MA-students in AI

Course Materials:	Lecture slides are provided in PDF format.
Merkmale:	Target Group: Suitable for English Speakers
Responsible instructor:	Davide Scaramuzza

Requirements:

Prior Knowledge:	Students are expected to have a solid basic knowledge of linear algebra, multivariate calculus, and probability theory, and a basic background in computer vision and machine learning.
Assessment:	Written exam (100%), on 16.06.2026, 16:00-18:00. Aids: one A4 sheet of paper, simple non-programmable calculator.

Module M3L 120 Database Systems
07SMM3L120 / Course

Description:

General description:
Comprehensive introduction to the foundations of database systems. The course is based on the relational data model and covers the following topics: relational data model, relational algebra and calculus, SQL, relational database design, physical data organization.

This course is a shortened version of the course in Database Systems, specifically for AMML students for 4 ECTS. Contrary to the 6 ECTS version, Lectures are only taking place until April 24 2026 in spring 26.

ECTS: 4

Notes:
We strongly recommend to book the 6 ECTS version Database Systems (L+E) (Datenbanksysteme) (03SM22BI0009) (https://studentservices.uzh.ch/uzh/anonym/vvz/?sap-language=EN&sap-ui-language=EN#/details/2025/004/SM/51112004)

Attention: For both modules the booking and cancellation deadlines of the economic faculty and the institute for informatics apply!

This module takes place on-site. The lectures are not streamed and no podcasts are provided. Annotated slides with solutions to the exercise questions are provided.

Learning Outcome:
The goal is a solid understanding of the foundations of database systems; to understand how these are implemented in concrete systems; and gaining experience in working with database systems.

Target Groups:
BSc Major AMML

Course Materials:	Lecture slides. The course is based on the textbook Fundamentals of Database Systems, 7th Edition, Ramez Elmasri and Shamkant B. Navathe, Pearson, 2016.
Merkmale:
Responsible instructor:	Michael Hanspeter Böhlen

Requirements:

Prior Knowledge:	Knowledge of basic set theory and logic. Basic knowledge of a procedural programming language (e.g., Python).
Assessment:	The examination of the module will take place onsite as written "paper and pencil" exam at "Messe Zürich" in Oerlikon. Details about the location and time can be found here: https://www.oec.uzh.ch/de/studies/exams/dates/assessment.html Further specifics are communicated via Email

Module Controversies in Game Theory
06SM240o031 / Module

Description:

General description:
Controversies in Game Theory' consists of 5 course units that provide an in-depth introduction to issues in game theory motivated by real-world issues related to the tensions that may result from interactions in groups, where individual and collective interests may conflict. The course integrates theory from various disciplines.

ECTS: 6

Notes:
Block course organized in an intense one-week lecture program followed by a graded group project.

Learning Outcome:
Students are encouraged to think about human interactions, and in particular in the context of game theory, in a way that is traditionally not covered in introductory game theory courses. The aim of the course is to teach students the complex conditional interdependencies in group interactions.

Module Applied Bayesian and Causal Modeling
06SM274o703 / Module

Description:

General description:
This course is an introduction to the use of statistical models to answer scientific questions. It is aimed at graduate students and researchers in the interdisciplinary field of Evolutionary Language Science. We will cover the fundamentals of two core subjects: (i) applied Bayesian statistics and (ii) causal inference methods. The goal is to develop a strong command of these fundamentals, which apply broadly across research areas, and learn how to use Monte Carlo methods for estimation and prediction.

ECTS: 3

Learning Outcome:
Students will gain hands-on experience and foundational knowledge in applied Bayesian modeling, Monte Carlo techniques, and causal inference.

Languages of Instruction:
Englisch

Merkmale:	Target Group: Suitable for English Speakers
Responsible instructor:	Alban Moor

Requirements:

Prerequisites:	Students are expected to have a level of algebra equivalent to that of a Swiss high school graduate. They should be familiar with descriptive and inferential statistics at the bachelor's level and have foundational experience with R (programming language). Additionally, students should be familiar with fundamental probability concepts, such as random variables, PDFs, PMFs, and CDFs.
Assessment:	Portfolio: exercises 75%, short presentation 25% --- (1) exercises: weekly homework to check understanding of the material (2) short presentation: a 2-3 minute summary or reflection on the week's material, including one or two discussion questions; presenters are chosen pseudo-randomly

Module PhD Publication Workshop
06SMG22o102 / Module

Description:

General description:
The workshop aims to give doctoral students the opportunity to discuss either a draft chapter of their doctoral thesis or a draft of research article with experienced scientists and other doctoral students. Prof. Dr. Hirohisa Takenoshita (Keio University) will participate in the workshop as a special guest. The goal is to provide doctoral students with useful feedback on their drafts so that they can improve their chapters and papers. Doctoral students should submit their drafts, which should be between 5,000 and 10,000 words in length, via OLAT by March 6. The drafts will be distributed to all participants prior to the workshop. During the workshop, each participant will provide oral feedback to another participant on their paper or chapter.

Module Artificial Intelligence: Technology and Law (L)
03SM22MI0053 / Course

Description:

General description:
Machines are increasingly capable of performing tasks considered to require "intelligence" if performed by human beings. Recent developments in the field of Artificial Intelligence (AI) are fueled by novel data processing technologies, ever growing amounts of data, and increased computing power. AI systems come with great promises and opportunities, but they also raise concerns in many respects and they pose significant challenges to the application of today's legal order. Accordingly, regulators around the glo arecurrently investigating if and how the law should be adapted to meet these challenges.
This course provides participants with an interdisciplinary view on AI by focusing on the capabilities of AI systems and the regulatory as well as technical responses in Switzerland and Europe. In doing so, it also highlights some of the fundamental differences in preventing undesired outcomes in law andcomputer science and challenges all participants to reflect on practical solutions for the future.

ECTS: 6

Notes:
course website: https://www.ius.uzh.ch/de/staff/professorships/alphabetical/thouvenin/lv/AI2026.html

Learning Outcome:
Students will gain a basic understanding of the technical and legal foundations of AI and will learn how to interact and achieve scientific output in an interdisciplinary team and how to communicate their findings to a cross-disciplinary audience.

Target Groups:
Master students in Informatics

Languages of Instruction:

Module Seminar: AI Security – Basics and Advanced Topics (MSc)
03SM22MIS108 / Seminar

Description:

General description:
We will discuss the different vulnerabilities of AI: at training and inference time, mostly focusing on vision problems, but also on other tasks like Language Generation or Autonomous Driving. We then discuss the real-world relevance of AI security.

ECTS: 3

Notes:
The allocation of students to this seminar will be done through the department via the new module booking tool. If there is a shortage of seats, we will give preference to students that are majoring in informatics and have not yet attended a seminar and are already far in their studies. Please note that we cannot guarantee a spot.

More information on the process can be found on our website: https://www.ifi.uzh.ch/en/studies/seminar.html

Application for this seminar is via the new module booking tool: https://studentservices.uzh.ch/uzh/launchpad

Learning Outcome:
An overview on how to threat model AI, what attacks are possible, what fundamental problems are within AI security are.

Module BW: Block course in St. Andrews
01SM15LS000 / Block Course

Description:

General description:
In zwei Blockkursen (NT/AT) befassen wir uns mit der vielschichtigen Thematik der frühjüdischen und frühchristlichen Apokalyptik. Zunächst behandeln wir frühjüdische und frühchristliche Literatur der ersten beiden Jahrhunderte n. Chr. (Teil NT), anschließend die Anfänge apokalyptischen Denkens in der Hebräischen Bibel und den wirkmächtigen Schriften der zwischentestamentlichen Zeit (Teil AT).
Für den NT-Teil reisen Zürcher Studierende und Doktorierende vom 18.–20. Juni 2026 nach St Andrews, für den AT-Teil empfangen wir im Januar 2027 Studierende und Doktorierende aus St Andrews in Zürich. Die Blockkurse sind nur kombiniert buchbar und ergeben zusammen 3 ECTS. Die Seminareinheiten finden auf Englisch statt und werden von Dozierenden aus Zürich und St Andrews durchgeführt.

Module CFA Challenge training and preparation (S)
03SM22MO0274 / Seminar

Description:

General description:
A preparation seminar for the CFA Challenge, held in the fall semester, equips student teams with essential skills to analyse and value a publicly traded company. The seminar culminates in a professional equity research report and presentation, aligned with CFA Institute standards.
https://www.cfainstitute.org/insights/events/research-challenge

The seminar covers the core elements of institutional equity research, including industry analysis, competitive positioning, financial performance, valuation, and ESG considerations.

Students develop a clear investment thesis supported by quantitative modelling and qualitative analysis.

Key components include:
- financial statement integration to assess profitability, liquidity, leverage, and free cash flow generation;
-valuation modelling using DCF and comparable company analysis with sensitivity testing and scenarios analysis;
-best practices in equity research writing and presentation, including risk assessment and investment recommendations;

Report Structure and Presentation:
Best practices for writing concise equity research reports (executive summary, company overview, financials, valuation, risks, Investment recommendation).

ECTS: 3

Module Introduction to Economic Inequality and Poverty topics (S)
03SM22BO0152 / Seminar

Description:

General description:
This seminar course offers an introduction to topics related to Economic Inequality and Poverty.

The course has two parts. The first part (1st quarter, weeks 1-7) is a lecture-based introduction to the field. In the second part (weeks 9-14), students will present on topics covered by the literature for this course.

The course covers topics in economic inequality including attitudes towards inequality and support for redistribution, gender, household formation and decision making, and the measurement of inequality across individuals and groups of individuals. The course will also cover an introduction to the topic of poverty. We will discuss how to measure poverty and use and compare numbers within and across countries. We will also discuss the concept of poverty traps, and whether we have signs that such traps exist in the world today.

ECTS: 6

Notes:
This seminar is limited to 30 participants and requires an application. Allocation is handled via the module booking tool.
If demand exceeds capacity, priority is given to Economics majors.

Important: Seminar booking periods differ from regular lecture module booking periods. Attendance is mandatory at all sessions.

Active participation is encouraged and will constitute one of the determinants of the grade.

Application for this seminar is the module booking tool:https://studentservices.uzh.ch/uzh/launchpad

All sessions in SOF-G-21, Schönberggasse 1.

Learning Outcome:
The lectures will be based on the articles that will be listed in the syllabus on OLAT. The students are expected to read the relevant literature before class, so that we can discuss the content in class. After class, the students are expected to have understood the core part of the relevant readings.

Merkmale:	Target Group: Suitable for English Speakers

Module Assessment Center
06SM200o558 / Module

Description:

General description:
Diese Lehrveranstaltung beschäftigt sich mit Fragen, zur Gestaltung, Durchführung und Qualitätskontrolle von Assessment Centern. Der wissenschaftliche Hintergrund und die Grenzen dieser eignungsdiagnostischen Methode werden diskutiert. Ein Schwerpunkt der Lehrveranstaltung liegt auf der praktischen Anwendung des erworbenen Wissens. Die Studierenden entwickeln selbstständig verhaltensbasierte Übungen zur Beurteilung des Führungs- bzw. Fachkräfteverhaltens. Darüber hinaus lernen die Studierenden Ansätze um dieses eignungsdiagnostische Instrument zu evaluieren. Die Lehrveranstaltung richtet sich insbesondere an Studierende, die sich für die Themen Führungs- und Fachkräfteauswahl interessieren und gleichermassen von fundiertem, theoretischen Wissen und praktischen Erfahrungen profitieren möchten.

ECTS: 4

Learning Outcome:
Die Studierenden erlangen vertiefte Kenntnisse zur Assessment Center Methode. Die Studierenden werden dazu befähigt, sich kritisch mit dieser Methode der Eignungsdiagnostik auseinanderzusetzen und entsprechende Verfahren und Konzepte zur erarbeiten und anzuwenden. Die Studierenden lernen durch Teamarbeit, kooperative und kontroverse Diskussionen gemeinsam mit Lehrenden und Lernenden zu führen, arbeitsteilig gemeinsam eine Aufgabenstellung zu bearbeiten und die Ergebnisse zu präsentieren.

Module Technology & Innovation Strategy in the Age of Platforms, Ecosystems and Artificial Intelligence (S)
03SMDOEC1256 / Seminar

Description:

General description:
This doctoral seminar examines the major streams of management research in technology and innovation strategy, with an emphasis on how contemporary shifts in platforms, ecosystems, and artificial intelligence are reshaping firms, industries, and the nature of value creation. We will build from foundational theories of technological change, industry evolution, and innovation strategy, while extending them to analyze emerging phenomena such as multisided platforms, innovation ecosystems, and AI-enabled technological change.
Throughout the seminar, we will explore how new technologies and organizational forms both challenge and enrich established theoretical frameworks. Particular attention will be given to the strategic choices firms make as technologies evolve; the coordination, governance, and value-creation dynamics within ecosystems; and the performance implications of platform competition and AI adoption. We will also consider how these forces influence entrepreneurial entry, scaling, and industry transformation.

Notes:
The number of participants is limited.
To apply for participation with your CV and transcripts by February 15.02., 2026 the very latest by sending the material as one PDF package via email to tim@business.uzh.ch.
The seminar takes place on site. Attendance is compulsory.

The seminar will take place in room SOC-E-010.

Learning Outcome:
The goal of the course is to equip doctoral students with a deep understanding of the interplay between technologies, organizations, and markets, and to identify high-potential opportunities for scholarly contribution. By engaging classic and contemporary research—including frontier work on platforms, ecosystems, and AI—students will develop the analytical tools, theoretical grounding, and research sensibilities necessary to advance academic discourse on technology strategy and innovation in today’s rapidly changing environment

Target Groups:
PhD Students

Course Materials:	The list of readings for the seminar will be distributed electronically to participants before the course.
Merkmale:	Target Group: Suitable for English Speakers
Responsible instructor:	Anja Schulze

Requirements:

Prerequisites:	Master’s Degree
Assessment:	Based on your contribution to the seminar discussion and assignments (see syllabus (https://www.business.uzh.ch/en/research/professorships/tim-new/lehre.html) for more information).

Module PhD Course: Empirical Political Economy (L)
03SMDOEC1257 / Course

Description:

General description:
This doctoral-level course examines empirical evidence on the determinants of “good governance,” including accountability, responsiveness, corruption, and institutional performance, and how these shape outcomes such as health, education, and economic growth. The course is evidence-focused (not a theory course) and trains students to critically evaluate research designs, measurement, and identification strategies in modern political economy. A second major goal is to strengthen research skills as both a consumer and producer of empirical work: students practice presenting and critiquing papers and complete a short empirical writing exercise. Topics include political representation and rights, mass media and propaganda, internet/social media and political behavior, monitoring and corruption, and laws, identity, and social norms.

ECTS: 2

Notes:
Active participation and advance reading are expected.

Venue: SOF-G-21

Learning Outcome:
By the end of the course, students will be able to: (i) critically assess empirical political economy research (measurement, identification, threats to validity, interpretation); (ii) present and defend an empirical paper and provide constructive critique; (iii) connect empirical findings to governance and policy questions; and (iv) design and write a short empirical analysis in a clear, journal-style format.

Target Groups:
PhD Students, 2nd Year

Course Materials:	Research articles (provided electronically), instructor handouts/slides, and guidance for paper presentations and writing exercise.
Merkmale:	Target Group: Suitable for English Speakers

Module Anxiety Disorders – Theories, diagnosis and evidence-based treatments
06SM200o404y / Module

Description:

General description:
This block course offers an intensive overview of anxiety disorders from a clinical psychology perspective. The course begins with foundational concepts, including the distinction between fear and anxiety, the adaptive function of anxiety, and current conceptual models.
The main focus is on anxiety disorders as classified in the DSM-5 (e.g., generalized anxiety disorder, panic disorder, agoraphobia, social anxiety disorder, specific phobias). For each disorder, prevalence, etiological and transdiagnostic models, and evidence-based psychological and pharmacological treatment options are discussed. Diagnostic approaches are critically compared with the ICD-11 framework.
Beyond diagnostic criteria, the course emphasizes contemporary research and clinical practice. Students will be introduced to key empirical findings, methodological approaches in anxiety research, and current trends in psychopathology. Ethical considerations in the assessment and treatment of anxiety disorders, such as treatment accessibility, cultural sensitivity, and the responsible use of emerging interventions, will be discussed throughout the course. Finally, the course explores the societal impact of anxiety disorders, including stigma, help-seeking behavior, and public mental health perspectives. The block format combines lectures, discussion of empirical studies, practical activities and case-based examples to support applied understanding.

ECTS: 4

Learning Outcome:
By the end of this course, students will be able to:

- Define and distinguish fear and anxiety, including their adaptive functions and clinical relevance.
- Describe and classify anxiety disorders according to DSM-5 and ICD-11 diagnostic systems.
- Explain and compare major etiological and transdiagnostic models of anxiety disorders from biological, psychological, and sociocultural perspectives.
- Analyze empirical research findings on anxiety disorders with regard to prevalence, mechanisms, and treatment outcomes.
- Evaluate evidence-based psychological and pharmacological treatments for anxiety disorders using current research evidence.
- Apply ethical principles and stigma-related considerations to clinical case examples involving anxiety and related disorders.

Module Design and Implementation of Interdisciplinary Research
10_1DSID0039 / Seminar

Description:

General description:
This course equips PhD students with the knowledge and skills to design and implement interdisciplinary research projects. Participants will explore the principles, challenges, and opportunities of working across disciplinary boundaries, learning how to integrate diverse perspectives into coherent research plans. Through interactive sessions led by professors from multiple fields, students will gain insights into interdisciplinary thinking, communication strategies, and methods for aligning differing expectations and approaches. Practical exercises and group reflections will help translate theory into actionable guidelines. The course culminates in the development of document, e.g., a framework, for assessing interdisciplinary projects, which can later inform the DSI Strategy Lab 2026.

Course Topics
- Introduction to Interdisciplinary Research
- How Disciplines Think and Communicate
- Navigating Expectations and Collaboration Strategies
- Identifying Collaborators and Building Networks
- Framework for Assessing Interdisciplinary Projects

Teaching Format
Expert inputs: Each session features an invited professor sharing experiences working on interdisciplinary projects. When possible, their project collaborators will also join to provide additional perspectives.

Interactive activities: Group discussions, collaborative exercises, and end-of-session reflections documented in a shared space (e.g., Teams) for collective learning.

Formative assessment: Small groups (2–3 members) produce short outputs after each session. This can include, e.g., a summary of key takeaways from the session, practical checklist or set of guidelines for approaching interdisciplinary research. Groups should document their reflections in a shared space (e.g., Teams) so that all participants can access and build on these insights throughout the course.

ECTS: 1

Notes:
PhD candidates in the DSI Excellence Program and other interested PhD candidates of all disciplines (priority is given to DSI Excellence Program participants).

Learning Outcome:
By the end of the course, participants will be able to:
1.   Analyze the benefits and challenges of interdisciplinary research.
2.   Identify relevant disciplines and potential collaborators for complex research questions.
3.   Apply strategies for effective interdisciplinary communication and collaboration.
4.   Develop a practical framework for assessing the success of interdisciplinary projects.

Course Materials:	Reading material will be provided electronically approx. 1 week before the class starts.

Module Anthropology of Central Asia
06SM721o290 / Module

Description:

General description:
This course provides an introduction to anthropological engagement with the broader region of Central Asia. Geographically, it will cover the five former Soviet republics of Qazaqstan, Uzbekistan, Kyrgyzstan, Tajikistan, and Turkmenistan, as well as the autonomous regions of Xinjiang, Inner Mongolia, and Tibet in the People's Republic of China and the independent state of Mongolia. Occupying a large part of the Eurasian continent, the region shares many characteristics like the co-existence of nomadic and sedentary societies, specific forms of social and political organizations, and the influence of global religious systems such as Islam, Buddhism, and Christianity. In the course of the 20th century, people in Central Asia experienced fundamental changes to their livelihoods as they participated in the construction of socialist regimes and their later dismantling. During the course, we will explore a wide range of economic, social, cultural, and political aspects that are specific to the region. Considering the historical trajectories, the focus will be on the impacts of the post-socialist transformation and contemporary livelihoods of local people. While this has created new economic opportunities and cultural pluralism, in many parts it has also resulted in widespread impoverishment and the resurrection of highly exploitative structures. The course aims to look at these developments from a comparative perspective.

ECTS: 6

Learning Outcome:
By taking part in this seminar, students will become familiar with a range of ethnographic material drawn from various regions of Central Asia. Participation in this seminar allows students to develop the following competencies: a) academic competencies (data analysis, critical thinking, problem solving, comprehension of academic texts, use of academic sources); b) communication competencies (essay writing, review writing, presentation skills); and c) self-management competencies (time management, self-assessment, working independently).

Module Workshop: Double Listening. The Audible an the Inaudible in Contemporary Latin American Cultures
06SMG55o102 / Module

Description:

General description:
Las prácticas de escucha definen un eje clave en la producción estética reciente en A.Latina. Obras que, abren el territorio de lo escrito a agencias sonoras no-humanas en el contexto de la crisis ambiental en curso, allí donde la idea de "lo social" o "lo común" ya no puede restringirse a mundos humanos sino que necesariamente incorpora agencias no-humanas. Dicha escucha implica una reflexión sobre los modos antropocentrados en los que se construyó la figura del "sujeto oral" en el archivo cultural. Y a la vez, la pregunta por la escucha es inseparable de voces y mundos excluidos, constituidos por acustemologías que desafían los archivos del Occidente moderno. Esta "doble escucha" quiere interrogar las reconfiguraciones de lo escrito a partir de políticas de la escucha que iluminan líneas de politización de lo escrito que no descansan sobre pactos culturales previos, y que inyectan un temblor en la aparente solidez y necesariedad del "presente" histórico.

Module Workshop: 1934-1936: Encounters in Madrid Between Miguel Hernández and Pablo Neruda and Their Poetic Sign
06SMG55o103 / Module

Description:

General description:
En junio de1934, Miguel Hernández conoce, en la redacción de la revista Cruz y Raya, a Pablo Neruda, que estaba recién llegado a Madrid desde Barcelona. Se trata del Neruda que ya ha escrito la primera Residencia en la tierra, con una obra difundida desde los Veinte poemas de amor..., y del Hernández que, tras Perito en lunas, y del auto sacramental Quien te ha visto y quién te ve y sombra de lo que eras, escribe una poesía que será preparatoria del gran libro de 1936, El rayo que no cesa. Tras un recorrido por la obra de los dos hasta ese momento, nos planteamos el significado de este encuentro por el que Hernández se sentirá arropado en lo personal, por una amistad segura que comparte con la de Vicente Aleixandre, y que además es un descubrimiento poético que crea una línea de transformación en la propia escritura, como demuestra la "Oda entre sangre y vino a Pablo Neruda". Aparte de este recorrido, habitual para la crítica, las varias tardes que el poeta pasa en la Casa de las flores -la residencia de Neruda-, charlando, corrigiendo pruebas del chileno (de su antología del conde de Villamediana y quizá de la de Quevedo y de la segunda Residencia en la tierra), leyendo libros de su casa, crean otra dinámica que a veces puede crear sorpresas, sobre la atracción de los dos por los clásicos, sobre la reconfiguración ideológica y sobre una pasión poética que, tras la muerte de Hernández en la cárcel en 1942, será intensamente memorial para Pablo Neruda. Los encuentros entre 1934 a 1936 jalonan la biografía y la memoria de Neruda completa la perspectiva hasta muy avanzada su obra posterior.

Module Elective Module: Pediatric immunology
04SM26MAS002 / Sonstiges

Description:

General description:
Vorträge zu den einzelnen Themen von Oberärzt/innen der Abteilung
Selbststudium in Gruppen
Praktisches Anwenden und Verstehen der Diagnostik in den jeweiligen Labors (Diagnostiklabor Immunologie/ Forschungslabor Immunologie/ ggf. Neugeborenenscreeninglabor)
Besichtigung Stammzelltransplantationsabteilung in Kleingruppen

- Kennen der Prinzipien von pathologischer/physiologischer Infektanfälligkeit sowie Immundysregulation
- Basiskenntnisse des Neugeborenenscreenings für schwere kombinierte Immundefekte
- Kennen der immunologischen Laborabklärungen und wann diese eingesetzt werden sollen
- Kennen von Therapiepfeilern bei Patienten mit primären Immundefekten (Medikamente, zelluläre Therapien)
- Basiskenntnisse von Genetik

ECTS: 4

Learning Outcome:
Primäre Immundefekte sind rare diseases, also sehr selten. Das Erkennen und die korrekte Diagnosestellung einer solchen Erkrankung ist für die Patienten elementar, da sie so vor Komplikationen (opportunistischen Infektionen, Immundysregulation, Malignität) geschützt werden können. Im Rahmen dieses Moduls sollen den Studierenden die Prinzipien des Immunsystems vermittelt werden.
Sie kennen die verschiedenen Gruppen von primären Immundefekten (IUIS Einteilung) und wie man diese diagnostiziert.
Die Studierenden sollen Einblick in die diagnostischen Untersuchungen, die zur Diagnosestellung führen erhalten und die Prinzipien der Laboruntersuchungen im Grundsatz kennen und verstehen.
Sie kennen sie die Prinzipien des Neugeborenenscreenings für primäre Immundefekte.
Des weiteren werden die wichtigsten medikamentösen/zellulären Therapien und deren Risiken werden im Grundsatz vermittelt.

Target Groups:

Module Excursion Central Asia
06SM721o448 / Module

Description:

General description:
In Summer 2026, Chair Peter Finke will offer an excursion to Central Asia-a region that remains a blind spot for many people and for anthropology in comparison to other parts of the world. While the exact destination has not yet been finalized, it will take place in one of the following countries: Uzbekistan, Qazaqstan, or Mongolia.

The excursion, which includes an integrated language course and summer school, will introduce students to the region and enable them to conduct research on a range of topics. The final dates and destination will be announced after consultations with participants and local partners. If conditions allow, students may extend their stay in the field independently.

ECTS: 6

Notes:
The excursion is open to BA and MA students. Upon successful completion of both the excursion and the language course, students will receive 6 ECTS credits for each.

Please send your letter of motivation to Meltem Sancak (meltem.sancak@uzh.ch) by February 15, 2026: https://t.uzh.ch/1W1

This module is a two-semester course. You can only complete the module if you are also enrolled in the second semester.

Learning Outcome:
Students will become familiar with a new region through an introduction to its language, culture, and society.

Students will develop methodological skills and carry out a small research project based on their own interests.

Students will gain first-hand experience in the field and practice ethnographic research, including the professional and personal skills this entails.

Module Fundamental Problems of Learning Systems: Applications to Organizational Learning (S)
03SMDOEC1273 / Doktorandenseminar

Description:

General description:
This doctoral mini-course surveys fundamental problems in learning systems and relates them to organizational learning. Topics include generalization versus overfitting, “no free lunch” limits showing why learning is impossible without assumptions, and recent work on large language models as learning systems. These issues are connected to classic organizational ideas—adaptation, routines, memory, and the exploration–exploitation tradeoff. The goal is to provide participants with cross-disciplinary insights and tools that can be used to formulate sharper research questions and models in organizational learning.

ECTS: 3

Notes:
The seminar is delivered by a guest lecturer, Prof Jerker Denrell, Professor of Behavioral Science, University of Warwick

If you are interested in taking the course, please send the following application materials via email to Mr Chaowei Zhu (chaowei.zhu@business.uzh.ch): (1) a current CV; (2) a short motivation letter, including your thesis title and the name of your supervisor.

If you have been admitted to the seminar, you must also register for the module in the course catalog (the registration deadline is listed below). You may only attend the seminar if you have received a positive response to your application.

Learning Outcome:
Developing capacities in formulating research questions and developing projects in organizational learning
